eidolon 1970
cherry hill high school east
By depicting a collection of meaningful images EIDOLON seeks to represent the graduating class. EIDOLON is images, images which reflect moods, thoughts, and ideals characterizing the people who experience them. The book wishes to record and give meaning to these shapes, to communicate and explain them. With this publication the life of EIDOLON begins; into this volume of images we, the staff of 1970, inject ourselves. To the succeeding classes of East we consign the opportunity and responsibility to portray themselves and their ideas through the flexible meaning of EIDOLON.

Life is a continuum of images and experiences which the mind may or may not relate and categorize. Yet there is no pre-established order in which the images of living occur and no mode in which they appear to man. It is his individual task to give the chaotic universe an arrangement. Man’s understanding of himself and his world is intimately involved with his discrimination of experience—the choice of that which he views as significant and that which he rejects as meaningless.

We, the class of ’70, are graduating at the end of a decade and the commencement of a new one. Internationally, the past ten years have been fraught with anguish, achievement, idealism, and discovery, and we have been exposed to the images of the “sweep of the sixties” through the mass media and through personal involvement. With our scope of perception thus enlarged, our task of giving order to the chaos we perceive is complicated a thousand-fold.

EIDOLON 1970 stands as precisely that—images representing the substantive conditions and facts of the past decade. To order and give meaning to these images is at once the privilege and responsibility of each of us.
Certainly it is a kaleidoscope of personal images that mingle colorfully in the memory of each senior—made of the "stuff" of our four years at East: the constant drone in the cafeteria, a test—passed or failed, her smile, the way the shadows grew in after-school corridors.

Growth and change have been synonymous with the class of '70. As East has grown, so has our sensitivity to the perplexing issues of a changing world. Yet the future pulls, standing in the fullness of its limitless possibility—at once enticingly warm with encouragement, while threateningly awesome in the ever-present risk that genuine involvement demands. Straddling two worlds then, we leave you an image and the beginning of many traditions which you must evaluate for yourselves.

As we dedicate this first EIDOLON to you, the future graduates, we hope that you will, in the words of Dylan Thomas, "advance for as long as forever is."
A passive breeze and burning sun
a single day of so many yet
a moment is captured, held crystalized in its passing.
And there is a feeling almost of reverence that the world is beautiful to know.
That day is forever mirrored in my mind—
to be dusted off in the future;
for a more distant, cloudy time.

Ilene Bilenky
You may give them your love but not your thoughts
For they have their own thoughts.
You may house their bodies but not their souls,
For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams.
You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you.
For life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday.
You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent forth.
The archer sees the mark upon the path of the infinite, and He bends you with His might that His arrows may go swift and far.
Let your bending in the archer’s hand be for gladness;
For even as He loves the arrow that flies, so He loves also the bow that is stable.

Kahlil Gibran
Dear Mr. DiBart:

I was going to write this sooner, but for some reason, it was put off. I just wanted to say a few things to you. You see, I didn't expect you to be leaving so soon — but I imagine you can still read what I'm writing.

I want to thank you for making East what it is — the best school in New Jersey. You kind of showed us the way and now we'll all try and live up to the standards you've set.

There's a spirit of closeness evolving in our school and you are its creator. Everytime that smile brightened the halls, or that voice was heard bellowing from the boys' room, we knew we had a job to do.

You can really be proud of us. We're going to keep on going until we hit the top. Then you can look back and say, "I started that!"

We'll miss you, but that's only 'cause we're selfish. We know how much better it is for you now and that you are well taken care of. Thank you.

A student
Respected by colleagues and students for his fine sense of humor, judgment, genuine interest in school and athletics.

MEMORIAL DEDICATION DECEMBER 22, 1969

A friend of students and colleagues who exemplified good sportsmanship on and off the field.

ADMINISTRATION
AND FACULTY
A professor is not a judge, a priest, or a sea captain; he does not have the right to perform marriages on the high seas of audio-visual aides and close reasoning. But he is more than an intercom between student and fact; he can be a stranger to love for his students, but not to a passion for his subject; he is a student himself; his pride is lively. The role partakes of a certain heft and control. There is power to make decisions, power to abstain, power to bewilder, promote, hold back, adjust, and give mercy; power, an investment of pride, a risk of shame.*
To the Class of 1970 —

It is with a mixture of sadness and joy that I now charge you with greater obligations toward attaining the next step in the sequential ladder of life’s goals.

During the past four years your concerns have been our mutual concern and through this interest, the faculty, student body and staff have molded foundations of challenge for the uncertainties of the future.

Do not wait too long in accepting and meeting the challenge or per chance the waiting may be the challenge.

Yours is the choice - yours is the acceptance of the many paths in life’s venture. Whichever one you choose, travel it in the manner that will be of satisfactory enjoyment to you, your family and those of us who have the greatest respect for you.

ADMINISTRATION

John Clowar, Assistant Principal

Anthony Cost, Assistant Principal

With little more than ideals, the architect’s renderings of a physical plant “soon” to be concluded, and the manifold responsibilities of creating a new school with its own identity, you began in earnest.
Paul Dare, Assistant Principal

John Dotti, Administrative Assistant

Ordering successfully what so often seems to be the mutually exclusive demands of a complaining parent; an incensed faculty member; a concerned student; a disgruntled custodial staff that has just realized that, "C Wing is flooded!"

For this — and for so much more — we thank you.

Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace, proud of our ancient heritage—and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this nation has always been committed, and to which we are committed today at home and around the world.*

This generation of Americans has had enough—of war and hate and oppression. We shall be prepared if others wish it. We shall be alert to try to stop it. But we shall do our part to help to build a world of peace, where the weak are safe and the strong are just. We are not helpless before that task or hopeless of its success. Confident and unafraid, we labor on ... toward a strategy of peace.

All of the arts, poetry, music, ritual, the visible arts, the theatre, must singly and together create the most comprehensive art of all, a humanized society, and its masterpiece, free man.
From discordant beginnings, the Music Department at East has grown into an outstanding facet of the school community. A standard of excellence has been established by ensembles and individuals who have earned recognition and honor in statewide competition. The daily slide down the ramp to the music suite, the concert B flat scale, many lost Saturdays, a wild-eyed fanatic, and a hot uniform are but a glimpse of a rich, warm experience. A love that was lugged home in a black case, endless study halls spent in solitary practice in a 10x6 box, the pressure of auditions, indignation and final triumph are concrete signs of an inward devotion. The good times were for free.

The tapping of a baton and the tones of the initial chord sound the beginnings of rehearsal. In searching for just the right effect, experimentation and repeated practice lead gradually to the union of diverse musical elements. With only a few days until concert, final rehearsals echo in the vast auditorium. The banality of repetition and continued practice yields the ultimate performance...the flustered backstage commotion and the hushed, dignified entry. Singers teeter on narrow risers in red and white robes, and voices blend into the inspiration of the “Hallelujah Chorus”.

SKILL!
The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena—whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood...who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions—and spends himself in a worthy cause—who at best if he wins knows the thrills of high achievement—and if he fails while daring greatly—so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory or defeat.*

FEATURES
In such a fantastic and dangerous world—we will not find answers in old dogmas, by repeating outworn slogans, or fighting on ancient battlegrounds against fading enemies long after the real struggle has moved on. We ourselves must change to master change. We must rethink all our old ideas and beliefs before they capture and destroy us....America must look to its young people, the children of time and change; and we look to that privileged minority of educated men who are the students of America.*

"...may I graduate well and earn honors in Life."

Congratulations to you and to each of your classmates for whom Graduation Day is a very special occasion.

We wish you success and happiness in the years ahead.

As you seek new goals and conquer the problems you will face perhaps you may benefit in sharing a motto which has helped guide us since 1873:

Inveniemus viam aut faciemus ...

Do you work for Milby Construction Co.?
I think Mr. Moulder should be one of those Motor Vehicle Inspectors...
Ya know, I think Mr. Dante has a free trip to the moon...
Sustaination by pretzels and orange juice and donuts and cupcakes and pepsi and...
Well how's it feel to be one of the upper echelon?
Personal appreciation is extended to Homeroom teachers for allowing our irregular appearances; to the second floor math teachers for accepting the daily odor of chicken soup, wandering students and publication chaos.

Organization is the root of all evil
Did anyone ever tell you that you're obnoxious
Well you ain't got no couth
We have now become aware of the possibility of arranging the entire human environment as a work of art, as a teaching machine designed to maximize perception and to make everyday learning a process of discovery. Application of this knowledge would be the equivalent of a thermostat controlling room temperature. It would seem only reasonable to extend such controls to all the sensory thresholds of our being. We have no reason to be grateful to those who juggle these thresholds in the name of haphazard innovation.*
The first photographs of the incredibly small fibers and knobs which link together the nervous system, were announced by the University of California bio-engineers. Taken with a scanning electron microscope, this photograph magnifies the fibers 5,000 times life size. 11/13/69

Harvard University researchers announced 11/22/69 that they have successfully isolated a single gene. This electron microscope photograph magnifies the gene 79,300 times.
People don’t know what they don’t see, I guess. There’s no other way of explaining it, not that I can see. Out of sight, out of mind. You can’t go telling them anything. No sir, I don’t believe you can. They’re used to shutting their eyes on you, but if you get them to stop and take a look around, then if they’re the least bit partial to begin with, they’ll possibly come over to your side.*
So let us be blind to our differences, but let us also direct our attention to our common interests and to the means by which those differences can be resolved. And if we cannot end now our differences, at least we can help make the world safe for diversity. For in the final analysis our most basic common link is that we all inhabit the planet. We all breathe the same air. We all cherish our children's future. And we are all mortal.*
