Summer Activities

FIELD HOCKEY
“All of the seniors of the field hockey team had the times of their lives going to camp at this gothic-like boarding school in Pottstown where we held talent shows involving rapping to Vanilla Ice at night after practicing hard during the day.”
- Theresa Galie ('06)

CREATION FEST
“Over the summer, my friends and I attended a huge Christian festival, Creation. We experienced Switchfoot, Relient K, Jeremy Camp, David Crowder Band, etc. live with thousands of other people. Despite the unbearable humidity it was an uplifting experience.”
- Helen Mac ('07)

“Over the summer, I worked for the Cherry Hill Recreation Department teaching tennis to young kids. I was able to teach them many things and genuinely enjoyed my job. The job not only taught me how to work with children, but it also helped me with my own tennis skills.”
- Jason Breig ('07)

CROSS COUNTRY
“Some people might think that to prepare for cross country running, you have to eat healthy, nutritious foods. Foods like vegetables come to mind. This is untrue. To prepare for running, we usually take in a healthy does of rich, fatty Chinese food, provided by Mandarin Buffet.”
- Brandon Cohen ('07)

JAPAN
“I went to Japan during the summer of 2005 as a visitor on a special program that the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia was sponsoring. We traveled around western Japan, visiting cities like Kobe, Kyoto, and Hiroshima, and also went to different schools where we talked about pressing world issues with Japanese students our own age. The best part of the trip for me was getting to make friends and stay with families all the way across the world. It was an unforgettable experience.”
- Jeremy Blum ('06)

VOLUNTEERING
“Over the summer, I participated in a two-week community service program in Chicago. I had the opportunity to help needy children in the underprivileged communities in Chicago. The program taught me so much and allowed me to improve the living conditions of many people in the area.”
- Julie Krause ('06)

Each day, teenagers go home from school and attempt to decompress from a long day. Often, this involves reading a magazine or watching television. Both magazines and televisions display fashionable items and these items frequently become popular among the teenage audiences. Fads and trends change with every season and one must play close attention in order to be up to date.

The females at Cherry Hill East often look to celebrities for fashion inspiration. When Hollywood began adorning their necks with long necklaces, the trend immediately influenced teenage fans. These necklaces come in a variety of colors and can be made from materials such as pearl and wood.

Everyday, teenage girls come to school wearing an average pair of jeans and a plain T-shirt. When one wishes to make their outfit more interesting and bright, one wears a belt sash around their waist. Each belt sash possesses a unique pattern and each belt sash brings style to any ensemble.

Many have often heard the phrase, "Can you hear me now?" In Cherry Hill East, one can hear this expression ring throughout the building. Students spend much of their time using their cell phones either talking with a parent or text messaging a peer. Cell phone companies constantly introduce new features as a means of appealing to the teenage audience.

Birkenstocks, manufactured in Germany, have been a major fashion trend for a number of years. The shoes provide individuals with extreme comfort and the company is best known for their stylish sandals and clogs. Another popular shoe company, Puma, provides their consumers with appealing sneakers which both woman and men can wear.

Many athletes at Cherry Hill East have trouble transporting their equipment around school. With a sport bag, one is able to easily carry their clothing and protective gear. These bags, which are worn on one's back, are manufactured by well known companies including Nike and Adidas.
HOBBIES  CARDS

Playing cards, a favorite pastime of many of our grandparents, has become a popular way to relax in the school building. In a stressful atmosphere, it is beneficial for one to engage in an enjoyable activity with friends. Some students play the traditional “Go Fish” while others play more demanding games, such as Poker.

TECHNOLOGY  CAMERA

In today’s world, it is necessary to capture every joyous moment. Through the use of a digital camera, one can take pictures of scenery, friends, and memorable activities. With technology growing rapidly, digital captures have become a necessity for almost every high school student. A flash drive also enables one to easily save and transfer work done on the computer.

TECHNOLOGY  IPOD

A few years ago, Apple changed the way in which one listens to music. The iPod, a device capable of holding countless songs, has become almost a necessity for people of every age. This device, which originally came in only white, now comes in an array of colors. There are also many styles of this device including the iPod shuffle and the miniature iPod nano.

CLOTHES  JEANS

On the average day, the majority of the student population chooses to put on a simple pair of jeans. However, in today’s world of fashion, jeans can be worn in an assortment of ways. Some buy ripped jeans from Abercrombie and Fitch while others simply travel to the local department store for some conventional Levi’s.

SHOES  UGGS

This school year, especially this winter, one can spot various styles of Ugg boots in the halls of Cherry Hill East. These warm shoes, which originated in Australia, have gained rapid popularity, and are worn by babies, teenagers, and adults alike.

DRINKS  POLAND SPRINGS

Each day students come to lunch with their brown bags filled with delicious lunches. After one consumes their standard sandwich and bag of chips, one wishes to have a cold drink of water. Poland Spring water has become the choice of many mothers, and thus, many students enjoy this refreshing beverage during mealtime.

>>Which Disney character would you want to marry? Why?

<<Alex>> I would probably marry Cinderella because she knows how to party. Oh, and did I mention that her car was pimped into a pumpkin? Case closed.

<<Grace Min>> Aladdin because he can take me where I want to go twice as fast on that magic carpet.

<<Kevin>> Ariel...I've always wondered what it was to be a Merman.

<<Andrea>> The guy from Lost City of Atlantis because he's so nerdy cute.

<<Janet>> Most would say Prince Charming but I'd like one of the seven dwarves, preferably Sleepy.

<<Michelle>> I would want to marry Pinocchio because then when our kids lied to us, I would be able to tell.

>>Who would be your Disney Side-kick?

<<Melissa M>> That little candle stick because it freaks out like I do.

<<Erica>> The seven dwarves, especially Grumpy.

<<Lisa>> The Hunchback because I'd always look so attractive compared to him. Definitely not an animal because I wouldn't be able to communicate with them effectively.

<<Henry>> Hercules! He has brains and bronze.

>>What is your favorite Disney movie?

<<Bess>> The Little Mermaid is my favorite by far. It has the perfect mix of forbidden love, drama, suspense, evil, revenge, and sea creatures. The Little Mermaid is practically Shakespearean.
If you could be any Disney character, who would you be and why?

<<Audi>> Winnie the Pooh because his life goals are so simple: eat more honey and be a good friend.

<<Ran>> Hm... I would be any princess because I’ll get to dance with my prince. Animal wise, I guess I would be Dumbo because flying is fun.

<<Christine>> I would want to be Mulan because I want to save China! Who wouldn’t want Mushu as a sidekick?

>>Which character’s hairstyle would you want?

<<Jen Hsu>> This is hard. Did Cinderella have a nice hairstyle? I guess Cinderella.

<<Stephanie>> Ariel. Anyone who can keep her hair looking that good underwater deserves props.

>>If you could experience any Disney scene, what would it be?

<<Grace Gui>> It would be when Simba and his gang sing "Hakuna Matata"

<<Grace Yi>> When Cinderella turned into a princess.

<<Catarina>> I would want to be Simba when he makes everybody look left, everybody look right, everybody look I’m standing in the SPOTLIGHT! because everybody likes to look at me. I don’t even have to be in the spotlight.

>>Who is your favorite Disney pet?

<<Jeremy>> He’s not really a “pet” but Winnie the Pooh will always be my boy.

>>Which Disney character had the best wardrobe?

<<Steve>> Bambi, his fur was amazing.

<<Melissa Chiu>> Cinderella, I mean come on little mice made her clothes, that’s awesome.
"All of our dreams can come true, if we have the courage to pursue them." - Walt Disney
East has a reputation of being a demanding school that expects the best out of its students, not only academically but in all aspects of high school. Students push themselves to learn more and attain their goals. Students fill their schedules to the brim and still are not satisfied. There is no problem too hard, no topic too abstract, and no book too long for East students. No doubt this constant exertion is physically demanding, but students have demonstrated that they are mentally tough enough to handle the tasks.

Luckily for us, everyone reaps the benefits of the hard work. Students are recognized for the academic accomplishments in making honor roll and winning in academic competitions. In addition, East's high SAT scores are a tribute to the success.

All of these recognitions have led to amazing college résumés that give students the chance to continue their education at great colleges. From there, who knows what they'll go on to achieve.

Mr. Berryann arduously grades his physics quizzes while his class works on a lab. By getting back their assignments as quickly as possible, the students still have it fresh in their minds so they can learn from their mistakes better.

Steven Gao ('06) precisely explains to the biology class the concept he has been assigned. East teachers promote students to teach each other concepts in order to learn the curriculum better. This not only improves the student's knowledge but also hones their presentation skills.

Michael Levin ('07) rides his bike to school. Many students ride their bikes to school, often battling the cold and harsh weather.
Jeff Deppa ('05) catches some sleep on the bus home from a grueling cross-country meet. In order for students to succeed both in academics and in extracurriculars, they must be very good at managing their time. Sports at East are very intense, so students who participate in sports after school often must recharge their energy whenever they have free time.

While Steven Reisman ('06) listens intently to a history talk, Jeremy Blum ('06) balances eating his packed lunch with taking intricate notes. In order to take an additional class, some students choose to skip their lunch and make their schedule even harder.

Carolyn Mooney ('06), Joelle Koplin ('06), Martin Zhao ('06), Michael Kober ('06) and Adam Nover ('06) all crowd around a dictionary to understand the meaning of a complex poem. Group work is common at East and helps everyone in the group succeed. This type of cooperation is what makes East so great.
Fatigue from the all-nighter cram study or effort to finish the English essay can take its toll on East students. Despite the fatigue, each student will always find a way to sneak in a little break from class work, during the long six-and-a-half hours of school. Students will take any measure just to free themselves from a few minutes of calculus and human anatomy.

Every East student has his or her own individual, and maybe even unique way of steering away from work. Students can be found chatting away with friends during lunch periods, lounging around in the library, flipping through Teen magazine while listening to their new video iPod and even taking a little snooze in study hall or in the classroom. Because East has such a rigorous program, those few minutes can seem heavenly.

No matter how hard a student may be working during the day, everyone can be caught during any time of the day doing absolutely nothing that relates to what is being learned in school.

Apoorva Reddy ('07), Grace Gui ('06), and DIPA Patel ('07) gather together for a few minutes after school. They get to chat with each other, catch up with their day, while trying to sell baked goods to earn money for a club. This is also a chance for them to get away from school work for a short period of time and to focus on something else.
Joseph Zhou ('06) and Bernard Liberati ('06) escape from having to have to do homework immediately after school. The two engage in an intense, exciting, and esoteric (to many students) game of the Magic® Card game.

Angela Bennie ('08), Reena Palanivel ('08), Jessica Planamento ('08), and Jackie Chang ('08) take time in between hallways to chitchat over the latest gossip or goings-on in the school. Chatting away with friends is a great way to get one’s mind off schoolwork.

Erica Zhou ('08) finds an opportunity to chill, relax, and stray from doing work by going to the library. There are plenty of things for her to do in the library, but Erica decides to spend her break time on the computer playing interactive games online, a great way to get her mind off school.
The life of a high school student can be hectic and busy. At times, one can lose control, causing time and space to be indistinguishable from each other producing mass chaos to break loose. That was an exaggeration, but even at East, a Blue Ribbon school, not all students have "homework" on top of their list of priorities. Now, those students may be rare, but no high school can exist without its occasional slacker.

Even students who do not procrastinate regularly may turn to it as a last resort because of the overload of homework. Teachers at Cherry Hill East are probably now experts at distinguishing real and false excuses. The ones they hear can sometimes be pretty, uh... ridiculous.

"There was a blackout last night while I was simultaneously eating dinner and writing my paper and I put my homework on top of my food. It was too dirty for me to bring in today."
- Grace Yi '07

Vikram Bhargava ('06) and Jeffrey King ('06) work studiously in the Media Center. The two students have good work ethics, never having to approach their teachers with the excuses listed above.
1. “There was a puddle, right…”
2. “I couldn’t study for the test because my sister hit me with a car and I was unconscious the whole night.”
3. “I didn’t feel like it.”
4. “You look beautiful today, Mrs. ________”
5. “I had diarrhea”
6. “My baby sister ate it. But she gave it back to me… the other way.”
7. “I was celebrating Isaac Newton’s birthday!”
8. “There was a dog running loose outside and I was helping the security guards catch it.”
9. “I was on a date with your daughter last night.”
10. “I flushed it down the toilet… do you still want it?”

Bottom: Biology students focus intently on the different fly specimens. By observing the mutations on the flies, they learn about genetics.
Teachers' Past

We’ve seen them in the teacher’s lounges. We’ve seen them in classrooms grading papers. But we’ve never seen teachers in their high school or college years. As a tribute to all the teachers at Cherry Hill East, let’s look back into their past to see how they’ve become the great teachers they are today.

back then...
Think you know what teachers do after school, on weekends or on days off? Think again! The life of a teacher doesn’t just revolve around school. Besides spending time to grade tests, reading over 10 pages worth of essays and lab reports, creating new questions each year to put on tests, and making new lesson plans for every new day, teachers do have other obligations.

Teachers “are” human and do have lives outside the classroom. Teachers must go home to carry out daily chores, and for those who have children, they also have to take on the job of parenting. Having young children or a large family creates a lot of difficulty for teachers because they would have to not only grade schoolwork but take care of their children and families, too. Even if a teacher has children in college, there are college payments and the fact that a child is on his own to worry about.

At the end of the day, teachers do have lives that go on outside of school, and not everything revolves around grading papers; there’s much more to a teacher’s life than meets the eye.
Rex Radbill, who is only 10 months old, is the son of Mr. Erik Radbill and Ms. Katie Kelly. Mr. Radbill is a Special Education teacher, and Ms. Kelly is an English teacher, both teach at East. As parents who are also teachers, Mr. Radbill and Ms. Kelly find little time during the day to spend time with their baby. However, at the end of the school day, Mr. Radbill and Ms. Kelly's hands are full with the responsibilities of taking care of a young child.

Mrs. Boswell, an English teacher at East, has to not only spend time grading essays and handing out assignments but also take care of her three children: Kristy, 17; Kelly, 19; and John, 14. Mrs. Boswell definitely has much to do once she gets home from school.

Mrs. Heath, a Math teacher who instructs honors and AP math classes, has a lot of work ahead of her. The Heath family consists of Steve, Sr.; Mrs. (Linda) Heath; Steve, Jr., 17; and Bill, 22. Mrs. Heath has a child in high school and one in college.
Getting to know your teachers!

Every school year, there are a half dozen new names of teachers that have to be added to a student’s repertoire of people. Are they just another name and a face, or is it worth taking the time to get to know the person behind the veil.

“When students get to know a teacher on a personal level, they look forward to the class more,” says Heather Ling (‘06). The teachers themselves don’t seem as daunting once their outer layer is peeled away. Chung Wo (‘06) says that the class is “easier to enjoy since it’s taught by ‘Russo the Manatee Dude’ instead of ‘Russo the Almighty Stat Teacher’.”

After getting to know teachers and interacting with them, they become mentors for students at East. As a mentor, a teacher not only gives advice on schoolwork but how to be a more well-rounded person.

Their advice is genuine and priceless,” says Henry Chan (‘06).

Getting to know a teacher, however, means the expectations are higher. Even though teachers expect more, students are willing to work harder in a class they look forward to. Ultimately, this results in a better performance from the students.

The pros definitely overwhelm the cons when it comes to getting to know a teacher. So don’t forget to take that extra time to spend some quasi-leisure time with those half a dozen new faces.

“I played school as a young child. I used to make up names of students and take different spelling tests and make mistakes so I could mark them with my red fountain pen.”

- Mrs. Peggy Beck

“My Mom was a high school teacher. Science is my passion because it gives us a clear understanding of life’s delicate balance.”

- Ms. Erica St. Jean

“The movie, “To Sir with Love”, and working at summer camps for years.”

- Mr. Bill Kovnats

Memorable Students

"Jim was a unique student who was the only senior I taught that year because he had failed English. Many people had given up on Jim because they thought he didn’t care. I went to graduation that year for him only to discover that he graduated on honor roll! Years later, I saw Jim, and he was a movie producer in California. It’s nice to know I had a small part in his success."

- Mrs. Holly Klein

"I had a group in English 3R that were named the "All-Stars". Most of these kids were notorious then but have now really matured."

- Ms. Katie Kelly

"They are all memorable for different reasons. Every student is like a beautiful flower, which I help to nurture and unfold. Some just have big thorns!"

- Mrs. Linda Heath

Mr. Russo poses in his jolly green costume. Teachers all have different personalities that can come out at any time. Students should always be ready.

Extracurriculars

Mrs. Heath loves to solve mathematical proofs. Mrs. Heath holds a barbecue at her house every year for her seniors to prepare for the Calculus AP Exam. What a nice lady!
Teacher's Pets

We all know that teachers love to have friends. So besides their co-workers and students, who do they turn to? Man/Woman's best friend of course (other pets too!). These loyal teacher's pets keep our teachers company while they vegetate at home grading papers. It's time to honor these loyal pets.

Bricks is a Staff-ford Terrier/Pit Bull mix and is 5 years old. Bricks belongs to Mrs. Heath's family and keeps her family company.

Samson is a Chocolate Lab of 2 years old. Samson is one of two loyal dogs belonging to Miss Kelly and Mr. Radbill.
Limalo is a Tiger Cat of one and a half years old and belongs to cat-lover Miss St. Jean.

Woof...

Cool dog Phoebe can be seen wearing sunglasses chewing on her bone. Phoebe belongs to Mrs. Dobromilska and she is a joy to be around.

Nails is a yellow lab and is 8 years old. Nails is the second dog of Miss Kelly and Mr. Radbill.
“As we go on, We remember, All the times we’ve Had together, And as our lives change, Come Whatever; We will still be, Friends Forever”

These are the lyrics to the chorus of Vitamin C’s popular song, “Graduation (Friends Forever)”. A friend, as The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language defines it, is a person whom one knows, likes, and trusts or is a favored companion. Although “friend” can be defined in dictionaries, a real friend is indescribable.

Like the song by Vitamin C, friends are forever and friendships last a lifetime. Friendships do get broken, but new ones are forming everyday. Friendships and tight bonds have been formed since the start of one’s educational beginning, and those tight bonds will be kept for years to come.

Friends come in all shapes and sizes. It doesn’t take much for a lifetime friendship to form; the bond is just naturally there.
Lauren Moore (’09) and Becca Krell (’09) are new to Cherry Hill East this year and came into this new school as best friends. Good thing, they are able to stick together from a very large freshman class. This friendship has just started growing and will grow even more as life goes on.

Friends Arthur Kutoroff (’08) and James Han (’08) can be seen talking about similar interests and hanging out after a day of school. The two are good friends and will remain good friends.

Kristina McKinney (’06) and Aliya Massey (’06) are the best of friends. They can be seen hugging each other, showing how strong this friendship is. It foreshadows the long length of their friendship.
Testing, Testing, 1-2-3

Everyday at East, students take tests. The constant battle over which testing day is which and studying for numerous tests are some problems East students know all too well. On top of all that, students at East, as well as throughout the rest of the nation, must deal with the dreaded SATs. In the last year, the SATs have also been changing, making matters even worse for students. As SAT coordinator for East, Mr. Charles Musumeci leads the charge at East and understands the issues, giving his two cents on the matters.

"Describe Your Job"

I'm in charge of SAT administration for Cherry Hill East. Because East is a very popular testing site, I handle, on average, 50 phone calls a day, pertaining to special testing requests to problems with testing conditions. The most important job is maintaining the integrity of the test. I must collect every test and answer booklet. One lost item could jeopardize the legitimacy of the test for all students in our region.

Students spend long hours in the SAT rooms. Because of the magnitude of these tests, students must do their best to concentrate the entire time so they can do well on all sections. The added writing section places even more pressures on the students already strained brains.

How have the new SATs affected you?

Overall, while none of my actual duties have changed, I have more of a workload to handle. The most significant change of the new SATs has been the increase in testing time. Testing must start earlier, end later, and issues for students with extended time tests increased. Students have been placed in a tough situation because they are less inclined to retake the test due to the length. While recently there have been propositions on dividing up the SATs into its separate sections, I doubt anything will happen in the near future.

Critical Reading

What’s your opinion on standardized tests vs. normal school grades for education?

In general, I see a general trend that teachers are coaching their students to pass the standardized tests rather than encouraging a holistic learning process. Experts have been writing up entire curriculums based on standardized tests. On the other hand, standardized tests are necessary as the best available way to measure student knowledge objectively. We need to re-evaluate how to provide a better and more consistent educational experience that incorporates a balanced approach to testing.

Funniest SAT Moment

One time in the extended time testing room, one student not from East fell asleep during testing. The proctor called me in because she could not wake him up. After numerous failed attempts to nudge him awake, we had to move the other students to another room because he was snoring loudly. I remained with the sleepy student until he woke up two hours later, after which he got up, yawned, and left without a care in the world.
Whether it is waiting for the 10-minute warning bell to ring while doing last-minute homework or just relaxing with friends during lunch, the Cafeterias of Cherry Hill East are the most precious asylums where students can escape during the day from their stressful academic schedules. This year, with its new addition of the coffee-stand Java City, students can now warm themselves up with a cup of fresh-brewed coffee or sweet hot chocolate and prepare themselves for another fast-paced school day! However, this room does not only serve lunch for students. In the beginning of the school year, the Cafeterias are used to host the Freshman Dance, Sophomore Cotillion, and the Halloween Dance. During the fall, the rooms are used for Spirit Week Dance practices and also the weekly F.O.P Holiday Party meetings. Whichever way they are used, many treasured high school memories are made in these rooms.

East is all about challenging students to do their very best, no matter the level of the class. Teachers have set course syllabuses that have very high standards. When the test for the chapter is over, most students feel that they have been challenged for that topic and are ready for the next; however, behind the curtains, those students have no idea what they are in for.

When the new and confusing subject matter comes along, class participation plunges, hands shoot into the air for hundreds of questions, and teachers are forced to stay after every other day just to get students to understand the esoteric material.

As weeks pass and test day nears, students begin to gain more confidence and start talking the language of the subject matter. By the time the test is taken, students feel that they have mastered that subject topic and are confident to take on the challenge of the next, but then they realize they are in for a rude awakening and the cycle repeats itself.

Working together in group discussion allows Corey Kessler ('07), Jason Epstein ('07), and Jon Dubrow ('07) to gain peer input and help to correctly comprehend the reading.

Students gather around Mr. Frank Console at the chalkboard in an attempt to further comprehend material taught in class. Visual learning is a great way to boost understanding.
Francis Longo ('07) works and studies hard to keep up the grade in Spanish class. Foreign language class is always tough because in order to become fluent, a lot of years of hard work is required.

Students in Ms. Gina Oh's biology class listen intently on material covered in class so not miss any information that may be on the test.

Victoria Luk ('07) and Jeff Deppa ('07) take on the new and difficult math unit by doing helpful practice problems. After all, practice makes perfect!
High School may be exciting, but students know that classes offered at Cherry Hill East are no picnics. Classes teach us how to find the derivatives of a composite function and how to say, "May I raid your fridge?" in German.

Most importantly, these challenging classes teach students at East the most useful skill needed after entering the "REAL WORLD": the ability to work with diligence. The results of a test do not matter as long as we worked diligently and put forth our best efforts.

We just need to continue to put our BEST foot forward, everywhere we go after we finish our four well-spent years at East.

Rebecca Levine ('08) sits on the side of F-wing, reading a book for English class in the morning.

Dan Dinsmore ('09) has headphones in his ears to help him concentrate on his work in a noisy lunchroom.

Stacy Smith ('09), Paul Johnson ('09), and Vicky Christodoulou ('09) work together to review their notes that are needed for their next classes.

Students returning to East this year have noticed a revamped class schedule. Hoping to add more class instruction time, administration has cut down time spent in homeroom and in between classes. In addition, school has been extended another five minutes, giving two more minutes per class period. So what exactly have these two additional minutes accomplished.

There have been mixed reactions among teachers. Some say that as a whole, there really is not much that they can fit in with the last two minutes. They say that rather than focusing on the last two minutes of class, they like to focus on the other 42 minutes and get done what they need in that time. Merely adding time to a class doesn’t necessarily increase what teachers teach and students learn.

Students share similar views for different reasons. Having lost five minutes in homeroom, where they can collect their thoughts before tackling the grueling school day, students are frustrated with how fast the school day begins. Also, with one less minute in between classes, it’s much harder to get to class on time. The crowded hallways certainly don’t help in that manner.

But then again, East students are not new to changes made to challenge them. Here, students take seemingly impossible course schedules while participating in an endless number of activities. Taking it to the next level is all part of the East tradition.

Students work arduously and carefully in the science lab. Precision and accuracy will obtain the best possible results of the lab.
Everybody knows it's coming. Vaccines just aren't working and a cure won't be coming for another...well, ever. Senioritis is often described as an imaginary disease, but educators here at East are all too familiar with its all too real symptoms, which include general laziness, procrastination, and apathy toward schoolwork. This controversial syndrome stems from high school seniors' complacency once they are all but guaranteed a spot in college. At East, once first semester grades of senior year are in, not only are those the final grades sent to colleges, but even class rank is settled right there so even people at the top of the class battling for better ranks can take it easy.
Senioritis at East takes on many different forms. Certainly privileges like Senior Cut Day add to the swirling nonchalant attitude prevalent among seniors. With their cars just a couple hundred meters away, those not too lazy to walk out can “miss” a few classes and just take off. As the year progresses, attendance in senior classes drop significantly.

While administration may hang attendance requirements over seniors’ heads, most seniors find the Attendance Review Panel as humorous as the panel on American Idol. In fact, most seniors feel justified in taking a few “cough” hundred “cough” days off school after three years of slave labor. Seniors could use the break before entering the real world, whether on the job or attending college.
"What sculpture is to marble, education is to the soul."

1) What effects have the scheduling changes had on the school, and where do you see the school in the future?

The changes this year have worked to extend the amount of instructional time because learning always comes first, so that was certainly a step in the right direction. However, the changes weren't as extensive as I would have liked. Various concepts like eliminating homeroom, shortening lunch periods to about 20 minutes, and extending the school day were all propositions that I would like to see implemented. I think it will take awhile to make those changes because of the various changes in structure, not only with scheduling, but also with the data processing for administration, as well as contractual issues. The type of schedule we use right now has been in use for quite some time now, so bringing about this type of change won't be easy and may be different from what people are used to, but it will certainly help the school focus on what's important and that's learning.

2) Fifteen years from now, what are you going to remember about the graduating Class of 2006?

I would certainly think that they were very spirited. One of the things, as the principal, is that usually you get to know students more towards the end of their high school career as they step-up to leadership positions and really interact with me, unlike Mr. Terranova and Mrs. McLeester, who usually get to know students along the way. The seniors I've come to know and work with have really shown me that the leadership and human services aspect of this class have really stood out.
Students in health learn many of the life skills necessary that don't necessarily come from book smarts. Living smart is key to a successful life past high school.

Lunch is one of the offerings at East that Dr. O'Breza believes should be modified to make room for more learning. Students look forward to lunch as a time to unwind in between classes.

"Wherever you go, go with all your heart."
- Confucius

3.) What advice do you have for seniors leaving Cherry Hill East?

I think that's the easiest question by far. As a teacher, administrator, and as a parent, what you want for young people is that they find a path and passion. Everything else will take care of itself. They should be confident that they'll try different things, and what they should be looking for is something that will make them happy with themselves, contributions, and considerations for others. That's just my modest opinion.
1) What did you do after you took the SATs in January? Started studying for final exams.

2) What is the one thing you can't live without? My stilts...how would I be able to see over the counter without them?

3) What superhero would you want to be? Chuck Norris...he's not officially a superhero (yet), but he's pretty close.

4) What celebrity would you want to have a date with? Natalie Portman...she went to Harvard so it would be cool to score some H.

Dan Amerman

1) What is the one thing you can't live without? Frozen foods. To be honest, at 1am my stomach goes berserk, there's not really too many options. Frozen food is the way to go.

2) What is your favorite word? Quetzals because it is officially the highest scoring word allowed in scrabble, 374 points to be exact. Craziest comes in a close second. As Jeff would say, "I live for the triple triple."

3) What are your guilty pleasures? Fried chicken, Wendy's after 12, and wearing socks with sandals.

4) What superhero would you want to be? Most definitely spiderman. According to an online survey, I'm 93% similar to him. Plus he's a nerd and he's got kirsten dunst so what's not to like. I definitely dig the suit as well.

Steve Gao

1) What did you do after taking the S.A.T.s? Burn all the prep books!

2) What is your favorite word? Happiness.

3) What is your least favorite sound? Alarm Clock!!! (Have been hating and will hate it forever) : ) Rocchino will be proud.

4) What celebrity would you want to have a date with? Sydney Carton.

Zhen Gong
Unfortunately, I've been addicted to this show, which mentions this word over and over again. It's really funny.

2) What are your guilty pleasures? Lots of sour prunes.

3) What superhero would you want to be? Robinson Crusoe. Who wouldn't want to be this man, someone who is capable of living on an island for years without provided food and shelter? There is one problem about him though...he's too hairy.

4) What was your favorite childhood toy? This blanket that I chewed up into pieces. Boy, was I obsessive with it.

1) Name one thing you can't live without? My Blue Old Navy Fleece- And when I'm deceased, it'll be on me in one piece.

2) Favorite equation? (Hard) Work = Force x Distance. Put in the work and you'll go the distance.

3) Favorite music album? The College Dropout. Must be an omen.

4) What celebrity would you want a date with? Before I date a girl, I'm going to save this world.

1) What is the one thing you can't live without? Ummmmm... plumbing? mean technically I could survive without it, but I'd rather not.

2) What did you do after you took the S.A.T.s? I think it was a huge snowstorm, so my mom took me to wawa to get caramel apples and coffee and yummy treats that only wawa sells.

3) What are your guilty pleasures? Easy Mac, Chef Boyardee, chinese cu noodles/ Ramen.. oh and this one brand of chinese dumplings... oooh.

4) What celebrity would you want to have a date with? Honestly, I would be way too nervous to go on a date with any celebrity...and I'd probably feel slightly stalkerish...but I idolize Orlando Bloom and Patrick Dempsey... o and Eric Bana... =)

New year, new changes

In early September, hundreds of freshmen start their first year in a big, new school. As a new year approaches, new challenges come along with it. Freshmen face a radical transition from the oldest of their school to the youngest. Although it may seem overwhelming and somewhat scary, students overcome their initial shock after some time. On the other hand, once this shock wears off, new troubles, such as the pressures of high school, come along. "Getting used to all of the differences from middle school is almost like a complete culture shock and takes time to get used to," said Liz Kim ('09). However, students soon begin to realize that it is not hard to adapt to the welcoming environment of Cherry Hill East, a school full of diverse people, culture, and opportunities.

Jennifer Hirch, Brett Levine, Dara Weinraub, and Jeff Purcell stay after school to help one another meet the demands of freshman year.

A Wise Fool

If you look up the word "sophomore" in the dictionary, you'll probably discover that it means "wise fool" in Greek. It is an oxymoron, but it completely describes the ex-freshman, beginning his or her second year at Cherry Hill East. Young, dedicated, and "perfectly" ready to tackle whatever challenges await them in a new year of high school. Many sophomores enter the building on the 1st day of school with a mindset that's more than a tad bit smug. How bad can a second year be? As the months progress, the truth of the "wise fools" oxymoron reveals itself with sophomores learning just how difficult sophomore year can be—more tests, more homework, teachers who aren't as forgiving as they were last year, and the imminent threat of the deadly SATS, lurking just around the corner. But with these obstacles come rewards and good times, new and exciting classes to take a sophomore cotillion, and the ever-comforting remind of: "Hey! We're not at the bottom of the high school food chain anymore!" So, while sophomores may begin their years as "wise fools," they end it with humble attitudes and many positive memories. This is good because they usually need those positive memories to help them get through junior year.

Geometry Honors...a good change?

Prove this statement: the underclassmen have a better grasp of geometry than the sophomores. Good luck trying to muster up all the postulates you know because those "wise fools" probably know more. They are the first class to have the option of taking Geometry Honors. In addition to having earned more honors credit, those sophomores who took the course studied geometry in depth. Geometry A only focuses on two and three-dimensional Euclidean geometry, while Geometry H touches on locus of points, coordinate proofs, and vectors. With the more intense honors course available, the freshmen taking it will be challenged mathematically from the very beginning. Jon Chalik ('08) said, "From the beginning, the course moved at a fast-pace." Although also challenging, the accelerated geometry course was more laid back. Anyone who has taken the dreaded "P" test in Functions can tell you that the disparity between the two courses is huge. The school has bridged the gap with this new course. Kudos to those who overcame the challenges it brought.

However, some upperclassmen believe that their situation is unfair. Ruben Fuentes ('07) said, "I wish that our class had the option to earn honors credit and keep up with hose taking functions as freshmen". In the past, those gunning for valedictorian were one step ahead of the rest in mathematics. Now, the sophomores currently have a double-digit tie for first. More students are now eligible for high-ranking positions, but will such a tie make competition more cutthroat?

Sophomores
It's that time of year again... no, not Christmas but time for SATs. As students enter their junior year, stress begins to engulf their lives because each student is fighting to receive the perfect score. Last year, College Board changed the format of the old SATs, which consisted of a verbal and math section, to a fresher one with an additional writing section and revised verbal and math sections. However, it is not until this year that the new SATs will take the place of the old SATs... for good! Colleges will now begin to assess students, according to the scales of the New SATs. Junior year, which is a vital year for students, will become more challenging with the constant reminder of SATs and college preparation. The reality of college will hit many juniors for the first time, and for some, it will be overwhelming; while for others, it will be the most eventful time of their lives.

DIFFICULTIES OF BEING A SENIOR

Senior year at Cherry Hill East is an interesting one. Most people dismiss it as a “nothing” year, 180 days of lounging around that is well deserved after 540 days of hard work. This is a myth—at least, the first part of it is. Senior year, if anything, is most certainly not a “nothing” year. In fact, one particular aspect of senior year is more difficult, more painful, and more inducing of hair loss than anything else students have faced in their prior high school years. This is, of course, the college application process, that glorious time when students have to send in credentials to multiple colleges of their choice, biting their nails to stubs as they await decisions. Not only is the task of filling out application a tremendous burden (particularly for those nasty schools out there that still don’t use the common app, curse them all), but students must also agonize over college essays, tweaking them endlessly in an effort to successfully sell themselves through their words. Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors who have often wondered why seniors always seem to be visiting their English teachers should wonder no more—they’re conferencing over college essays, that’s all. And in the end, once all the essays and applications have been sent in, seniors must go through the painful waiting process—a process that can agonizingly stretch itself out until the latter half of the year.

Once seniors have been accepted into college, however, life gets significantly better, and the senior workload arguably lets up quite a bit. It is around this time that seniors are victim to dangerous bouts of “senioritis,” that wicked disease that prevents one from starting one’s homework until eleven o’clock PM on a Sunday night. Is this the “lounging around” that so many people think of as a senior year definition? Perhaps. But considering the harsh process that seniors must go through before achieving senioritis nirvana, as well as their prior three years in high school, maybe some downtime is well deserved. Just don’t stereotype senior year as all downtime.

Anyone who steps into the large hallways of Cherry Hill High School East immediately notes the members of numerous ethnic groups, working together to create our unique community. But their camaraderie extends far beyond the academic environment; it has become an important part in every student's social life and community effort. Among the many extracurriculars devoted to celebrating culture, is the African-American Club. In addition to preparing an annual Black History Show centered around the progression of African-American dance, the members have dedicated time and energy to communal activities such as holiday parties. Also, the Asian Culture Society has extended its hand to aid the community. The society hosts popular semiannual dances to raise funds for local charities and organizes banquets for teachers to raise awareness of Asian traditions. Another established organization, the Jewish Culture Club, has continued to bring cultural celebrations, such as Passover and Rosh Hashana, from the home into the school environment.

Italian-American Club leaders Mike DiMedio ('07) and Anthony Lombard ('07) discuss future events for the club during their frequent meetings after school.

Mrs. Orlando
The club often meets before large holidays to enjoy traditional Jewish food and games. Other established cultural associations include the Korean Culture Club, Chinese Culture Club, Filipino Club, Hispanic Culture Club and Italian-American Club. Like the aforementioned groups, these organizations work to promote a sense of unity within their ethnic population as well as in the Cherry Hill East community.

The African-American Club meets regularly to plan club activities such as Black History Show and African-American dance.

The Chinese Cultural Dance Club mixes work with play as they practice and perfect cultural dances from their native countries. Erica Zhou ('07) and Annie Yan ('06) join their fellow club members to rehearse dances that will be performed during Multi-cultural Day, a celebration during which the Cherry Hill East's culture clubs band together to promote awareness.

What makes East a true community is our ability to communicate. We love to inform each other and express ourselves in the process. And in that process, we make ourselves truly heard as not only a school but a group of people with things to say and ideas to share. We are all pleased when we spot our names in the paper or proud to hear our awards and achievements announced the next morning. There's always a blank page to print our angry tirades, humorous commentary, and love-smitten lyrics. But the students (and the advisors who guide them) often go unnoticed. Eastside editors stay the extra hour to perfect that layout to the pica, debate the merits of the upcoming editorials, and put a spotlight on unrecognized students by featuring them on the front page. And we don't have to wait a month for the next issue; frequent updates on Eastside Online mean we can get our share of East news any place, any time. There is nothing as dependable as the broadcasting team - if there's one thing we can depend on, it's morning announcements, greeting us cheerily every morning on the minute to give us the daily bulletin without fail. At the sound of the bell, they're ready to pay respects to our country with the flag salute, beckoning the school to rise in unison. Then there's Eastcast, offering us reviews of sports, plays, and the like with a bright smile and perfect posture in traditional broadcast fashion. Don't forget Demonargon, the manifestation of literary talent, devoted to publishing our students' best poetry. The organizations right here are our modes of expression, our personal outlets to express our feelings and ideas.

Lisa Ly('06) discusses the merits of an upcoming World Issues article with Editors Emma Stone('06), Meredith Bajgier('07), Ryan McNally('06) and Felicia Frantz('06) as they prepare next month's issue of Eastside.
Bianca Duec ('07) adamantly voices her opinion on the poem in question to the rest of the members in Demogorgon as they decide which poems will appear in the publication.

ing our students' best poetry. They meet regularly to discuss submitted poems, deciding which to place in their two literary magazines. The organizations right here are our modes of expression, our means of saying, "Hear us out loud." They make sure we stay informed and prove we're all an integral part of the school. And most importantly, they make certain we never become apathetic to the important domestic and world issues that present themselves. These organizations work for the school's benefit rather than themselves. They show that East is a body rather than scattered individuals, and that yes, sometimes, the world does revolve around us.

Cherry Hill East is known for its superior leaders. Not only does East have outstanding class leaders, it has bred doctors, lawyers, politicians, and businessmen. How, though, do students become great leaders in those wide array of fields? By joining clubs that promote future leaders, such as Future Doctors of America (FDA), World Affairs Council (WAC), Distributive Educational Club of America (DECA), Mock Trial, Student Government Association (SGA), etc, do students learn the necessary skills to build a strong foundation that will allow them to excel in their chosen paths.

One of the largest clubs in Cherry Hill East is the Distributive Educational Club of America (DECA), a club that has over 200 students every year who participate in competitions. DECA is a business club where students learn the ins and outs of a specific business category. By participating in the regional level, students may advance to the state and, ultimately, the national level. The competitions in DECA are extremely competitive. However...it has made me a better public speaker.

Nations, where students partake in scholarly debates, ranging in topics like combating HIV/AIDS to solving world hunger. “WAC gave me a valuable look into both the necessity and difficulty of international affairs. I’ve come to appreciate that world reform requires a terrible amount of effort and the two things that are quite difficult to achieve: diplomacy and compromise,” says Lisa Ly (‘09).

Coupled with the leadership experience from SGA students become leaders who understand both international and national affairs, the basics of a good politician.

The leaders of the Student Government Association spend a majority of the early school months planning Spirit Week. They must organize a series of competitions between each grade.

For students who want to become doctors or join the medical profession, joining the Future Doctors of America (FDA) club certainly is a great steppingstone to understanding what works in a wide range of medical professions from heart surgeons to dermatologists. By joining FDA, prospective doctors gain valuable knowledge as to what their fields entail.

Students who are interested in politics and international affairs can benefit from clubs like World Affairs Council (WAC) and Student Government Association (SGA). WAC includes Model United Nations, where students partake in scholarly debates, ranging in topics like combating HIV/AIDS to solving world hunger. “WAC gave me a valuable look into both the necessity and difficulty of international affairs. If you have your eyes set on becoming a leader of America it is a great investment to partake in the clubs that promote future occupations. The experience and knowledge students gain from these clubs help prepare them in the profession they ultimately choose to follow.
MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Cherry Hill East students are pretty ambitious: we want to save the world. Community service is on the agenda for many of our school's organizations. The wide variety of good deeds includes donating blood, tutoring kids, and adopting a grandparent. In the game of life, landing on the "community service" space is a win-win situation. By lending a helping hand, you better the world and yourself.

The newly founded Key Club is just one of many philanthropic clubs at East. Key Club publicist Deepak Kumar ('07) said, "The Key Club wants to help society in many ways". Indeed, president Michael Yan ('08) created four committees: Alex's Lemonade Stand, Seasons for Change, Local Fundraisers, and the Art Committee. You could say that Key Club has declared war on the world's problems. Each committee commands a battalion of do-gooders that addresses issues such as poverty, hunger, pollution, and sickness. They are the Justice League of Cherry Hill, and each has a different super power to contribute, whether it is in art or lemon-squeezing.

Yet there are so many at Cherry Hill East that can be considered heroes: SGA, Adopt-a-Grandparent, Blood Drive, Habitat for Humanity, Tutoring Club, Character Education, Future Doctors

Pictured above shows our very own students participating in the FOP holiday party of 2005, just one of the many community service clubs at East. FOP participants help the community by cheering the lives of less fortunate children in an effort to put a smile on their faces.

of a America, and Lend-A-Hand. When the Hurricane Katrina disaster devastated the nation, our school did all it could to help. During the home football games, the junior class directed everyone to a Katrina Relief collection tin. Families raised money for victims in Follow the Sun Walk/Run. By extending friendly hands to people from all walks of life, we built homes, habitats, and character.

The Black Eyed Peas spent all of 2004, wondering where the love is. By admiring the community service achievements this school year, Cherry Hill East can proudly proclaim that the love proliferated faster than you can say “my humps”.

“I do not think that Community Service should be about what a person wants to do, but what is needed in a community,” says Jeff Deppa (‘07).

It's All Fun and Games

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. Considering the plethora of entertainment-oriented clubs offered here at East, Jack can have his play right after work. At both Burger King and Cherry Hill East, you can have it your way. Every flavor of entertainment is represented: books, videogames, movies, television, chess, comic books, technology, and sports. We've got more variety than Bertie Botts Every Flavor Beans. Harry Potter would be proud.

Speaking of Harry Potter, the Book Club focuses on both the classics (9th Period Shakespeare!) and the recent bestsellers. Japanese Appreciation club watched Bleach every Wednesday. This popular anime follows Kurosaki Ichigo as he tries to retrieve Rukia, a female death god, from the spirit world. The "Anime" club strives to entertain and there is no essay due that following Monday.

The Chess club suitably meets in the science room, where calculations and analysis feel right at home. While the Chess team does compete with other schools, they also play fun variations of chess: speed chess and bughouse. Speed chess follows the same rules, but intensifies the game with a time limit. Bughouse is a two on two battle, where captured pieces can be used against the enemy. This isn’t your grandfather’s chess—it’s a mental war.

New to East is Technology Discussion, where the members dissect the newest technology. The first meeting dazzled its members with the latest CGI in Final Fantasy: Advent Children. Club co-president Gautam Sawhney (‘07) says, “Last meeting, we demonstrated Windows Vista, the next operating system. We plan on welcoming a speaker from Comcast”. East finally has a place for the tehnosavvy.

If you think about it, each club can fall under the “entertainment” category. Students spend that extra hour after school to do or discuss what they enjoy, whether that be magic cards, math, or sports debates. Nothing beats finding a group of people who love what you love.

“I think East’s entertainment clubs are a great way to meet new people and enjoy school in an exciting, creative way. Next year, I hope to become involved in things like the book club, which lets students like me have fun at school.”
- Rachel Levin (‘09)
Try to imagine seeing a fellow alumni from Cherry Hill East sitting on the Supreme Court one day. Or perhaps becoming a member of congress. Or maybe even becoming the next president of the United States! While this may seem like a strange thought, it is an entirely possible one, especially when the impressive array of political clubs available at East is considered. These clubs, which include Model UN, Young Democrats of America, Young Republicans of America, SGA, and Women With A Cause, give politically-minded students the chance to speak their mind on the issues they find most pressing in the world today. They also allow future politicians a venue that they can use to practice their skills. In Model UN, for example, students research individual countries, learning their country’s stance on an important political issue. Students then go on to represent that country in a “mock” model United Nations, which actually comes amazingly close to the real thing, with participants expounding on important points with the utmost clarity and determination, vocally sponsoring what they feel is best for their interests of their country (while trying to make deals with other countries in the process as well). While Model UN participants are not supposed to let their own political views interfere with the views of their countries, the Young Democrats and Republicans clubs gives these same students the opportunity to stand up for what they personally believe in. In the past, these clubs have helped to raise student awareness on pertinent political issues, with many members going off to participate in political rallies with the greatest enthusiasm. These clubs have even had visits from famous guest speakers, such as State Senator Adler. The Women With A Cause club similarly allows its female members to focus on issues that they find important, ensuring that in the world of politics, gender is neither a barrier nor a detriment. And last (but certainly not least), there’s SGA, where your favorite class presidents and representatives congregate to help make the school better for every student inside of it. With all of these opportunities, Cherry Hill East is undoubtedly politically-minded, so don’t be surprised if the president in 2040 really does turn out to be that one classmate who’s always talking about their favorite political club.

Cherry Hill East is an artistic school. One only has to walk through the halls past the beautifully painted murals and elegant display showcases to notice this. However, while almost everyone has noticed the wall mosaics near the East gym or the photos and artwork that are often on display in the showcases in F-wing, not everyone knows that a fine selection of organizations for the artistically-inclined exist within East's walls. The art club and photo club are two prime examples of clubs that embrace multiple outlets of creativity. Within these clubs, students who share a similar love for the arts can band together to construct their own fabulous creations in different media, with watercolors, painted prints, and plain old pencil drawings as just a couple examples. Furthermore, students in these clubs swap techniques and talk about their current inspirations or favorite artists, often creating a wonderfully productive and innovative environment focused on expressionism. Members of the art and photo clubs also often go the extra mile, immersing themselves in their artwork and taking field trips to various scenic locations. There, they either practice their camera skills with multiple shots at dynamic angles or work on creating new and stunning pieces of art. Ultimately, the sheer talent present in Cherry Hill East's art clubs is astounding. So the next time you find yourself walking down the hall and admiring one of the many murals that manage to do the impossible (that is, making the school's lovely yellow walls gorgeous), take the initiative and go and visit the art club or the photo club. Not only will you possibly meet the creator of that impressive mural—you'll also bear witness to an enlightening powerhouse of sheer imaginative talent.

Pictured are junior students preparing for the FOP celebration by creating works of art. Together they make a great team and makes important steps towards inspiring others to follow in their footsteps.
The "Harry Potter and Chris Evan" silkscreen, created by Jennifer Ho, Kelly Hwang and Amy Lee, is displayed near the cafeteria.

The Art Club exhibits paintings created by its members.

Health plays an important role in the American culture, and it is no different with students at Cherry Hill East. At East, students have opportunities to join clubs that are both health conscious and enjoyable.

Mike Kim ('09) does bent over rows afterschool at the Weight Room Club.

Fabio DiColandrea ('07), a devoted member of the Weight Room Club, is pictured below lifting weights and working out. He frequently attends Weight Room Club to maintain his physique.
One popular health club is the Weight Room Club, where students come after school to work out. Weight Room Club is not only a great way to get fit and stay healthy, but it's a "great way to relax and unwind after a long day," says Michael Buxhoeveden ('06).

When students go to the weight room, they not only improve their physical health, they also improve their mental health. "We find our limits and break them to become stronger more than we could imagine," says CY ('06). By breaking their limits, students push themselves harder to achieve new heights they never thought possible. Thus, students find themselves working on both their physique and work mentality.

Similar to the Weight Room Club, another superb health conscious club is the Dance Team. Those involved in the Dance Team often practice as frequently as three times a week to stay sharp in their dance routines. Practicing routines is imperative to the Dance Team, since it keeps them mentally sharp and physically fit. Without being both mentally sharp and physically fit, the dancers would not be able to perform during school functions. This year, the Dance Team was able to put on a spectacular show during the Pep Rally to help encourage school spirit. The event ended with a bash as a two scores of girls appeared from a haze of smoke to perform their well-practiced routine.

To stay healthy at East, many students spend a lot of time training their bodies and minds to be Performing Arts

"Creativity is allowing yourself to make mistakes. Art is knowing which ones to keep." - Scott Adams
D-wing. It’s a mysterious place to outsiders, a hallway filled with enigmatic occurrences and inexplicable melodies that waft into the neighboring wings. But to those in-the-know art students, D-wing represents lasting friendships, permanent passions, and enduring dedication to the performing arts.

Before, during, and after school hours, “D-wingers” entertain their interests with a motley mix of clubs and activities. For some, after-school hours in D-wing mean getting down one’s comic timing at Mime rehearsal. For others, D-wing means rehearsing with the Jazz Standards to create the perfect mix of soul and swing. “D-wing is a place where I spend most of my free time,” said Shams Ahmed (’08). “It’s my second home.”

No matter what the students fancy, this wing has a style all its own!

JAZZ STANDARDS: Frank Wagner, Mark Greenfield, Ben Kaufman, Matt Tannenbaum, Todd Schefflin, Ethan Goldstein, James Boguski, Chris Walton

"There she is, towering high, broad and grand, ship of dreams!" The cast sings these powerful opening lines as a tribute to the majestic ship.

As the Three Kates, Ilana Rubin ('06), Katerina Madson ('08), and Sara Ryer ('07) represent the hopeful immigrants.

At the start of Act II, Nik Petersen Overton ('06) and Jared Fleischman ('09) awaken the First Class passengers after hearing word of an odd and foreboding occurrence.
Sail on! With choosing Titanic for the Spring Musical, East stage crew was bestowed the task of creating a three-story cross section of the massive ship, as well as a crow's nest and a glimpse into the captain’s quarters. The ship tilts six feet into the air, giving the illusion that it is actually sinking.

"Godspeed Titanic!" At the close of the show, Harrison Bannett ('07) Adam Liberman ('06), Aliya Bowles ('07) and Jordyn Smith ('06) portray a few of the survivors aboard the rescue ship, the Carpathia.
How does a high school go about changing the course of history? Just ask the members of East's drama department. Not only was the show a stretch for any actor, but the students performed the first "gender-switched" version of Dale Wasserman's classic play based on the novel by Ken Kesey. After weeks of rewrites by an all-students committee led by English teacher, Mrs. Bathke, both the original male cast and new female cast worked together to reinterpret this classic play. What resulted was a rewarding mix of literature, theatre, and talent!

“A bomb... to blow up the whole stinkin' world!” Adam Lieberman ('06) as Scanlon explains to McMurphy just what he's building and of his elaborate plans to escape from the mental ward.

In the midst of intense rehearsals, Katrina Comber ('07) and Aliya Bowles ('07) act out a scene together, in which Comber's McMurphy attempts to see the imaginary friends of Bowles' Martin."
Members of the male cast pretend to play baseball during the last scene in Act I, to the shock and dismay of Nurse Ratched.

McMurphy concedes to the request that patients remain seated during group therapy. The male Nurse Ratched, played by Jonathan Branfman ('07), must work hard to keep cool. When acting, it is essential for one to remain in character.

"I see her! I see her!" Acting takes both imagination and creativity, both of which Dan Amerman ('06) and Billy McHatlie ('09) have profuse amounts. The two high schoolers took on the personas of mental ward inhabitants in this year's Fall Show.

FEMALE CAST: Leela Petrie, Katrina Comber, Jonathan Branfman, Juliana Pellegrino, Bess Myers, Jordyn Smith, Elaina Kovnat, Aliya Bowles, Danielle Mandel, Samantha Wolf, Mike Stewart, Devon Gold, Laura Matusow, Adriana Natale, Laurie Maiman, Alex Roda, Aimee Bournfreund, Nicole Kuzan, Lindsay Sacks, Rachel Nover, Sami Siegel, Arielle Hayman, Liz Friedman, Sara Ryer, Caitlin Weaver, Joanna Volpe, Nina Korman
Fiddling Around

On any given day, one can see hundreds of students, walking down D-wing. D-wing is home to the vocal groups as well as the instrumental groups, including Orchestra, Wind Ensemble, Symphonic Band, and Jazz Band. Students who join these groups have an insurmountable love for and dedication to music. Many of the musicians have a wealth of talent and have made All-South, All-State, or even All-Eastern.

Many students find these groups as an escape from their daily school life. "Orchestra gives me something to look forward to every day because it's a nice break from the regular class schedule," said Joe Mikish ('07).

Grace Kang ('06) spends countless hours perfecting her playing. She has been playing the violin since she was 8 years old. "I want to become like Jascha Heifetz because he is the best of the century.

Mr. Keleher establishes the rhythm for the orchestra. Conductors are vital to keep an orchestra in unison. Each member of the orchestra has to keep a diligent eye on Mr. Keleher in order to be on the same page.

On a rare occasion, the chorus, orchestra, and band practice together for Hallelujah Chorus and Shalom, two songs that are ritually performed during the winter concert. "Playing Hallelujah Chorus and Shalom is the one time in the year when we get to play something about our faiths and play with the other music groups," said Frank Wagner ('04).

The first violins assiduously play their parts. The first violin section usually plays the melody. However, every section in the orchestra is critical for an outstanding orchestra.
Concentrating on their music, Jacky Chang ('08), Jason Ho ('09), and Frank Wagner ('07) bow away on their instruments. The three consist of the lower sounding section of the chamber orchestra, including the cello, and bass. They provide the foundation for the orchestra. "Orchestra helps me in math because with all the counting to four, I've got it memorized now," said Wagner.

Jennifer Hsu ('06), Kim Barnum ('07), and Mike Long ('08) tune their violins. Tuning is one of the essential components before playing.
The marching band plays songs ranging from "It Don't Mean a Thing if It Ain't Got That Swing" to "Caravan" at various important events. One can often see the marching band play at football games and pep rallies here at Cherry Hill High School East. The members of the marching band give up a portion of their summer so that they can practice. These dedicated individuals also practice on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays in order to perfect their skills.

The color guard members twirl their flags for the audience as they walk down Main Street during the annual Collingswood Parade. The enthusiastic color guard members enjoy displaying the skills they have acquired from hard work and constant practice.

Not only providing a steady beat for the band on their snare drums, the talented drummers also add a unique personality to the music.

Rachel Levin ('09), Hannah Baker ('09) and Cynthia Mills ('09), harmoniously blow into their flutes or clarinet. The three are part of the Freshmen Wind Ensemble which gives first year students a chance to perfect their abilities before joining Symphonic Band or Wind Ensemble.

Brian Deppa ('06), Alex Kim ('08), Eugene Ko ('06), Dan Levinson ('08), and Brian Lafferty ('06), concentrate intently at playing their trumpets. Behind them is the percussion section which is essential in keeping the beat for the band.

From Renaissance music to selections from Mozart's operas to the lastest Broadway hit, every type of song is fair game for the Cherry Hill East Vocal Department. Each choir works to sight read, sing scales, and generally create splendid songs as a cohesive group. Lead expertly by Ms. Ferguson and Mrs. Lausi, Vocal Workshop, Concert Choir, Chansons, and East Singers perform in a plethora of concerts throughout the school year.

Members of Chansons focus on their posture. The young women in this choir learn early on that placement of the entire body is essential to producing a beautiful sound.

Concert Choir: Soham Banerjee, Alexa Battermna, Jonathan Brandman, Emily Buickorod, Manu Colacot, Katrina Comber, Amanda Fabrizio, Christopher Gatz, Brittany Haitzman, Sarah Heche, Andrea Heyman, Jennifer Ho, Abby Keeser, Patrick Kelly, Ethan Kotkin, Deepak Kumar, Nicole Kuzan, Mitchel Lowenthal, Helen Mac, Carolyne McCormack, Lauren Otsch, Ellis Pae, Reena Palaniavel, Angela Ray, Sara Richman, Amanda Romano, Jason Rubinstein, Lindsay Sacks, Lindsay Sanders, Adam Schorr, Jason Seher, Rich Sklar, Jacek Skryzalin, Jennifer Strumpf, Christine Tan, Liz Wasik, Andrew Yao, Ravi Yegnan-Raman, Christine Yen, Monica Yoo, Laurie Lausi (Director)
Members of Chansons sing expressively during the Winter Concert. During the myriad concerts over the course of the year, performers have a chance to show off their skills to a live audience filled with parents and fellow students.

Lisa Sabota ('07), Lee Berger ('07), and Harrison Bannett ('07) stretch during East Singers to prepare for a morning full of song. Because this top choir meets during first period, it is essential for vocalists to wake up their bodies and voices before singing.

Seniors Adriana Natale, Phil Spechler, Bess Myers, Catarina Pien, and Adam Lieberman sing in mixed arrangement of soprano, alto, tenor, and bass voices. This allows each singer to hear how his or her voice plays a role in the song.

Chansons: Natalie Acciani, Aliya Bowles, Caitlin Bridgers, Shaney Campbell, Allison Cogan, Jill Cogan, Haley Cohen, Heather Flaa, Amy Gewurtz, Brittany Haltzman, Sarah Heubel, Rachel Hinlicky, Diane Kim, Audrey Leibowitz, Shelby Lowenstein, Liz Lochkan, Laura Maiman, Laura Matusow, Samantha Mesa, Jessica Reisman, Melanie Roktin, Sara Ryer, Sarah Schwartz, Sami Seigel, Emma Simon, Shanny Shitmut, Kashfia Vohra, Jennifer Wang, Samantha Wolf, Siobahn Young, Cyndi Zuidema, Cindy Ferguson (Director)

While keeping a precise rhythm, members of Casual Harmony perform often comical movements while they sing. This group is known for being particularly theatrical, many times acting out the songs they sing. Such numbers require an extra dose of preparation and a delightful dollop of humor.

Dan Amerman ('06) conveys the message of the vocal selection not only with his voice but with his facial expression. One's countenance is an integral part of vocal quality, helping to form the correct vowel sounds and assist the audience to understand the meaning of the piece.

Casual Harmony: Shams Ahmed, Harrison Bannett, Lee Berger, Rick Chang, Manu Colacot, Erik D’Esterre, Adam Gross, Bryan Gross, Joe Mikitish, Alok Nadig, Nikolas Peterson-Overton, Andrew Roman (officer), Phil Spechler (officer), Marc Tadeja, Director: Cindy Ferguson

Celebrations: Jonathan Branfman, Rebecca Cha, Joanna Cook, Amy Gewuertz, Liz Loshikian, Catarina Pien (officer), Mindy Shipon, Rachel Smith, Lisa Sabota (officer), Ethan Kotkin, Chris Walton, Linda Walton, Director: Cindy Ferguson

Rachel Smith ('07) raises her bells in anticipation of her next ring. In Celebrations, members can play a number of bells in the same song, and mastery of musical rhythms is essential to playing each piece perfectly.

The Madrigals are the most elaborately adorned singers in the vocal department. They dress in Renaissance era garb and sing selections specially written for Madrigal singers.

State Champs!

Led by Laurel Johnson (’06), pictured to the right, the volleyball team cheered as their hard work accumulated into gaining the prestigious title of State Champs. Each spike, set, and dive served as stepping-stones into this proud position. Wearing smiles overflowing with joy, the team huddled together amidst the cheers, tears, and sweat. Volleyball season has transformed a simple game into a unifying experience.

Left: Captain Carolyn Mooney (’06) and teammate stand in anticipation of the serve. Their concentration allows them to perform to the best of their abilities and prevent missed points.

Below: The members of the Starting Varsity team Abbey Greenberg (’06), Ashley McCormick (’06), Laurel Johnson (’06), Carolyn Mooney (’06), and Coach Scott Mooney come together to mentally prepare for the challenge ahead. The unity of the team helps maintain concentration and leads to an effective performance on the court.

Joshua Wirtshafter ('07) focuses on protecting the goal. Although the goalie has a unique job he is a vital part of the team.

Dedication! It's what it takes to be an athlete. Through grueling daily practices in the withering cold or scalding heat, dedicated athletes continually endure the hardships. Dedication brings about a sense of unity among fellow teammates, allowing Cherry Hill East teams a force to be reckoned with.

Through dedication, champions are made. "While it may be very consuming, practices shape my character. Success in sports is dependent on hard work, and success brings victory," says Steven Gao ('06).

Determined to reach the finish line ahead of the pack, Kylie Walford ('09) paces herself. Pacing takes great patience and discipline.

Theresa Cattuna ('07) focuses on the finish line while aiming for a personal best record. Focus is necessary in cross country and separates the winners from the losers.

Sandra Levy ('07) pushes herself to run harder than ever before; losing is no option. In order to be a successful cross country runner, one must possess both stamina and endurance.

Cheerleading

GET IN THE GROOVE

Top: Sarah Giaccio ('07), enthusiastically, draws the crowd into the game through passionate cheering. Despite the harsh weather, the cheerleaders are always full of spirit to do their best.

Right: Elaina Horowitz ('09) delineates one of the most important characteristic of cheerleading: trust. In order to carry out dangerous moves, trust is essential. Standing at a distinctive height, she is able to rile the crowd up to support the home team.

SPIRIT, LET'S HEAR IT!

Top: Jillian McElgunn ('09) and teammates always wear a smile. Being positive is the difference between a win and a loss, directly affecting the performance of the team in critical games.

STRIKING A POSE

The cheerleaders extend their spirit—horizontally. Gravity is no obstacle for their enthusiasm, as the girls cheer the Cougars on to victory.

Daniel Kim ('07), patiently, awaits the snap. Mentally, the players must prepare rigorously in order to explode into action when the play begins. For football players, pain is nothing; winning is everything.

Kevin Lambe ('08) uses agility to pass defenders down the field. Not only strength and agility, but the ability to foresee defenders is crucial for every player.

Kevin Giunta ('07) breaks through the line and turns on the jets. Sprinting faster than defenders is important, but a good player must be able to out maneuver any opponent.

The East defensive line squares up against the West offensive line. Although the offense scores the points, the defense helps ensure the win.

Ling Shu ('97) releases the ball with excellent balance. Among other skills, balance makes the difference between a strike and a gutter ball.

Emily Savoca ('08) positions the ball on the lane while adjusting her body to throw it with enough force. Although not as boring as a physics lesson, positioning is everything.

Brice Petruzzelli ('06) helps lead his team to victory by throwing accurately, powerfully, and skillfully.
Below: Teams members Natalie Acciani ('08) and Rachel Sclarsky ('09) energetically cheer on their teammates. Although already tired from their own race, they contribute more to the meet by encouraging others to swim a bit faster, a bit longer, to the end.

Above: Butterfly is an aggressive stroke which demands strength and flexibility. Lindsay Foster ('09) has mastered this technique after strenuous practice. She carefully controls her breathing, energy, and timing of her strokes to set the pace for success.

"I wouldn't say anything is impossible, I think that everything is possible as long as you put your mind to it and put the work and time into it."
- Michael Phelps (Olympic Gold Medalist)

The boys and girls swim teams join each other to psych each other up for the big meet. Enthusiasm is a large part of every sport that delineates the passion and love of the game.

"Family" is usually a term heard around the house or on holidays, but what about in sports? Actually, it is used quite often. Although swimming is predominantly an individual sport in the water, it takes much more than just individual talent. Despite physical readiness, mental preparation is extremely important in swimming. A great deal of this preparation comes with knowing your team and knowing that they are there to support you. Pep-rallies, spaghetti dinners, and team parties are all a vital part of building a bond with your team. This bond defines the success of the team and its overall morale.

This integrity of the bond of the team creates a family in swimming. Whether in the water or on land, these ambitious athletes are friends and support one another in any way possible. Even at practice, when the drills get so tough, that the swimmers feel like quitting, their fellow swimmers encourage them to finish practice strong in order to be ready for the next meet.

The world of sports is defined by the essence of teamwork, and swimming is just one of many sports in this category. They connect with each other in some way or another; so when it is time to zip through the water, the team, the family is standing in support.

Girls Basketball

There is no doubt that the game of basketball has come a long way. It has been quite some time since the game was played with peach baskets. However, from its inception the specific passion which has fueled its popularity, and helped it mature, is still prevalent today. Basketball is a sport that requires more than individual skill; it requires a sacrifice. Whether embodied physically in getting up every morning and running to keep in peak physical condition, or mentally by intense focus, the sacrifice is a daily activity. Michael Jordan once said, “it’s all for the love of the game... and nothing else.”

Right: Tori Rossi ('06) protects the ball from defenders by using the left side of her body. As she prepares to distribute the ball, her eyes scan the court looking for options.

Left: The team anxiously leans forward watching the most intense parts of the basketball game. They are there to help, as well as to cheer on their teammates to success.

Left: Alaina Chodoff ('07) sets the pace of the race so that she can accelerate at key moments to win the race.

Left: Justin Goldstein ('06) takes his skill to new heights as he pole vaults over the bar. Training in all settings is important in finding balance and coordination in the jump.

Theresa Cattuna ('07) leads the pack. Her endurance allows her to lead, and her determination allows her to finish first.

As their heart rate races, so do their legs, and all else is forgotten. The finish line, only a meters away, goads the athletes toward success.

Daniel Berger ('06) pins his opponent to the ground with all of the strength of his body.

Above: Justin Bonitatis ('06) raises his arm victoriously becoming the most successful wrestler in East history with a career record of 120-25.

WINTER TRACK

The bang of the gun still resonates in the ears of the runners, but their bodies are quickly in motion...
Set... Spike...Saved!

The Boys' Volleyball team members sacrifice their entire beings into the game, never failing to dive for the ball. Throughout the season, the members work hard, learning to cooperate with each other while mastering the skills required for success.

Practicing together, as a team, players bond to dominate their opponents. At the net, they form an impenetrable wall. Even when this wall separates into "setters," "servers," and "spikers," the players continue to encourage each other.

Left: Lee Dosik ('08) positions his body to force the ball forward. Being able to stay composed is essential in winning the match.

Right: Michael DeMedio ('07) rotates his hand into the ball with enough force to send it over the net.

Above: Lee Dosik ('08) elongates his body to reach for the ball. Volleyball requires strength, skill, and flexibility.

Above: Peter Sim ('06) angles his palms outwards to volley the ball forward to teammates ready to spike the game into action.

Above: Martin Zhao ('06) anticipates the ball in his direction. As a key component of the sport, anticipation helps the team function better as a whole.

Above: Andrew Esler ('07) sets the ball up for his teammate, to send it up and over.

Above: Hormatullah Abdali ('07) saves the ball, using intricate form in every move.

Girls Varsity Lacrosse

Brave and Bold...The Best

Jess Faford breaks away from the pack of defenders and leads the way towards the goal. Endurance is essential, but no game is won without dedication. Lacrosse takes a dedication practiced every day, and the results are tangible in the victories of their games.

Kelly Dallas ('07) and Kristen Reynolds ('07) pass the ball up the field, pushing for a goal. Without teamwork, the sport would be nearly impossible to succeed in, but the help of friendly teammates helps the girls rise to the challenge.

Brittany Roesberg ('07) aims for the ball as the team advances up the field. It is up to her to take the ball and distribute to her teammates in order to win the game.

Coach Kovalevich teaches the girls essential technique by demonstration rather than lecture. He has helped guide the team to success, as well as taught the team to learn as a family and work together effectively.
Above: Francis Longo ('07) and Tom King ('08) work together to try and receive pass without being intercepted by defenders. Intricate skill and a tough mentality lead to success without being afraid of loss or of any opponent.

Right: Matthew Patane ('09) and Francis Longo ('07) along with goalie Andrew Iannearelli ('09) guard the goal while trying to move the ball out of their zone. In this sport a good defense leads to a good offense.

Above: Jeffery Stanton ('07) and Matthew Patane ('09) both practice against each other in a scrimmage. This type of practice is essential in learning the strengths and weaknesses of any team.

The Varsity Lacrosse team walks off the field after a long day of practice. Each day new assets are won through practice, and a stronger bond between each team member is forged.
Varsity Softball

Left: Amanda Kaufman ('07) grabs the grounder, as it speeds along the ground. Excellent hand-eye-coordination is difference between an out, or not.

As the pitcher winds up, Kelly Willoth ('07) inches off the base, but quickly returns, making sure not to get caught out.

Above: Stephanie Miller ('09) swings hard at the best pitch thrown at her. Being able to differentiate between good pitches and bad ones are important in connecting with the bat, or wiffing air. Miller puts her best foot forward, and tries to belt it out of the park.

Right: Coach Musumeci helps Abbey Greenberg ('07) understand how to improve her game, and lead the team to victory.

Outfielding is one of the most important factors of a softball team because they are essential in preventing a runner from going home, and stopping a potential loss.
Above: Jon Brangan ('06) nails a shot out into the outfield, during a scrimmage against his own team. Every swing makes his game that much better, and becomes a learning experience about how to get better.

Left: Max Magee ('08) slides into second base, just barely missing the tag. Stealing a base is one of the most difficult, yet exhilarating experiences in baseball.

Right: Mike McNulty ('07) pitches a curve ball straight down the middle. McNulty uses a wide variety of pitches in order to keep the batter guessing.

"The way a team plays as a whole determines its success. You may have the greatest bunch of individual stars in the world, but if they don't play together, the club won't be worth a dime."

~Babe Ruth
Jaimie Watson ('09) rhythmically coordinates her steps with the distance from her jump. With perfect timing the jump can score points for the team.

Elaina Friedman ('08) sinks into her own world as she jogs to warm up before the big race. Using the posture, she concentrates on her breathing and uses her arms to maximize the results. Even though it is only a warm up, she still puts in full effort. Even though track is an individual sport, the runners still have a sharp mind to keep an eye on their opponents.

Remy Ravitz ('08) lunges her front leg over the hurdle forcing her body to follow. Hurdles, like all obstacles in life, take time to overcome; but, with practice, any athlete can master the hurdles. Even though sometimes she falls, true athletes never fail to get up and try again. In the end, the hard work will pay off such that the athlete successfully overcomes his or her ultimate hurdle.

Jessenia Martinez ('09) concentrates upon the long-jump ahead of her. Building momentum as she sprints toward the sand pit, she mentally prepares herself to arch her back, kick her feet forward and jump right in.
Repetition is vital to success. For instance, in order to perfect the jumping position in high jump, athletes repeatedly practice the position to condition his body. In an actual race, the runner must be focused and remember all the lessons learned. This is important to prevent injury. Especially within field events, when heavy objects are used, the students must exercise extreme precaution to avoid injury to self or others.

Shot put is a difficult throwing event because it requires balance, strength, timing and dedication.

Dedicated Coach Malone teaches out of experience to his high jumpers. Throughout his own high school experience he was a leading high jumper for his school. Today, his experience and expertise allow other student jumpers to absorb the necessary information about how to become an excellent jumper.
1) Brett Strauss ('06) uses a smooth technique to send the ball onto the far side of the net. Quick reflexes, as well as a smooth delivery without any studdering is important in the game of tennis.

2) Evan Levine ('06) uses his upper body to react to a serve. He is capable of sending the ball over the net with ease and can oppose any challenge because he is determined.

3) Anticipation is similarly important in winning a match, especially under extreme pressure when the match is on the line. Staying on the tips of the toes, instead of remaining flat-footed determines those players that are prepared, and those who do not love the game.

4) Daniel K's 1 confronts the ball, puts a spin on things. He is able to counteract any opposition. He is also prepared to play under any circumstances.

Whether returning a serve, holding the racket high in triumph, tennis is a sport of great agility and grace which is exemplified in every motion.

Evan Levine ('06) illustrates the necessary coordination and focus which the sport of tennis requires. As his eyes follow the ball into the racket, he must think forward, about how his opponent will react.

Hey you! I can't believe you're leaving East... so sad. But good for you :) Even though we only know each other for 4 or 5 years, I've felt like I've known you forever. The first word that comes to mind when I think about you is CRAZY. Yeah you definitely are. We've had so much fun over the years. From your birthday parties to Six Flags to VCC parties, holiday banquets, snowboarding trips, retreats, free concerts (haha), Seaside Heights, mall, movies, eating, hanging out with the girls, DMZ, and many more. You are one of the few people in my life that really stand out and make life that much more interesting. You will always be my best friend no matter what. I hope you will have a great time in college and don't you ever forget about me. I love you Minhee!

Dear Jamie,

It's hard to believe you're nearly done,
Your high school years were so much fun.
You've been a success in every way,
And have earned your diploma on graduation day.
From the time you were small, you lit up our days,
With your cute little smile and your athletic ways.
You've excelled in your classes, your clubs and your sports,
You're a star in the classroom and on all kinds of courts.
Wherever you go, whatever you do,
You can always count on how much we love you.
No matter the challenge you remain a good sport.
And we're always behind you to give our support,
You're our little monkey from the time you were small,
Now go conquer the world — 'cause you can have it all!

All our love,
Mom, Dad, Jen, and Muffin

The Girls’ Freshman Basketball team also had a great season, with a final record of 18-5. One focus was on Bolchikoff, who won his 300th game on February 8 against Holy Spirit. The 18 wins and .783 winning percentage were the best since the 1988-89 season and is only the fifth time a freshman team has won at least 18 games.

Forever Young

May God bless and keep you always
May your wishes all come true
May you always do for others
And let them do for you
May you build a ladder to the stars
And climb on every rung
May you stay forever young

May you grow up to be righteous
May you grow up to be true
May you always know the truth
And see the light surrounding you
May you always be courageous
Stand upright and strong
May you stay forever young

May your hands always stay busy
May your feet always be swift
May you have a strong foundation
When the winds of change shift
May your heart always be joyful
May your song always be sung
May you stay forever young

It's hard to come to terms with the fact that my baby sister is actually graduating from high school...

Lindsay, I want you to know how truly proud I am of you and all of your accomplishments not just in the past four years but throughout the course of your entire life.

Your true dedication to everything and everyone in your life has left a lasting impact both on me and all those around you.

More so than a sister, you've become my best friend, and I'm so thankful to have spent my childhood growing and learning with you. The memories we have formed together will stick with me forever, and I can't imagine sharing them with anybody else.

I know you have great things waiting for you in your future, and I look forward to experiencing them with you, each step of the way.

I love you.

ROSES ARE RED, VIOLETS ARE BLUE......NO, TOO COMMON.

HOW MUCH DO I (WE) LOVE THEE?......NO, IT DOESN'T EXPRESS THE DEPTH AND BREADTH OF OUR LOVE.

IT SEEMS ORIGINALITY HAS TO REIGN, EVEN IF IT DOESN'T RHYME.

OUR DEAR MUNCHKIN,

FROM THE MOMENT ALL 5 POUNDS 13 OUNCES OF YOU ENTERED THIS WORLD ON SUNDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1987, LIFE HAS STOOD STILL AND MOVED FORWARD AT THE SPEED OF LIGHT, ALL AT THE SAME TIME. WE HOPE IT SLOWS DOWN FOR YOU, SO YOU CAN ENJOY ALL THE JOY AND BEAUTY LIFE HAS TO OFFER. YET, MAY THE BAD TIMES PASS BY QUICKLY, GIVING YOU JUST ENOUGH TIME TO LEARN FROM THEM.

WE LOVE YOU MORE THAN YOU WILL EVER KNOW...UNLESS YOU HAVE KIDS OF YOUR OWN!

LOVE,

Sometimes, when parents come home from work and sit down for dinner, they have nothing else to talk about except work. Many can relate to this scenario at the dinner table. Clearly, today, it is difficult for working-parents to become involved, wholly, in the daily lives of their children at school. Nevertheless, there are always still other parents who do find the time to interact with their children, making their school lives much better. Kathy Haughwout exemplified this commitment to the schools and the community.

Since her initial participation in the East PTA twenty-three years ago, she put her heart and soul into her work. She served as the President of Johnson PTA, the President of Bret Harte PTA, the two-time President of Cherry Hill East Home & School Association, the Vice-President of Heritage & Beck, the Chairperson of Cherry Hill Zone PTA, and a Board of Education member. Suffice it to say, Mrs. Haughwout was dedicated to the children of Cherry Hill, making an outstanding impact on the community.

However, Kathy was more than a strong, enthusiastic leader in the Cherry Hill School District. In addition to devoting much time and thought to volunteering, she was a caring friend to other volunteers and a teacher to the children and students who appreciated her presence in the classrooms and the schools. She was not only a loving mother to her own children and to all the children in the community, but also a sister to other mothers, for she showed them how to love better.

_We, her family at Cherry Hill East, will truly miss her._
Hurricanes ravage the Gulf Coast region in the fall of 2005, posing an unprecedented test of the United States federal emergency response efforts. Hundreds of lives are lost and thousands are left homeless in the wake of Category 4 Hurricane Katrina, followed by Rita and Wilma. The tragedy spurs contributions of money, talents, homes, food and more in an attempt to raise spirits and rebuild the area.

August

25 Hurricane Katrina strikes Florida.
28 Mandatory evacuation of both New Orleans and Mississippi is ordered as Katrina becomes a Category 5 storm in the Gulf of Mexico.
29 Downgraded to a Category 4 storm, Katrina hits land. 1.3 million homes and businesses lose electricity in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. 30 levees are breached, flooding New Orleans and leaving 100,000 people stranded. After slow government response, civil unrest and looting begins.
31 President Bush surveys the damage.

September

1 30,000 National Guard troops are deployed. Gas prices spike to as high as $5 per gallon.
2 President Bush visits Louisiana and signs a $10.5 billion relief bill. Nearly 154,000 evacuees arrive in Texas.
4 The New Orleans Superdome is evacuated.
6 President Bush and Congress pledge to investigate the flawed disaster response.
9 Government-issued debit cards are distributed to evacuees. The program fails and is ended days later.
12 Michael Brown, head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, resigns. Flooding is down to 50 percent in New Orleans.
14 New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin announces a phased repopulation plan.
15 New Orleans begins to reopen. Katrina is named the most destructive hurricane in U.S. history.
20 Louisiana Governor Kathleen Blanco declares a state of emergency as Hurricane Rita strengthens off the coast.
22 Rita hits the Louisiana coast and heads for Texas.
23 Thousands evacuate eastern Texas and the 9th Ward of New Orleans floods once again after levees are overrun.

October

24 Hurricane Wilma hits southwest Florida.

RISING FROM THE STORMS

Louisiana Governor Kathleen Blanco, President Bush and New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin survey the damage in New Orleans.

Thousands of Louisiana evacuees receive shelter and medical care in the Astrodome in Houston, Texas.

Mary animals left behind during evacuation are rescued and given shelter or reunited with their owners.

Homes across the country are opened to families left homeless in the wake of Hurricane Katrina.

Thousands of volunteers help Habitat for Humanity rebuild homes in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Three months after Katrina strikes, the first New Orleans public school reopens on November 28.
