Were we once freshmen? As difficult as it is to comprehend, the joys of being a senior were once the agonies of being a freshman. We awoke that first morning wondering what to expect. Would we catch our buses on time? How would we find our way around that huge place? We went to the freshman orientation during the summer, but it did little to quell our anxieties about East. Frightened as we were, our fears were subdued when we grabbed our new notebooks, put on our fall clothes, and looked forward to seeing our friends from Beck and Heritage. Some of us started the day at 8:00 with the upperclassmen, while the rest had late schedule and began the day after second period. On that first day, we arrived in the cafeteria, received our schedules, and started our journey through East. “Where’s B-wing? Why can’t I get past C-wing intersection?” We were very confused on that opening day, but as each period passed, we got used to

East and became more confident about our surroundings. However, just when the frenzied pace of the start of the year was ending, Spirit Week was upon us. More craziness!!! Tricycle races, tug of wars, and pie eating contests captured our imagination and we soon became caught up with Spirit Week fever. We selected a preppy theme and decorated the halls accordingly. Although the seniors always won at the end of the week and tradition was against us, we tried our hardest to win. On the final day, we wore red and white while we attempted to out-yell the other classes at the pep rally. It was during this time that we started to have pride in our class. We were no longer from Beck or Heritage; we were from East! After the amazing Spirit Week festivities, our class elections were held and we chose Warren Moliken as president, Jenny Mitchell as vice president, Sue Cornille as secretary, and Alicia Jacobsen as treasurer. We placed our faith in them because we wanted the Class of '86 to be the best that every entered East. As fall slipped into winter, we wore our preppy sweaters and dock sides (alligators and all). We were engrossed in MTV and loved to watch Dynasty on Wednesday and Cheers on Thursday. In school, we joined clubs, marching band, and sports. We struggled through proofs in Geometry, read The Odyssey and Romeo and Juliet in English, and somehow managed to get through QPS and Environmental Geology and Management. Those who were on early schedule had the same benefits as upperclassmen, while those with late schedule found it a mixed blessing. We could sleep late, but getting out at 4:10 meant missing club meetings as well as General Hospital. The year progressed and after winter break we looked forward to warmer weather. However, our hopes were dashed when a February storm hit us with two feet of snow. We missed school that Friday, but made it back that following Monday to collect our Valentine Day carnations. When spring finally arrived we welcomed the warm temperatures and patiently awaited summer vacation. We cheered the first Knowledge Bowl team on to victory and celebrated the Sixers NBA championship. Music influenced us as we listened to Michael Jackson and ripped our sweatshirts to achieve that perfect Flashdance look. Our year ended with a trip to Great Adventure and the promise of a happy summer. We never thought that we would make it through, but we did. Freshman year was over and we were ready to accept our place among the upperclassmen.
We began sophomore year with increased experience and self-confidence. No more getting lost. No more late schedule for the freshmen. No longer were we lowly freshmen. More changes. We elected Warren Moliken to be class president, Jenny Mitchell vice-president, Sue Cornille secretary, and Lou Haenei treasurer. We also got a new, dynamic class advisor, Mr. Vivone. Ready for our second Spirit Week, we chose our theme “A Visit to Walt Disney World.” We placed third after the outdoor pep rally was over, but first at the Homecoming Game with our Disney float. We were a class of firsts with much to be proud of: first to have a class newsletter, class caps, and a bulletin board. We were a class of doers—especially in fundraising with the Mother’s Day plant sale and carwashes. We played the freshmen in the Volleyball Marathon. Attended the Valentine’s Day Dance. We continued to listen to Michael Jackson and were amazed as we watched him dance with monsters in the ten minute “Thriller” video. We also listened to Duran Duran and the Culture Club and wondered why Boy George wore so much make-up. We listened to the news and were saddened by the loss of 250 Marines in Lebanon. Soon after, President Reagan ordered troops into Grenada and we wondered what the world would have in store for us after graduation. Could we change things? At the movies we saw “Risky Business” (from which we learned to say “what the heck”) and “The Return of the Jedi.” On television, we discovered new shows like “Family Ties” and stayed with old favorites “Saturday Night Live”, “Dallas”, “Hill Street Blues”. and of course, soap operas. At East, the cast of the fall play “American Jubilee” took Hawaii by storm. Marching Band descended on Florida. We went on exchange programs to France, Spain, and Germany. Academically, we took driver's ed. in Health and had our first taste of honors classes. (All that work!) We laughed and learned in Mr. Carr's sophomore English class. We moaned over Moby Dick. Spent Saturdays in the library working on our first term papers. (Some of us learned how not to do a research paper the hard way.) Missed out on sleep and lunch on science lab days. Nearly burned our fingers figuring out how to turn on a bunsen burner in Chemistry. (Ouch!) Ordered our class rings. Big Brother was watching us. It was 1984, year of Risky Business glasses, Cabbage Patch Dolls, and breakdancing. We shuddered to watch The Day After on TV. Could the future be bleak for us? We witnessed the arrival of armed security guards at East. Made Barnum a great success. Attended the Sophomore Cotillion and set our sights higher for the Junior Prom.

Junior year began with great optimism. We had enjoyed our first two years at East and the final half of our stay promised to be even better. After a relaxing summer, we headed back to school and were faced with the fun, but difficult task of preparing for Spirit Week. Our theme was "New York, New York" and we won first place in hall decoration after transforming Cafeteria I into a city street. We did not win the final competition, however, but looked forward to senior year when we would surely take the prize. In the following weeks, the student body took part in a contest sponsored by WMMR. In order to receive a special concert from the Hooters and funds for our library, we showed our spirit by writing "Hooters-93.3 WMMR CHHSE" on thousands of slips of paper. Although East was in the running, we lost by a close margin of "Hoosters Cards" and suffered writers' cramp for months afterwards. Fashion underwent a change from the conservative looks of years past. The girls' attire consisted of big shirts and sweaters, fluorescent clothes, and cropped jeans, while the boys sported shaker knits and Hawaiian shorts. In our spare time, we tested our knowledge by playing Trivial Pursuit and watched MTV constantly. We went to the movies to see Purple Rain and laughed all the way through Ghostbusters. The females became "Material Girls" and imitated Madonna by wearing fake, tacky jewelry, large prints, and moussed hair. Back at East, things were a little more serious as we were swamped with work. We suffered through the fruit fly experiment in Molecular Biology and ended up faking our data anyway. In English we read The Canterbury Tales and Macbeth and struggled through the many papers that were assigned. Though we had lots of homework, we still managed to remain one of the most active classes at East. Under the leadership of President Warren Moliken, Vice President Jenny Mitchell, Secretary Tracy Steele, and Treasurer Steve Hodges, we organized a computer dance and a clothing drive for the victims of the MOVE disaster in Philadelphia. Our hard work paid off during homecoming when, once again, we captured first place with our float "Humpty Dumpty." Our newsletter Soph Stuff was transformed into Junior Jive and in December, when it was finally our turn to sell candy canes, we reached an all time East high with 9,000 sales. We witnessed the re-election of President Reagan and looked forward to the day when we could have a say in the voting. The fall play was Barefoot in the Park and we were part of the large turnout that the performances received. Soon, before we knew it, 1984 and the age of "Big Brother" was over as we proceeded into 1985. We were welcomed into the new year with freezing weather in January and on one fateful day, new records were set as the temperature reached eight degrees below zero. We continued to be busy as we took (and usually passed) our drivers tests. We also began to think about college and had to struggle through the SAT's and Achievements. The future after high school was coming closer and we realized that we had to start planning for it. During the spring, we saw Pippin and said a final goodbye to the performing seniors. The year's activities came to an end when one of our most important events finally arrived; the Junior Prom. Months of shopping for gowns, coordinating tuxes, and securing arrangements culminated at the Hyatt in May. The theme was Phil Collins' "One More Night" and it was the largest prom in East's history with an attendance of 800 people. With memories of the elegant evening still intact, our year was drawing to a close and we were very excited about the prospect of becoming seniors.

Class History
Well, we finally made it! Seniors! We were now the ones with options and privileges. We had first choice at parking stickers. The freshmen respected us. Our pictures were on the hall of fame bulletin board. We were editors-in-chief, first chair orchestra members, and varsity players. What a change from freshman year! We had finally made it to senior year and we love it! During the summer, we saw Pee Wee's Big Adventure and Back to the Future. We also attended, listened to, or watched on television the famine relief concert, Live Aid. Many of our favorite rock stars performed and we suddenly had the 80's version of Woodstock. The fun times of the summer carried over into September as we were determined to make senior year the best ever. When we gathered into the auditorium on the first day of school, we listened to Mr. Collins and Mr. Cost speak about pride and senior spirit. After the assembly, we knew exactly how to demonstrate our energy, talent, and senior supremacy; win Spirit Week. Working with president, Jenny Mitchell; vice president, Mike Hassiman; secretary, David Glass; and treasurer, David Wilcox, we chose M*A*S*H* (4086) as our theme. We put forth our best effort by finding hidden cougars, participating in the tug of war, and turning Cafeteria II into a boot camp. However, this Spirit Week was a little different as the festivities were interrupted by Hurricane Gloria. When she rolled into the area, we taped our windows, got out our flashlights, and feared the worst. We were given a day off because of the storm's predicted intensity, but there was hardly any damage and Gloria turned out to be nothing but a big rainstorm. When we went back to school the following Monday, we resumed Spirit Week and ultimately won the final contest. Finally, our hard work paid off and we were the champs! Unfortunately, our year was not all fun and games. Our new positions in music, drama, and sports brought added responsibilities. We had college essays to write and applications to fill out. Many of us held part time jobs and worked after school. These factors along with our demanding schedule of homework made us very busy. We often needed a break and when there was time, we watched new shows such as Moonlighting and The Twilight Zone. Miami Vice started out as a television program and ended up influencing dress and music. We witnessed the birth of New Coke and Cherry Coke, but some of us preferred the old favorites, Pepsi and Coke Classic. In the Cherry Hill and Echelon Malls, we saw the arrival of the new food courts. Walking through one was a dieter's nightmare as tacos, ice cream, and burgers appeared everywhere. On the more serious side, world events caught our attention. We mourned the death of hockey hero Pelle Lindbergh and also learned a valuable lesson. Terrorism ran rampant throughout the world and we were shocked and outraged. Many of us were afraid of travelling and thought of ways to solve this international problem. In Mexico, there were two devastating earthquakes in one week and we sent our hearts out to the Mexican people. We also witnessed the spread of the deadly disease AIDS. Many people succumbed to it. We hoped for a cure and a better understanding to help end the disease. In January, while we were in school, Mr. Cost announced over the loudspeaker that the Space Shuttle Challenger had exploded after take-off. Only after we saw the horrifying event on television did we fully comprehend the tragedy. We mourned with the nation and the families of the astronauts. Because one of the crew members was the first teacher in space, we hoped that the program would continue and that we would never give up the exploration of space travel. However turbulent the events during '85 and '86, we often had to detach ourselves from world news and concentrate on school work. In English, we read Hamlet and Crime and Punishment. We took Calculus, Trig, and Psychology and panicked over Physics. We practically lived at Guidance while frantically submitting applications and looking into scholarships. In the fall, we laughed with the play Charley's Aunt and chuckled over the idea of a man dressing up as a woman and fooling the other characters. We listened to the Morning Zoo on WMMR and liked Sting and Wham. The Class of '86 produced a calendar with twelve guys posing for each month and it was an immediate success with the girls. In March, we attended Funny Girl and enjoyed the wonderful singing, dancing, and acting. We loved our benefits such as our own senior cut day and the opportunity to drive to and from school. In the spring, our days at East began to culminate and we were excited at the promise of many special events and happenings. We received acceptances from colleges, secured jobs for after graduation, made career choices, and planned for the future. In April, we enjoyed another senior privilege when we went to Florida for our class trip. We got suntans, visited Epcot Center, saw Mickey, and Most importantly, were the envy of the underclassmen. Our next big event was the senior prom held on June 5 at Bratz. We danced the night away in our gowns and tuxes and sadly realized that it was our last activity as the Class of '86. After the prom, we took our finals and prepared for our big day: graduation. As parents, friends, and alumni watched, we proudly assembled on the field and took our turns walking to the podium to receive our diplomas. Afterwards, we signed yearbooks and said a last goodbye to friends and teachers. Although we were happy and excited to have reached graduation day, we were saddened by the prospect of leaving. Our futures began that day and even though we promised to keep in touch, we would never be together again as a group. We missed proms, candy canes, lunch, and even cut slips and tests. During our four years at East, our Class of '86, with the help of advisor John Vivone and principal Ed Collins, achieved more than any other class and earned the respect of everyone. As a group we matured, grew, learned, and prepared for life after high school. Although we had to say a bittersweet goodbye to East, we will never forget the good, bad, or the wonderful memories we all shared.

To the Class of 1986

Four years ago you entered East just like so many freshman classes before you. You were glad finally to be in high school but the size of the school and the number of students caused a little concern even among the bravest members of the Class of 1986. But you soon adjusted to life at East and by the time your first Spirit Week was over you were ready for anything East had to offer.

And now, four years later, you are about to leave East and again like so many senior classes before you, you have mixed emotions. The prospect of freedom brings joy yet there is a feeling of sadness for what you are leaving behind. Four years is not such a long time but so much has happened during those years. You have grown and learned much. You have accepted new challenges and your experiences have helped you gain a better understanding of yourself and of others. You have made many new friends with whom you could share your hopes and dreams for the future. Now all of that must be left behind - but never forgotten, for memories can be enjoyed for a lifetime.

Yes, East has had a tremendous influence upon your life and the Class of 1986 has had an impact upon East. As you pass through the corridors for the last time, you can do so with a feeling of pride, for the Class of 1986 has established a standard of excellence in all facets of school life that will serve as a model for future classes.

Now as you stand in future's doorway, about to embark on a new phase of your life, I hope that your years at East have enriched your life and prepared you well for what lies ahead. On behalf of the staff, I congratulate you upon your graduation from Cherry Hill High School East. May your future be happy, healthy, and prosperous and may each of you achieve the fulfillment of all your hopes and dreams.

Sincerely,

Anthony R. Cost
Principal
TO THE CLASS OF 1986:

I would like to take this opportunity to express the pleasure I have shared with you, both as student and friend, during the past four years.

The years since you entered Cherry Hill High School East have gone by quickly. When we came together for the first time in September of 1982, we were each new to East. During the past four years we have learned and grown together. I have watched you like a proud parent watches his children and derived great pleasure from your many accomplishments.

Scholastically, academically, socially and in the realm of activities, you have been successful. The achievements that you leave behind as the Class of 1986 will be recorded in the development of Cherry Hill High School East.

The education and experiences you received at Cherry Hill East will serve you well as each of you embark upon a new and exciting phase of your life. I will begin a new phase in mine as the experiences I have shared with you will serve me well in welcoming new classes to Cherry Hill High School East.

I wish you health and happiness in the years to come and hope that you are successful in all your endeavors.

Sincerely,

Edward H. Collins
Assistant Principal

"First-Place" awards and elegant proms; class newsletters and student spotlights; comradery and spirit...this is the embodiment of the Class of 1986. A Class that claims the greatest concentration of athletes, musicians, and performers; to have broken all Candy Cane sales during the Holidays and concession sales at the football and basketball games, too; a Class to have the largest proms in the school's history; and to have its very own Class Seal ... all this is '86.

Surely, then, what better way to perpetuate '86's greatness than with a class gift to the school, the "Cougar Statue," symbol of the "Home of Champions."

Therefore, it truly gives me overwhelming pride to introduce to you the most phenomenal collection of young men and women I have ever known ... "my class,"

The Junior Miss Competition, a program which recognizes, encourages, and rewards excellence in high school students, is open to all senior girls who are United States citizens. From the group of applicants, finalists are chosen for the schoolwide competition. The judging is based on five categories: creative and performing arts, for which the girls display talent as well as originality in a ninety second presentation; scholastic achievement, where awards, transcripts, and class rank are reviewed; a personal interview, where judges look for values, intelligence, personality, and clarity of expression; physical fitness which demonstrates the girls' coordination, agility, and posture; and poise and appearance, where grace and carriage in formal wear is essential. Each school advances to the county competition. Those who are victorious earn a place among the state finalists.

This year's representative from East is Maureen Shields. Congratulations and good luck in ensuing contests.

John Gold was selected for the NATIONAL ACHIEVEMENT SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM for Outstanding Negro students.
Cum Laude Society

The Cum Laude Society is a nationally recognized Academic Honors Society composed of the top 15% of the senior class.

This year’s members are:
The Boys' and Girls' State programs, sponsored by the American Legion, promote good citizenship. These programs provide interesting opportunities to study government and the political system on local, state, and national levels. During a week in June after the completion of junior year, the delegates representing East stayed at Rider College in Lawrenceville, New Jersey to form a miniature government. In running for elected offices, the delegates became increasingly aware of the citizens' duties and the workings of the government.

After expressing an interest in the program, prospective delegates had to be nominated by faculty members before being considered. After an interview conducted at the American Legion Post in Cherry Hill, the list was finally narrowed down. Chosen on the basis of interest in government, extracurricular and scholastic activities, the delegates arrived at Rider College (Girls' State was held before Boys' State) for a week of exciting activity. All returned home with new friends and greater knowledge of government and citizenship.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' STATE

The Garden State Scholarship Program awards a grant of $1000 a year to students who chose to attend college in New Jersey. The recipients are selected based on their SAT scores, class rank, and nomination from their high school. The following are East's Garden State Scholars: Arthur Ash, Alan Aupperle, Karen Barr, Lori Bassman, Craig Berenson, Pratima Bhoj, Jamie Bluth, Paul Borgese, Andrew Brandt, Julie Burns, Andrea Caliri, Karen Chai, Nancy Choi, Kenneth Clair, Vinay Desai, Joseph Dobrenski, Jeffrey Engelman, Caren Freeman, David Glass, Shanah Glick, Munna Gupta, Anita Gwal, Ken Hirschman, Kim Kaplan, Stephanie Katten, Jennifer Kim, Mimi Kim, Alyssa Kinker, Paul Kleidermacher, Andrew Kupersmit, Marc Lemberg, Marnie Levin, Suzanne Malitz, Arnold May, Erica Mintzer, Anthony Miscioscia, Warren Moliken, Chi Park, Grace Park, Joel Recht, Mark Rekant, Jodi Schwartz, Maureen Shields, Leslie Shropshire, Thomas Slack, Andrea Snyder, Allen Thomas, Sujatha Varadarajan, Jeffrey Wallack, Heidi Weinroth, Andrew Wille, Stephanie Winitzky, Gail Young.

Anthony Miscioscia and Shanah Glick participated in the JFK Memorial Hospital Scholars Program. This is a year-long program designed to give students interested in medical careers exposure to various aspects of medicine.

The Governor's School Program, sponsored by Governor Thomas Kean, selects New Jersey students to participate in prestigious enrichment seminars during the summer of their senior year. Students are selected by grades, SAT scores, essays, and nominations. The 1985 participants: Sujatha Varadarajan and Chi Park, The Governor's School of Public Issues; Marc Lemberg and Mike Milner, The Governor's School for The Arts; and Paul Kleidermacher, The Governor's School of Science.

Shanah Glick was one of 43 students in the state selected to participate in the New Jersey Scholars Program. The Scholars Program, held last summer at the Lawrenceville Preparatory School, focused on Middle Eastern Studies.
Junior Prom
May 10, 1985
Senior Prom
June 5, 1986
Dating continues throughout high school until, at a prearranged time, young humans participate in a sort of ultimate date called the "Senior Prom." The importance of the Prom to dating humans can hardly be overstated, and the preparations occupy much of their time and attention. First a committee is appointed whose responsibility it is to find a hotel or banquet hall that — for some odd and unknown reason — willingly consents to being descended upon by 1000 humans and 2000 flash bulbs at a specified time in the future.
Once this task is completed, the committee sets its mind to selecting a theme for the evening. They look for something elegant and appropriate, something that captures the essence of the evening as humans say. After the committee finally decides on a theme — say "Sparkling Toxic Wastes" — they search for a theme song which, inevitably, nobody dressed in the Ritual Prom Costume can dance to. (See paragraph 3)

The Prom committee’s work is now finished and the dating humans’ work begins. A dating human has two basic jobs: finding the perfect date and renting the perfect car. Most humans start planning for their Prom in freshman year, scouting for possible dates at odd moments during the day. When “The Year” actually arrives, the search is intensified. Lists are made and updated every week.
All humans dream of going to the Prom with someone who rates as “Perfect Date” on their list, but plans are always made for the emergency situation.
They have several possibilities for “Acceptable but Failing to Make an Impression on Friends Date” and then, there is the “Desperation Date.” But perhaps even a worse fate than going to the Prom with a Desperation Date is arriving in the wrong car. Having Mom drive the young couple to the front door of the restaurant in the family station wagon with the Great Adventure bumper sticker on the dented rear fender is a definite taboo. In such a case, the young couple is dropped off around the corner. They non-chalanceely tell their friends that the limo was too big to fit in the driveway.

The humans, of course, must dress differently for the Prom than for normal dates. Their elaborate ceremonial costumes are rather expensive. Therefore, it is at this time of the year that the young human becomes very friendly with the parent or, if desperate, the local bank loan officer or loan shark. Usually though, the parents are overjoyed at the occasion and take the loan out themselves. (See paragraph 1 for cross reference)

Finally the big night arrives. The young couple sets out as their parents and neighbors (but never their loan sharks) wave them off from the curb. First there is the dinner where all the humans order Boneless Chicken Breast Stuffed with Asparagus. During diner, the humans pretend to be engrossed in commenting on the chicken breast to hide their surreptitious glances around the room to see if anyone has outdone them in either costume or date. Occasionally, there is some spontaneous dancing, but generally, once satisfied that the evening has not been marred by scandal, everyone is photographed and goes home.
Or so the young humans tell their parents when leaving the house looking so crisp and wholesome at 7:30. Actually, the young humans will head directly to the shore. Those unfortunate souls not lucky enough to have a friend with a beachfront house migrate to the closest outdoor water fountain or septic tank and, as far as we can tell, they never know the difference.

Last Will and Testament

We, the Class of 1986, do hereby bequeath the following:

To Mrs. Hopp: a maid for the office, our special efficiency award.
To Dr. O’Breza: respectable bibliographies, breakfast with Dan, a bus to Ancora, and for your third period class’s revenge—being locked in a room with absolutely no heat and broken windows in the middle of a blizzard.
To Mr. Simon: movie reviews, especially Rocky IV, and one of his own essay tests to be taken in 30 minutes.
To Mr. Smyth: unbreakable pianos, a Mr. Softee truck, a one-way ticket to Bayonne, NJ.
To Mr. Lou Frank: a Jane Fonda workout tape, a perfect boys’ gymnastic layout.
To Mrs. Rubinstein: another Junior Honors English class, a complete list of Who’s Who in Cherry Hill East.
To Mr. Carr: for the groovy 60’s dude—a Beatles reunion and a “Captain Democracy” T-shirt.
To Mr. Heisler: the true pronunciation of “quasi,” a videotape of “Advise and Consent.”
To Mr. Shaklee: 1st and 8th period classes that are a little more vocal.
To Mr. Gordon: a new set of colored chalk.
To Mr. Kovalevich: adversity to build character.
To Mr. Moehlmann: classes that don’t always answer “Ich Habe keine zeit” and situation dialogues.
To Mr. Nation: some Brazil nuts.
To Mr. Pinzur: the return of the Knowledge Bowl, a French class, a daughter with mathematical abilities.
To Mr. Yurko: a trip down the Nile, love beads, a protest sign.
To Mr. Krantz: an oozle problem for him to do, ja?
To Mr. Kim: his own class in the Art of Stick Figure Drawing.
To Mr. Siler: a homework assignment to read the yearbook twelve times and memorize it.
To Miss Beck: a house and a husband in North Jersey, a star role as Lady MacBeth.
To Mr. Hough: a band that actually memorizes arpeggios for the test.
To Mr. Nehring: Lee Press-On Nails.
To Mr. Burgess: a solar-powered tie to cut down his electricity bill.
To Mr. Vivone: a greenhouse next to his classroom.
To Mrs. Mancini: stilts, an antidote to Mr. Mancini’s thought-sneeze attacks.
To Miss Carson: the return of her pumpkin-intact, a cat immune to diabetes, orange-treats for tests, John Heard and a string of Pearls.
To Mrs. McLeester: less freshmen, more children.
To Mr. Scher: an experiment that works the first time.
To Mr. Berryman: lifetime membership to the Ask Art Club, a permanent substitute for his sixth period class.
To Mr. Fleischman: a class that doesn’t make him blush, good fortune for his sons.
To Mrs. Fletcher: students who don’t talk when singing and who do bring pencils and their music to class.
To Mrs. Lower: a cage for all her turkeys.
To the Campus Police: a Mr. Rogers TV special on “How to Put Your Parking Sticker on Your Car.”
To Student Congress: private lessons with Smokey the Bear.
To the Student Body: Cafeteria III at McDonalds.
To the Yearbook Office: windows, mirrors for editors of all heights.
Class Trip • Disney World

The seniors who packed their bags for the Florida trip, the last weekend in April, remember waking up at the unreal hour of 4 A.M. to catch a plane. But what they remember best is four glorious days in the Sunshine State's Disney World; fun and great times shared with friends. Each day was devoted to a main attraction; and our seniors left no ride unridden. It was truly a time for the memory books!

Although the trip ended and the tan faded, the seniors returned to the real world of school, parents (and an advanced case of senioritis), but they carried with them snapshots, Mickey Mouse ears as reminders of an unparalleled experience.
Back To School Night

Every year parents get an opportunity to navigate successfully through C-Wing Intersection. They have the privilege of stumbling into class late with the commanding gaze of the teacher and everyone else upon them. In short, parents undergo the same conditions that a student would during a typical, but shortened, school day.

Back-to-School Night helps participating parents understand exactly who the teacher is and what he or she has planned for the year. This is the time when the teacher is carefully scrutinized by the parents. Since parents can make value judgments and form opinions without the student's often biased aid, the teacher has ten minutes in which to make a favorable and lasting impression. Often the anxiety to produce that good impression causes the teacher to make some blunders such as arriving to the class five minutes late and believing that they are early.

Usually parents are perceptive enough to get an accurate picture of the teacher's style of instruction and goals for the year. Enlightened by that knowledge, they can understand what the students are talking about and can even sympathize with the difficulties of going from the Boys' Gym to the far end of 3rd floor C-Wing in five minutes.
Student Life
Owning your own car is almost a rite of passage. It is a privilege given to everyone at some time, however, many are lucky enough to receive it during high school. Whether the car is a new sports model or an old klunker, a gift or something you have saved for, a car represents an important transition into adulthood. This experience brings about many changes in life. Along with the car you attain freedom as well as responsibility.

Owning the first car creates pride and a measure of freedom becomes yours. Standing on the bus stop at 7:30 in freezing weather is a thing of the past. Now there is the advantage of waking up at 7:45, dashing into a heated car, and racing to school just in time for the homeroom bell. The same luxury goes into effect after school as well. Instead of running from an eighth period class in B-wing to the front of the building to catch the bus, you can take your time and stroll to the parking lot. The car is also helpful when there are after school activities to attend. After the meeting is over, you can drive right home and forego the late bus.

The car also gives freedom out of school. If a trip to the library, mall, or to a friend’s house is necessary, you are no longer dependent on someone else for transportation. This is usually a great relief to parents because they do not have to play chauffeur. Certain bonuses such as a special parking space in the driveway and a place to toss belongings also becomes yours.

However, along with the benefits of being a car owner, there are responsibilities. Dealing with oil changes, antifreeze, and tune-ups becomes a part of life. Drivers should be able to determine what is wrong with the car and how to correct the problem. Having a clear knowledge of mechanics is essential because the car may decide to punish you by stalling on Route 70.

For the lucky owners, the first car represents independence, maturity, and pride of possession. Owning your own car is always convenient and never fails to arouse envy among those who do not drive. In addition to tangible rewards, the car symbolizes the journey into adulthood as well as the fun and carefree days of high school.
The Yellow Bus

As high school students, we are well acquainted with the large yellow vehicles, the school buses, the mode of transportation that takes us to and from school.

We've all rushed to the bus stop after waking up late, experienced those hectic mornings, but had everything down to a science. Yes, catching the bus exactly on time is a growing experience. We've also acquired skills in handling mob scenes. Avoiding being trampled by the crowd of people when the four o'clock late buses arrive, we have survived in the mad rush.

Although we have gripes about the buses and regard them with a bit of satirical humor, we can't truthfully complain about their inadequacy. During horrible weather, the buses dependably arrive, and everything proceeds smoothly. For the most part, buses are on time and provide extra runs at convenient times after school.

Undeniably, buses are part of the high school experience. They are so dependable that we often take their service for granted. Although we have had our fill of busy mornings and mob scenes, we can appreciate those bright yellow vehicles.
I did it! I moved into my new home today! And what a home it is. The price was a little more than I expected to pay but when I saw this home for the first time I fell in love with it, and knew I had to have it. It's a large, airy three-story locker right in the middle of the fashionable part of town — first floor C-wing. I'm around the corner from Communications, Guidance, Administration, and down the other block is the Security Office and two restaurants. The police are on call 24 hours, there is a round-the-clock maintenance staff, and buses run regularly four times a day. Taxes are low and I hear the school system is one of the finest in the state. Best of all, anytime I'm ready for a little excitement, I can just hop over to C-wing Intersection where all the action is. And the manager of the building, a very nice man with an affinity for bright red jackets, gave me a great deal on the locker. I have a long-term mortgage with low interest rates, and he'll pay for the initial redecoration.

Knowing he'd pay that bill, I went to town with it. I called the best interior decorator in Cherry Hill and told her to spare no expense. (Trust me, she didn't!) We finally decided to go for the rustic, cluttered, second-home look. First came the floors. Ideally, they should have been hardwood stained a light shade of oak with a few oriental rugs scattered about, but I was afraid the cats might ruin the oriental rugs, so, for now, I've settled for wall-to-wall shag carpeting. The walls are covered with wood paneling, and the furniture is comfortable oversized pieces in subdued colors. Oh yes, no curtains! We were totally authentic and put shutters on all the windows except, of course, the large bay window with the beautiful view of the courtyard.

Finally, when we were almost finished, we remembered the lock. That took a lot of time. After all, how can you create the perfect locker if the lock's not right? We combed all the antique shops, flea markets, and warehouse liquidations in the area. One day, after leaving the ninth antique shop of the afternoon and preparing to sink into despair, I found it. This lock is truly "The Perfect Lock." It is a hand-crafted early twentieth-century piece with none of those hard angles or cold metallic surfaces I hate so much. It's a gentle, curving oval shape that opens with a good old-fashioned copper key. It's gorgeous shade of red-no, closer to mauve. Either way, it blends with the front door perfectly. I'm the first on the block to have an antique lock, and pretty soon I'll be the envy of all the neighbors! Which reminds me, I haven't met my neighbor yet. I guess I'll just have to go over and introduce myself. I can't wait to see the expressions on their faces when I tell them about the skylight I'm having installed over the jacuzzi.

Well, it's celebration time! I'm going to put on my fanciest outfit and head for C-wing Intersection to be part of the excitement. See you there!
An Interview With Mr. B.

Exclusive To Eidolon

don down and do one project as completely as you would like.

Eidolon: How do you feel this position will benefit East’s students?

Mr. B.: It gives the students a central person to go to in regards to activities. I make sure that the activities are running properly and that things are going smoothly. The position is a liaison between every facet of the school. I’m like the center of a wheel in that I deal with students, parents, faculty, and administration.

Eidolon: How did this position come about?

Mr. B.: It's not the first time they've had a coordinator at East. There have been ones before, but with declining enrollment and budget cuts, the school decided to do away with it. However, East found it difficult to do without one because with so much going on, someone is needed to coordinate. That's how it came back.

Eidolon: If you could teach in another area other than math, what would it be?

Mr. B.: I never really thought about it. Probably my minor in college which was history. I would like to teach that because the one thing I miss with math is the possibility of discussion with the students. In math, there are no varied opinions about how x equals 2. It's just x equals 2 and that's it.

Eidolon: What advantages do you think East offers students that a smaller school might not?

Mr. B.: Where can I start? The curriculum, activities, and opportunities to be involved are great. If a student takes advantage of everything that is offered, college will be a breeze. There will be adjustments to college life, but it will be a lot easier. Also, there is a great diversity of kids in the school and that helps the students deal with others. The largeness of East is definitely a benefit because of what it offers.
Balloon-a-grams are new this year at East. Introduced by Student Congress and under the direction of senior Tracy Steele, students can send helium-filled balloons to friends who are celebrating birthdays. The costs range from $1.50 for three balloons to $5.00 for twelve and included is a message from the sender and a singing telegram from student volunteers. The balloons are delivered to homerooms to the delight or embarrassment of the recipient and can always be seen in the halls in the hands of a birthday guy or girl. The balloon-a-grams have been eagerly accepted into daily life at East and have provided many smiles and laughs for well-wishing senders and thankful recipients.
People are normally classified by their clothes. Preppies wear docksiders and anything with an alligator logo on it. Jocks wear muscle shirts and punks, well, punks wear whatever nobody else is wearing. But, for the average high school student, there is a crucial decision made in ninth grade that is just as important as any daily fashion statement. This major decision usually goes unnoticed. Most people aren't even aware they've made it. Deep down in their subconscious their brains were working away, plotting strategies and planning special effects. When all these machinations were finally complete the unassuming fourteen-year-old now knew how he would carry his books. Yes, that was the Big Decision. Don't laugh. It's important. Think about it. When's the last time you saw a male carrying his books in front of him, his bent arm pressing them protectively against his body. You haven't, or if you have, maybe you looked twice at him but couldn't figure out just what was wrong. Well, it was the way he carried his books.

So, you see this is a major decision and, like any major decision, there are many choices. You can carry your books in one of several basic positions. Position one, the traditional choice, is to carry your books on your side cupped in your hand. This is a standard position. It goes with any clothing style from Bill Blass to Madonna and with slight variations in body posture and walk, different emotions can be produced. You can never go wrong with it.

Position two is a definite feminine choice. Carry the books in front of your body with the bottom of the largest book placed slightly below the waist. The advantages of this style are: the books don't interfere with your purse and by holding your hand up, there is extra opportunity to display nails, rings, and bracelets.

The next position, position three, is a risky one for anybody. Very few people can pull it off successfully. In this position, the books are propped against the hip (preferably the right hip) and extended up (and up and up and up). They are precariously held in place by the feeble grasp of a few straining fingers. The body is slanted to the left but the head remains upright. True masters of this style have perfected it so that it appears completely effortless, only the constant muscle cramps in their neck and right hand give them away.

Position four is the backpack stage. In this position, all books are deposited in a red, green, or blue backpack (all other colors constitute a grave faux pas) which is nonchalantly slung over one shoulder. People sporting backpacks have short hair (so it doesn't get caught in a shoulder strap) and are planning to major in Yuppies in any major college between Connecticut and Maine.

The last position, position five, is the masculine alternative to position two. In position five, males cram their books, sweatpants, and all assorted junk at hand into a gym bag. This they carry around all day and use to inflict leg wounds as they pass through crowded intersections. Another symptom is that the male is constantly borrowing writing utensils. He swears he has a few pencils, including the two he borrowed from you last week, in the murky depths of his gym bag, hidden under crumpled calculus tests and overdue English assignments, but can you lend him one anyway so he doesn't have to go looking through his bag? And, of course, you do. When the bell rings at the end of the period and he absentmindedly slips the pencil — your pencil — into his bag, it disappears slowly, sending out weak messages of distress. You know you have lost yet another pencil.

Oh, we almost forgot. There is a sixth position. Position six is the ultimate in student chic. You simply do not carry any books. Ever. Need we say more?
The Library

Visiting the library is an essential part of life at East. We use the copy machine, read newspapers, or study for a test. Sometimes we go as a class to begin research for a particular project or assignment. Because of its many resources, we visit the library during study hall or lunch. We can be entertained by magazines or use the quiet confines to study. It is also a place where we meet our friends to quietly discuss classwork and tackle math problems together. We depend on the library because it touches all our lives and helps us make it through our stay at East.
Fashion is a lot like history. We can bring back an entire era by remembering the type of clothes that we wore. Styles reflect the times whether they are conservative or trendy. By digging up our old prairie skirts and Izod sweaters, we can conjure up images of our confusing and innocent freshman year. We can even look back to time periods before we were born and imagine what it would have been like to have lived during that era. The 50's are remembered for poodle skirts and leather jackets, the 60's for miniskirts and long hair, and the 70's for faded jeans and big collars. Since the 80's are not yet over, we can not predict which styles this decade will be known for; however, we can examine one of our most important and what will be one of our cherished times: senior year. Ten years from now we will either treasure these fashions or laugh and wonder how we could have worn such clothing. Like them or not, though, these are the clothes that will go down in history as the styles we wore when we were seniors.

- bobbed or mussed hair, stretch pants, sweatclothes, paisley, baroque, and cabbage rose prints, junk jewelry, Florenza wear, Benetton clothes, watches, electric blues, flat shoes, big shirts, and shaker knit sweaters.

Guys
- big shirts, watches, Hawaiian shorts, rugby and polo shirts, docksides, sweats, tapered jeans, short hair, button down collars, loose shirttails, and oversized sweaters.
Cafeteria...

We Only Wish
The candy cane sale is a popular highlight of the holiday season. For the small price of fifty cents, the red and white striped sweets bring smiles and cheer to many.

As a boost for the class treasury, each year the Junior class takes over the sale of the candy canes. Sherry Rothman, chairperson, reported that the sale was quite successful with well over 1100 of the peppermint goodies making their way into the hands and mouths of East students and staff.
Once upon a time, and not a very long time ago, we lived in a world without THE WALKMAN.

The Walkman

Back then, it was a simple, natural world. As we jogged along the park trails we heard the sound of our feet hitting the gravel. As we hurried through the halls of EAST we heard books falling out of lockers, friends giggling, bubble gum cracking.

And sometimes, when we sat in our classrooms, if everything was perfect, we even heard our teachers. But now our world is different. Our world is on tape. We pop it in, turn it on and create our own world.

Ah, progress. There’s nothing else like it!
Students at Cherry Hill East are fortunate in being able to benefit not only from the excellence of this institution and its faculty, but also from the diversity of its student body. The students acquire a second education, separate from that gained in the classroom. With over 2900 students, East contains a mixture of many of the world’s cultures. As students share individual cultural backgrounds with their friends, they gain insight into a world far different from their own. Quite often this enrichment stems from everyday occurrences. They taste new foods and learn phrases in different languages. Seemingly trivial facts such as different terminology or daily customs present an exposure that may produce a greater impact than the most brilliant lecture or book on the same culture would produce. These tangible parts of a culture are really understood and thus enlarge the student’s world, opening his mind to new horizons.

In the process of sharing cultures, the students create a bond that grows ever stronger. That is the nature of sharing. Sharing is more than exchanging information. It is a revealing experience with the respect and trust that only true friendship can claim. Both the friendships and cultures have enriched Cherry Hill East. The school is international and presents students with a rare glimpse of the diversity and richness of life.
And In The Course Of A Normal Day

“Attention all teachers: Execute Procedure 19. Please make a visual search of the immediate area.” When this ominous message is broadcast over the loudspeaker system, teachers and students alike are startled. Pencils stop scribbling, chalk is held poised in midair. The test which seemed so crucial a moment ago has now vanished from the students’ minds. The only thought mixed among the students’ and teachers’ fright and anger is the idea that somewhere in Cherry Hill East there could be a bomb ready to explode!

Procedure 19 is the procedure the administration has devised to handle bomb threats. Cherry Hill East’s bomb threats began in 1981 when a student placed a pipe bomb in a locker. Fortunately, the bomb did not explode but the community was extremely upset and school was forced to close for a day and a half. Since then several people, ignoring the true gravity of the situation, have phoned in fake bomb threats to East. While they thoughtlessly laugh over their irresponsible and immature prank, Cherry Hill East is temporarily paralyzed. When Procedure 19 is announced, teachers make a visual search of the classroom, looking for a concealed explosive device. Then comes the frightening part — the waiting. The school is not evacuated because of the possible danger posed to passing students and teachers by the possible explosion of a locker or any metallic object. Instead, everyone sits in the classrooms and waits, praying that there is not a bomb hidden in the locker outside the classroom or in the trashcan down the hall.

As the threat is discovered to be false and school slowly returns to life, there is much anger in East. The needless interruption caused in the learning process is reason enough to be angry; yet, when weighed against other reasons, it is not a very important one. Far more anger is generated as administrators, teachers, and students realize that somebody is toying with their lives. Bomb threats are not harmless pranks. They involve a potential loss of life; the possibility of death has been ushered into the school. Cherry Hill East is transformed from a world of friendships and intellectual growth to a nightmarish world in which the most harmless object gains the potential for injury. The innocence and trust common in most teenagers is pushed aside, abandoning them to distrust and fear. It becomes a very scary and insecure world for everyone involved.

Those people staging the pranks either fail to realize the emotional implications of their actions or are indifferent to them. Their actions are, at worst, acts of bitterness and cruelty, at best, acts of immaturity. In either case, the bomb threats must stop. Students and teachers cannot afford the distractions. As professionals, they cannot spare the time consumed by the threats. As people, they should be spared the emotional upheaval of such an incident. Those people placing the threats must learn the value and blessings of life. For when they respect life and other people’s desire to lead a normal, stable life, the threats will stop — as they should — and Procedure 19 will cease to exist.
Walking through East, you can easily perceive that a self-selective segregating process is at work., Black leather jackets talk to other black leather jackets. Bangles and beads are by the far cafeteria wall and the Izods have a table with a view of the courtyard. But at least once during the course of the day, students are grouped regardless of personality types or fashion statements. This insidious agent which none can escape is called Homeroom. For 15 minutes every morning approximately 30 people with perhaps nothing more in common than the first letter of their last name are herded into homerooms for the daily process of taking attendance, scrounging for Guidance passes, receiving cuts for non-existent classes, and not hearing the announcements. Think about it, you’ve spent a total of 7.5 days of your high school career with these people. That’s certainly not a fleeting encounter. In fact, there is an odd camaraderie within these motley groups. A sense of ennui bonds you together as you chatter away the minutes until the bell summons you to first period. You watch each other copy friends’ homework assignments, cram for bio tests, and correct typing errors in term papers. Together, you discuss the latest news and gossip, attempting to speak coherently through the early morning mental haze. As the fog slowly disappears and the eyes are able to focus again, it’s time to leave homeroom and face the day ahead. Some students though, teachers are rumored to whisper, never do escape from homeroom but pass their entire day in that glorious haze.

“Steve, can you hear me? Steve, Steve, are you there? Please answer me? Steve …”

“Excuse me Mrs. Smith, did you say something?”

Valuable members of the staff, the SCHOOL NURSES have many responsibilities. Involved in all areas of the health field, the nurses help to check the spread of disease, conduct scoliosis screenings and eye and hearing exams. They assist in the administration of the physical exams necessary for participation in all sports activities. In addition to keeping immunization records, they provide emergency care for students and staff.

The COMMUNICATIONS CENTER, located in the front of the building is the nerve center of our school. It is the direct link between the school and the community. Information is channelled to the proper areas, visitors are directed to offices, parents are assisted in locating students, lost keys can be retrieved, important announcements are made for the benefit of the student body and sports schedules are always available. We even find out when we leave our car headlights on. The Communications Center carries out these tasks with efficient and cheerful alacrity, making life easier for everyone.

HALL MONITORS are new to East this year. They are responsible for patrolling hallways, verifying passes and keeping things on an even keel. By helping keep the halls clear during classes, we can sense a new type of order strengthening the educational process.

The CAMPUS POLICE have been instituted in the Cherry Hill Public Schools for important reasons. Unlike security guards, the police are governed by a set of guidelines which extend their authority to provide maximum protection and assistance to both staff and student body.
Mrs. Rosa McCall, a Special Education Resource instructor, works under a State of New Jersey mandated program geared to the handicapped student. The purpose of this program is to provide students that qualify, with regular course work but at a slowed pace according to their individual needs. Students will be offered English, Math and History with emphasis placed upon using the language for understanding. Individual weaknesses are appraised and the student's instruction reflects individual abilities.

Mrs. Joan Anderson is seen around the main office and pushing the mail cart through the halls as she delivers the inter-office memos to faculty boxes, along with grade level communications which are then passed along to the students through their respective teachers. She relieves at the switchboard to continue to keep us well-informed and current with any information that we may need.

Behind every roll call presides Mrs. Daley, Cherry Hill East's Attendance Officer. She protects students from incorrect statuses by correcting mistakes on the homeroom attendance sheets before keying them into the computer. Not only does she organize attendance records, but she updates student files and assigns students to their proper homerooms. In addition, her fingers release a myriad of information from the computer which includes class verification lists for teachers, Progress or Interim reports and those (awaited or dreaded) report cards.

Mr. Anthony Trombetta (not pictured), handles all the in-coming mail to the building, supervises book storage, oversees the "Lost and Found", supplies the staff with all the office supplies needed to efficiently function in the classroom and performs dozens of daily tasks that keep East functioning in the smooth and orderly manner that we have come to expect. For the senior class, we look to Mr. Trombetta for delivery of the much-awaited Yearbooks.
Each day, attendance is processed, mail is sorted and stamped, messages are taken, appointments are made, monies are recorded, records are updated, extra-curricular activities are posted, along with a thousand and one other details which keep East running smoothly.

Our secretaries and office clerks are an integral part of our system. They are perceptive, helpful, intuitive and untiring as they keep their thumb on the pulse of student and staff life that is East.
Teacher and Supervisory Aides
Who is in charge of school records? Who fixes the multitude of schedules? Who receives and sends SAT scores? Who gives us advice about college and writes those crucial college recommendations? All of these important services emanate from the Guidance Department. From the day we start freshman year until the moment we graduate, we are assigned to a knowledgeable person who is concerned about us, our guidance counselor. Whenever we have problems with schedules or courses, we can go to the Guidance Office and straighten everything out. We receive valuable information and personalized attention. Amazingly enough, this relatively small group of people is dedicated enough to take on all the academic problems in a school the size of East.

Behind the imposing brick walls of Cherry Hill High School East are the English

One of East's most varied and flexible departments, the English department, teaches vocabulary, research skills, literature, and writing. These components, in addition to a basic knowledge of grammar, are synthesized into the English curriculum. The weekly lab period stresses the importance of writing. The ability to read carefully, comprehend, analyze, and draw concepts and conclusions from a given text is the goal that teachers guide the students to achieve. The dedicated faculty strives to reveal the mysteries of the written word to students and, on a more practical level, cultivates the mighty power of good writing.

Foreign Languages

Have we ever stopped to think how many foreign words and customs are assimilated into our language and culture? Have we ever realized that the study of other languages aids us in gaining a greater knowledge of our native tongue? As years go by, words find their way into English. Increasingly, job opportunities require the knowledge of another language. It is the awesome responsibility of East's Foreign Language teachers to instill appreciation of foreign cultures and languages. Our admiration for classical literature or French Impressionist painters may stem from these teachers. Jobs as translators or international business executives come directly from masterful command of a foreign language. More and more, we realize the significance of language and the importance of taking advantage of the excellent learning opportunities that exist for us at East.

Although students are tempted to dismiss the study of History as boring and purposeless (due to the longevity of history textbooks), they eventually realize the true significance. Enhancing our understanding of the past, teachers guide students to read different interpretations, to analyze, and to draw important conclusions. While studying the events of the past, students also see vital links from bygone events to present situations and crises. They recognize the fact that a knowledge of the past helps to shape the present and the future. History's most useful lessons for today's world are those pertaining to diplomacy. Comprehension and exposure to different cultures help mold this generation's attitude toward the future. By helping students understand this, teachers help them understand today's world.

Our media center shoulders the task of helping students find and use information. Have to do a term paper or an oral report on a seemingly obscure subject? Never fear, the media center has the resources to help put it together. Not only does it provide books, newspapers, and magazines, but it also places filmstrips, slides, tapes, recorders, video machines, and micro-film at our disposal. Organized and filled with people willing to help, the media center has all the resources necessary to meet the needs of the staff and student.
Perhaps the most natural study in life is the study of life itself. At East, the Biology Department succeeds in developing this natural science in the minds of most students. Amid the polysyllabic terms and specimens of life (such as fruit flies) and preserved, but not living life (such as fetal pigs) students get a taste of theory and practical lab experience. Biology teachers edify their pupils with theory and understanding. By emphasizing observation and theory, the Biology Department opens up the mysteries of nature to students and teaches practical skills useful for the rest of their lives.

Physical Science

The fascinating study of topics such as matter, atomic structure, work, motion, and energy is open to those students who enroll in the courses offered by the Physical Science Department. Maintaining a standard of excellence that can be measured by the ability of the students, this department has a variety of courses and a well-developed program for the more advanced students. Especially good for college work, the courses instill study habits in the students and shape their thought patterns. These courses provide solid preparation for careers in engineering or science-related majors, and, more importantly, they increase the ability to think clearly.

Mathematics

The major goal of the Mathematics Department is to equip students with skills especially valuable in later life. Although it seems to require a stretch of imagination to see how computing the area under a curve would apply to life, mathematics encourages the use of inductive and deductive reasoning for problem solving. In short, students learn to develop basic logic.

In addition to providing such integral skills, the Mathematics Department at East offers varied courses from Calculus to Computers. Simultaneously strengthening abstract thinking and practical knowledge, the Mathematics Department at East is part of the large framework of departments striving to cultivate every part of the student.

Business Education

The true test of the quality of a school lies in the diversity of the departments and the benefits that the students can receive. Apart from academics and the arts, students who have a penchant for business have a variety of courses offered to them.

Certain indispensable skills, such as typing, appeal to everyone because of their practicality. However, for others who are more dedicated to the world of business, an entire program is set up that spans all four years of high school. Armed with skills such as stenography, keyboarding, accounting, retailing and management, the East students have the experience and foundation necessary for future business professionals.
Industrial Vocations

Including a myriad of courses designed to help students in the selection of careers and leisure time activities, the Industrial Arts and vocational courses aim to prepare students to live and work effectively in today's society. Teachers work to develop students' understanding of industrial tools, materials, processes, and products. While doing this, they expand the student's comprehension of the workings of industry and the system by which man produces goods to meet his needs. The participants in this department begin with the basics of small home appliance repair and advance to the complexities of courses dealing with power and energy. Furthering the student's interest and possible career choice, the Industrial Vocations Department is another example of the widespread variety of courses and opportunities offered at East.

The versatile art department brings culture and beauty to mundane eight-period schedules. The creativity of this area moves from painting, sculpture and pottery to graphics, photography and film; from development of home decorating, culinary skills and fine needlework to art history and mass media.

Encouraging students to explore and discover, every aspect and dimension of the arts is offered to round out and polish the educational process.

Music

Appealing to a broad range of interests, the Performing Arts Department contains music and drama classes. Various choral and instrumental groups, formed by students who aspire to become musicians and those who enjoy making music, and drama classes, covering numerous aspects of theater, all have their home in this department.

Through the performing arts, students expand their creativity, further their techniques, and improve as artists. Given the opportunity to express themselves, participants find relaxation and fulfillment while others work to gain skills for future careers.

Students have different options and choices in gym packages and excellent facilities with which to develop their bodies and to enjoy themselves. Knowing that “A healthy body makes a healthy mind,” the program at East is designed to cultivate all aspects of a person.

While achieving the healthy body, students learn how to keep themselves healthy. Becoming aware of basic principles of First Aid, the effects of alcohol, and health issues in general, they gain valuable information. The teachers and students explore and discuss myriad issues, and the students are left to draw their own conclusions and make judgements.

By toning the body and the mind and by nurturing athletic interests, the Physical Education and Health Departments at East complete the student’s education.
The Child Study team, a branch of Pupil Personnel Services, provides information and consultation for students, parents, teachers, and staff members. Employing learning, psychological, and social evaluations, the team analyzes students' needs and then creates an individual education plan designed to alleviate academic frustration. This is accomplished by making course adjustments to recommending relocation in an alternative situation, if the need is beneficial to the student.

Foremost in the entire assessment process is to help the student adjust and perform successfully in the most "normal" atmosphere available.

Child Study

Special Education

The Special Education team work with and for the students who need special attention in maintaining their academic achievements. Because of a diversity of reasons, these students who do not learn within the guidelines of what is considered average, have the skills of these staff members to evaluate and monitor their progress. By individualizing their education levels to the students' special needs, they are assisted in reaching their maximum potential to make the best use of what East has to offer.

6. Is it true what they say about black jelly beans? (We don't know. None of them will talk about it.)
English As A Second Language

Most of us take for granted that we will understand our course work because we understand our teachers' language. They speak in English for that is our native tongue. We may not understand abstract language of math or the technical terminology of science, but we understand the words. Our school has many foreign-born students who have a doubly difficult task because English is not their native tongue. For this reason, East offers ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE.

This valuable program helps integrate the students who speak other languages with the main body of East students who only speak in English. As communication skills are developed and meshed into English, the students increase their knowledge of the English language so they can better adjust and function in a more comfortable class setting.

Reading

The Reading Department offers the student the best of all worlds as they concentrate upon a two part goal - to improve the students' reading abilities as they develop an interest in reading for the pure fun that it can offer.

In addition to skill work in the areas of word recognition and comprehension, the students are encouraged to read independently. The Reading classes are kept small so that the teachers can work individually with each student in an effort to bring out the most positive attitudes for success. The atmosphere is relaxed and personal. The skill and dedication of East's Reading specialists creates an environment that can only enhance the learning experience as the students set their own personal goals for their own success.

The Olympics, in most people's minds, symbolizes greatness and vast achievement. High school Olympics are no exception. Each year, the Olympic Conference Championships are held in every major competitive sport at the end of its respective season to determine which school is superior in that sport. Among the competing schools are Pennsauken, Cherry Hill West, Highland, Eastern, Edgewood, and Cherry Hill East. A trophy is awarded to the winning school in each sporting competition. The school that accumulates the highest total of wins at the end of the Olympic Conference, is awarded the prestigious Olympic Conference flag. This year, East was the proud recipient of this high honor. East has held the best record in our division, so therefore, became the winner of the Olympic flag. The flag was presented to Mr. Cost at the Spirit Week pep rally by District Athletic Coordinator, Virginia Whitaker. Mrs. Whitaker is responsible for organizing the conference, scheduling the ticket sales, and hiring the officials. The award not only represents the outstanding achievement and dedication of the proud coaches and athletes, but also reinforces East's sports reputation as the "Home of Champions."

*indicates winning scorers

This year's boys' gymnastic team has broken more school records than any other team in East gymnastic history! The members have broken many individual records and the team score of 125.7 is the highest ever. The team has been very competitive and is well recognized throughout the State of New Jersey. With 66 members, the East team is the largest high school team in the state.

During the regular season competition, the East team was undefeated and won the South Jersey League title. The East team also received a trophy in the prestigious Invitational Devil Classic for producing more qualifying scorers in the state individual championships.

Senior Joe Gibson led the field in the Side-Horse with an impressive 7.45 and senior Matt Harrison scored an 8.7 with the Free-Exercise.

This award-winning gymnastic team has established a strong foundation on which East's tradition of excellence will surely continue.

Performing And Visual Arts Society

PAVAS, the National Performing and Visual Arts Society, is a relatively new group at East. Introduced by Mr. Cook in 1984, this society recognizes juniors and seniors who have contributed on a high level in creative and performing arts. The activities are varied and include art, drama, stage production, music, puppetry, creative writing, culinary arts, dance, fashion design, industrial arts, film making, graphic arts and photography.

Each spring, a year of hard work culminates with the PAVAS Festival. It is here that the artists and performers display their talents and masterpieces for the East student body and faculty. Everyone is encouraged to visit the courtyard and stop at the different booths to view the artists' works. Throughout the day, the auditorium houses the performing arts, with a different assembly taking place during each period.

At the end of the day, as the festival draws to a close, the memory of many proud artists and performers remains. PAVAS provides an additional bit of culture for East.
East's Stage Crew is comprised of hard working student technicians who are in charge of the behind-the-scenes action during stage activities. They are responsible for lighting, props, sound, and the backstage work that the audience is rarely able to see. The Stage Crew along with the dancers, musicians, and actors make a combination that has achieved excellence during all of East's stage productions.

Issue Resolved

The EASTSIDE staff, working "late night" in Medford once each month to put the newspaper together, is also hard at work both around the clock and around the calendar. For 19 high school kids, putting together a monthly award winning newspaper is quite a challenge. Even before the EASTSIDE staff goes to press, its members are constantly planning how the news, opinions, entertainment, and sports articles, as well as the advertisements, will all come together into 12 pages of harmony. It's never lazy!

One thing that helps this group is pride - pride that EASTSIDE continues to fulfill its reputation as a truly outstanding piece of high school journalism. EASTSIDE promises to provide the most intensive information, and provocative writing to its readers - and it delivers. The staff makes sure of this.

S tudent aides are an essential part of the daily functions at East. These dedicated few, sacrifice their study halls and lunch periods in order to assist teachers and administrators with some of their duties. They are a great help to the faculty and aid in keeping things running smoothly. Although it may seem like a thankless job, the student aides are rewarded with ten service points and the experience of helping others, while adding another facet to their education.

Student Congress

Student Congress is a word used at East almost as frequently as the word, “test.” Fortunately, unlike the images of horror conjured up by the word, “test,” Student Congress is synonymous with the idea of fun. Each year this illustrious bunch organize such diverse activities as pep rallies, dances, and fundraisers. Student Congress enriches the non-academic aspects of East; without them the school certainly would be missing a worthwhile component.

Orchesis is an elite dance group that showcases the talents of some of East's best dancers. The members, who are chosen by audition, polish their skills in modern jazz and ballet routines and also have the opportunity to choreograph their own presentations. In addition, this talented company performs in concerts at East and throughout the South Jersey area.

The competitive clubs promote logic and achievement in a fun, non-scholastic manner. The participants are adept at difficult concepts and are quite advanced in a particular subject. At the meetings, they polish their skills with other members and prepare for competitions. During these contests, the students compete against other schools and individuals as well as against themselves. The participants often try to better their previous performances and achieve their personal best. These clubs are important to students as they allow them to compete on their own advanced levels and take part in exercises to enrich their abilities.

Cultural clubs provide an insight into many different languages and traditions. By joining these groups, students can learn about the different facets and customs of foreign countries. It is not required that members be enrolled in the language to participate and by being active in several, students see many examples of the respective cultures. These clubs offer many activities including trips, luncheons, and exchange programs and provide members with an awareness of other lifestyles. Cultural clubs are an important part of East because they contribute to open-mindedness among the students and supply interesting studies of foreign traditions and customs.
Special interest clubs are for students who have diversified talents and interests. They give members an opportunity to express themselves to others who share the same enthusiasm for a specialized area. The clubs also encourage membership from students who would like to learn more about a particular art or concept. At the meetings, the students have a chance to gain added knowledge and sharpen their skills within their area. Friendships abound as members share a bond that originates from their common interests. The special interest clubs also provide fun and enjoyment as well as creativity and social benefits.

By joining one of the many pre-professional clubs at East, students gain exposure and knowledge about certain careers. Appealing to a wide range of interests, these clubs are among east's most active. They assist those who seek information on careers as well as those who have already chosen a field. The clubs also provide lectures, field trips, and real life views of what each profession entails. Students who take advantage of the opportunities offered by the groups can discover which career best suite them and can also be helped in making very important decisions about their future endeavors.

The performance clubs at East emphasize communication and speech. The Cable TV Club, Broadcast Team, and Debate Team each encourage their participants to express themselves through articulate speech and by assertively projecting their own ideas. The Thespian Society and Mime Company are also activities that promote communication not through just vocalizing, but by using singing, acting, and movement. During their performances, all of these groups have the opportunity to practice within their areas as well as gain the experience of demonstrating their skills in front of an audience. Being a part of the performance clubs is a rewarding experience that promotes communication in many different forms and facets.

The book that you are leisurely flipping through is the result of the well-directed efforts of a group of misguided advisors and editors. You see, in our September innocence, we didn’t realize the magnitude of our task. School started and we optimistically eased into our “lounge,” that endearing, converted book-closet with no windows. Never mind that our homeroom had the unique phenomenon of housing non-yearbook people whose sole purpose was to take up precious space, we had work to do! And as our teachers are so apt to say, work is a learning experience. We learned which typewriters build muscles and which build massive frustrations. We learned who invites strange photographers home for dinner and who forgets to tell the literary editors about the copy needed for the next day’s deadline. Most importantly, we learned that Dave and Yorick and Opus and Gumby were always there to comfort and calm us. In retrospect, the general attitude can best be summed up in the immortal words of a certain, very tired editor-in-chief, “And I volunteered for this job?”

At the beginning of each school year, students can appreciate the pleasures of being Cherry Hill East students and also, though not less importantly, the pleasures of being kids. Spirit Week is an ideal opportunity for students to get involved, to work together with fellow classmates, and to engage in friendly competition with the other classes. Designed to promote school spirit and enthusiasm for upcoming events, fun-filled activities are scheduled for every day of the week.

On Sunday, students had their first chance to participate in a series of timed competitions including the three-legged soccer kicks, sack jumps, and apple bobs. Monday's events included the cake decorating contest, the tricycle relay, tug-of-war, and the search for the hidden cougars. The cakes were decorated based on the various class themes and were sold after school with all proceeds from the sale going to the Student Congress Charity Fund. More money was raised for charity on Tuesday when students voted for Spirit King and Queen (or in the case of this year's Seniors, Spirit King and King). Since each penny represented one vote, the class with the largest amount of money won. Also, on Tuesday, sixteen people each having the urge to devour an entire, chocolate, whipped-cream pie in one sitting had the chance to do so.

Spirit Week activities resumed on Thursday with milk-drinking and hall decorating. Each class was given a section of the hall or cafeteria to decorate carrying out their... theme. This year the class themes were “M*A*S*H” for the Seniors, “Greek/Roman Togas” for the Juniors, “Sesame Street” for the Sophomores, and “Hawaii” for the Freshmen. The halls were supposed to be judged on Friday morning by a faculty panel with points being awarded for creativity, theme, neatness, artwork, and school spirit. However, due to Hurricane Gloria, school was closed, and activities were postponed to the following Thursday and Friday. Students arrived in school wearing such unlikely apparel as togas and Hawaiian print shirts as they tried to rack up more points for their class on Thursday. On the last day of Spirit Week, students had the final opportunities to win more points for their classes by wearing red and white, East’s school colors.

The culmination of events occurred during the annual, fall sports pep rally. The winning class was determined after the last event in which each class, with the aid of a rope the entire length of the gymnasia and accompanying music, tried to get as many people to jump rope simultaneously. The Juniors were victorious with the Seniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen following in that order. With enthusiasm raised to a peak, students appropriately capped off Spirit Week by attending the Spirit Week Dance in the Gym.

A unique initiation to school activities for the Freshmen and a revival of interest for the upperclassmen, Spirit Week is a wonderful and special event for all who get involved.

DRESS-UP DAY

HALL DECORATING
Powder Puff Football

It was mid-afternoon, October 20th, 1985, and the players stood opposite each other, the autumn breeze stinging their faces. Their eyes were set in determined glares, their muscles tensed, and their jaws were clenched in restrained fury. No, the scene does not describe the Superbowl, it refers to this year’s Powder Puff football game.

Powder Puff is a competition between the senior and junior classes’ most menacing football players (females, of course). The game is held at East’s football field, with male cheerleaders encouraging their teams to victory. The hard working coaches are male members of the senior and junior classes. The players, clad in T-shirts with fitting nicknames such as “Iron Fists” and “Bruiser” printed on their backs, take the competition seriously.

The senior girls, though fearing defeat, kept their morale high and practiced with vigor, as the 11th grade team, confident of their win, practiced diligently. After weeks of training, that fateful Sunday arrived, and the junior team went on to victory with a score of 14-6.

Both teams, winners and losers, deserve a round of applause, and who knows, maybe the Football Hall of Fame has a few empty spots.
The International Thespian Society was organized in 1929 for the purpose of advancing the standards of excellence in theatre arts in the secondary schools and to honor those students who have accomplished outstanding work in theatre programs while maintaining scholastic achievement.

Troup 213 has been assigned to Cherry Hill High School East since 1976 when Mr. Robert Nation, the society's sponsor and advisor, decided that East High School with one of the most advanced theatre programs in the tri-state area, should have a means by which to honor those students who have brought this prestige to the theatre arts department.

Nominees for membership in East's chapter must earn thirty points over the course of three major productions, either on or backstage and in addition, must maintain a "B" average in school course work.

CHARLEY'S AUNT was first produced at the Royalty Theatre, London, December 21, 1892 and ran for four years. It has enjoyed more revivals than any other single play of its century. The play takes place at Oxford College in the late 1800's. The plot revolves around the young undergraduate Jack Chesney who is desperately in love with Kitty Verdun, and Charles who is equally enamoured of Miss Amy Spettigue. They invite the young ladies to their dorm rooms for luncheon in order to meet Charley's wealthy aunt from Brazil. But alas, the millionaire aunt sends word that she will have to defer her visit for a few days. What is to be done? The young girls must not be compromised—no, never! However, neither will the fellows give up the opportunity of declaring their love. The problem appears to be solved when Jack and Charley convince another Oxford student to don the attire from a soon-to-be theatrical performance and pretend to be the aunt. This old frump is introduced as Charley's Aunt to the sweethearts, Jack's father (who is advised by his son to marry her "millions"), and to Stephen Spettigue. Amy's guardian. The sweethearts hug and kiss the old aunt while the two men try to court her. Then the real aunt turns up. Once she realizes an impostor is present, the slapstick never ends.
History is being made and momentous global events occur daily as we go through school. While all this happens, teenagers are constantly being inundated with opinions and information through television, magazines and newspapers. But when are we asked to voice our opinions and solutions?

One opportunity that is provided is through our MODEL U.N. East High School's 4th annual Model United Nations was quite a formidable undertaking involving approximately 200 people from sixteen local high schools. The group from East, organized by Sheela Athreya (the Model U.N. chairperson), Mike Reedich, Sarah Goldberg, Subha Ramanathan and Elizabeth Rajewski succeeded in making this the largest in our history. Besides writing and sending letters to the various schools, rules and proposals had to be confirmed and concerns with the assigning of representative countries had to be resolved.

Through their hard work, students were given the opportunity to represent delegates from nations all around the world. During the day, each student participated in one of four committees dealing with human rights, South Africa, international terrorism and the Security Council. Proposals were debated and then voted upon, paralleling the procedures of the actual U.N. (with just as much effect).

Enjoying the rare opportunity to discuss and argue differing ideological viewpoints, students gained valuable experience out of the classroom and learned more about the present world situation.
Today is not the typical kind of Friday when you wake up simultaneously wondering how you ever made it through the week and rejoicing that in eight or ten more hours you'll be free from the mundane world of school. This Friday is so special you don't even begrudge the dog his daily walk. You ask, "What is the cause of this wondrous transformation?" What else - HOMECOMING!

Homecoming is a time to celebrate our school and ourselves and to rekindle those wonderful friendships with past graduates of East. So as we wake up this chilly Friday morning, we jump out of bed with enthusiasm and rush to the stadium. A light drizzle steadily descends from the clouds, swelling the puddles upon the ground, but neither the rain nor the cold temperatures lessen the excitement of the day. If anything, we secretly enjoy snuggling under warm wool blankets, sipping hot chocolate and coffee; it makes the day more authentic. Huddling in the stands, we watch our band perform the pre-game show and applaud when we see our Junior Miss leading the parade. As the floats pass by, we are reminded of the long, hard hours we spent constructing them. Later, when the judges announce a four-way tie among the floats, we are a bit miffed at first. Then we realize that we are not seniors and juniors, sophomores and freshmen. We are Cherry Hill East — a community of students and teachers, and the tie pulls us closer together, strengthening the camaraderie of the day.

Another pre-game highlight is watching our queens and their escorts driven past (continues on pg. 197) the stands. We look upon them with pride, remembering how as freshmen we gazed wistfully at the senior queens, wondering if we would ever look that regal, if we would ever have the grace and glamour to ride in one of the cars. And yes, we most certainly do! There is another thrill involved in the parade. This year, we are driving all the cars. Mom and Dad are in the stands watching. It is truly our show.

Then comes the game. Kickoff, rushing, passing, blocking, fumbling, recovering, and finally touchdown. Our team fights hard. In stained, mud-caked uniforms, our players beat West 6-0 and both teams beat the weather as they struggle up and down the soggy field. When it is all over, we are triumphant both as a class and as a school.

That stadium will never be the same for us. We'll return for future homecomings to watch our successors and meet old friends. The day will be happy, exciting, intense. But it will never be as glorious as our day on the field. Perhaps we will go to the stadium a little early or linger behind after everyone else has left. Then, in our minds, we'll watch our floats go round again and cheer for our immortal queens. The field may, in truth, be empty but our minds and our hearts will be full of love and remembrance.
SENIOR ENGLISH HOLIDAY PARTY

Traditions are vital to the heritage of East. A new tradition being established is the HOLIDAY PARTY given by Mr. Vivone's senior English class for the underprivileged children of the Camden area.

Preparations begin in September as students form various committees that handle decorations, gifts, food, and entertainment. Tom Coen served as Santa, practicing his HQ; Ho! Ho! Ho! during English lab for two months. Tom Coen entertained Santa, practicing his HQ; Ho! Ho! Ho! during English lab for two months.

This party was special for Mr. Vivone because all four of his English classes participated. With so many seniors involved, they were able to provide a toy, an item of clothing, candy, and a “special gift" for 22 children on December 18th. As the children left, East loaded with "goodies", Mr. Vivone heard exclamings: "...my seniors received the greatest gift of all."
F.O.P. Christmas Party

Every year over one hundred East students dedicate several weeks of their time preparing for the Fraternal Order of Police's Christmas Party for handicapped children and adults in the area. The party, held at the Cherry Hill Hyatt House, is a time for festivities. There are streamers and balloons, clowns and mimes, laughs and good times. More importantly, though, it is a time for sharing. The participants, having shared the joy of goodwill and friendship, leave enriched with their memories of this happy occasion.
This year, the class of 1986 proved how important giving to others can be. The senior class sponsored an American Red Cross blood drive at East on January 24th. The turnout was remarkable. Seniors, juniors, and even some sophomores joined together to donate over two hundred and eighty pints of blood, a number exceeding last years' total by almost twenty pints. Aside from the generosity of the donors, many students gave their time lending a hand to aid the Red Cross staff. The students and faculty of East can truly be proud of the fact that a little bit of themselves will go on to aid many needy people in the future.
Valentine's Day is a very special event at East as students take the opportunity to express warm wishes and love to friends, sweethearts, and valentines. Carnations, along with special messages, are purchased by friends and distributed during homeroom. Many guys and girls can be spotted throughout the day carrying their pink, red, and white flowers or pinning them to their sweaters. Candy plays a large part in the holiday as candy hearts and chocolate kisses are exchanged among classmates. The hallways also reflect the spirit of the day when A-wing is filled with hearts that are inscribed with amusing, embarrassing, or sincere sayings. The halls are quite congested while students search for their hearts and upon finding them, attempt to take them down. Valentine's Day at East takes on an important meaning as students have the chance to indulge in love, friendship, and fun times.
Any alert student can discern when its Show Time at East — a select portion of the student body staggers around school exhausted from hours of hard work and lack of sleep. They fall asleep during physics tests and have delayed responses to all but the simplest of questions. Exactly who are these people, these "martyrs of the stage," you may ask. Well, they are East's talented and dedicated actors, actresses, musicians, stage, and costume crew members. Together, these students and an equally dedicated ensemble of teachers, spend long hours at school building the show. There are endless preparations to be made. Students and teachers spend their time rehearsing lines, blocking scenes, building props, fitting costumes, practicing music and then doing it over again and again! Each aspect of the show is perfected individually. Slowly the parts merge. Scenery is added. Scripts are discarded during rehearsals. The actors and actresses perform in costume instead of T-shirts and sweatpants, and Mr. Mckenzie's piano playing is replaced with Mr. Yurko's Pit Orchestra. The hours are long, the work exhausting, the pay nonexistent. But when the curtain goes up and the show begins, it's all worth it.
Without the production and technical crews, the presentation of Funny Girl would not be possible. There are many people involved with coordinating and bringing the musical to life. The stage crew is in charge of the lighting, props, spotlights, and microphones and they help to bring alive and enhance the sights and sounds of the show. Costumes and make-up are essential parts of the presentation. Long hours are spent trying to decide which clothing fits the storyline and which colors look best on stage. Make-up artists must select the right hues and shades to illuminate the faces of the actors and dancers. Choreography is another important part of the production. The dancers work hard to learn the routines and perform them in unison. The set designers and builders must go through weeks of planning in order to create the right scenery. They then construct the elaborate sets and, along with the stage crew, learn how to operate them and conduct quick changes between scenes. None of these production groups can work alone and they must all collaborate and consult with each other. The strength of the musical is in its parts as well as in its sum product. Then, together with the actors and musicians, they join to form a successful and professional production of Funny Girl.
The Pit Orchestra is a wonderful accompaniment to the sights, sounds, drama and excitement of FUNNY GIRL. This group of talented and dedicated musicians, conducted by Mr. Bruce Yurko, practices every day after school in order to achieve perfection and excellence for each performance.

As an ensemble, they work with the actors, singers and dancers by creating the mood that involves the audience in the entire production. They conjure up an atmosphere which makes the show living theatre.

Dressed in tuxes and formal wear, the orchestra contributes to the professional image of the production as they provide a regal look and their music is nothing less than inspiring.

Not always given the recognition that they so richly deserve, the pit orchestra plays an important role in the success of East's annual Spring musical production.
Words can't begin to describe the amount of preparation needed to produce a spring musical at East. Not only do you need talented actors and chorus members, but also musicians, hard-working crew members, and a team of qualified instructors of the caliber of Nation, Yurko, Weaver, Haynes, and McKenzie. All of these groups must work together, combine talent, and present the perfection and professionalism that East audiences have come to expect.

This year's musical, FUNNY GIRL, was no different from other memorable productions as it showcased the abilities of the dancers, actors, musicians, and crew members at East. Let's face it. These people are dedicated. They devote several weeks to memorizing lines, songs, and steps; to blocking scenes; to constructing sets; and to rehearsing even into the wee hours of the night.

Why all the hard work? Why do they give up their afternoons and evenings to stay after school, only to come back exhausted the next day?

Well, only after seeing and enjoying an East show can you realize that all the hustle and bustle and marathon rehearsals do indeed pay off as the curtain goes up and as the audience waits in anticipation. Only then do the tireless efforts of the many people involved in every aspect of the show become evident, but in a very different, streamlined form. The total effect is the theatrical magic that transport the audience to a different world enabling them to suspend disbelief and lose themselves for a thrilling moment, the moment when reality fades and the magic begins to work.
The Sounds of East
East's Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Eugene Magill, is complete with strings, winds, brass, and percussion. An audition is required with many members also chosen for the All-South Jersey and All-State Honors Orchestras. The Orchestra performs at school concerts, and this year will also perform at the Glassboro State College Music Festival and in New York City.

Reputed to be the most excellent choir in the school, Chamber Singers boasts a repertoire ranging from Renaissance to contemporary works. Mrs. Martha Fletcher holds auditions each year to select the members. Many of these singers are also chosen for All South Jersey and All State honors Choirs. This talented choir performs not only at school concerts, but also at appointments throughout the Delaware Valley.
The CHANSONS are a group of auditioned female vocalists, who bring music to life with their clear tonal quality, as they sing selections from all periods of music.

Under the direction of Mrs. Martha Fletcher, they perform at various school concerts and community engagements.
CONCERT CHOIR

Concert Choir opens up the world of singing to all members of the school. The music learned and performed under the direction of Mrs. Martha Fletcher is mostly contemporary, and can be heard at school concerts.

The Madrigal

Singers keep the Renaissance spirit alive both through costume and song. This extra-curricular vocal group is renowned for its beautiful performances of Renaissance songs, sometimes accompanied by instruments. The 17 members are selected by audition and practice during homeroom and once a week after school. Throughout the year, they lend their talents to performances in schools, hospitals, and other public and private functions.

Belles Of East

The Belles of East is a unique women's choir composed of 10 members and 3 alternates selected by audition. What distinguishes this group is their use of handbells to accompany their lovely voices. The members create the arrangements for the bells and practice during homeroom and once a week after school. The Belles perform throughout the year in various hospitals, schools, and public and private affairs, and are greatly appreciated by all who hear them.

Symphonic Band is a special group of musicians directed by Mr. Roy Hough. Auditions are required, making this band a talented group. The participants perform many types of music and weekly lessons are provided for the improvement of the musicians.
Concert Band

The Concert Band, directed by Mr. Robert Goldman, gives players a chance to improve their musical skills and instills the necessary experience for auditioning for Symphonic Band and Wind Ensemble at the end of January. The Concert Band performs in January and May and is open to everyone.

AMERICAN MUSIC ABROAD has become a tradition within the East music department, being taken advantage of by many of our vocal and instrumental performing students each summer.

A.M.A. offers talented musical oriented students from all over the United States the opportunity to travel through Europe to both sightsee and perform to delighted audiences.

The lucky students are selected by their local band directors, who recommend their most motivated and talented young musicians to audition for this enviable experience. The students that are selected spend two days in rehearsal and orientation in the United States before embarking on the tour. The tour is of a three week duration and can take the talented troupe to such fascinating countries as Iceland, Luxembourg, Belgium, Austria, West Germany, France, The Netherlands and Switzerland.

The Marching Cougars

The Cherry Hill East Marching Cougars Band, the largest organization in the school with 186 members, has long been a source of pride to East. The band, directed by Mr. Robert Goldman, adds interest to Varsity Football Games, as well as parades and other public performances. The long hours of practice, as well as creating an impressive performance, give band members a chance to develop lifetime friendships.

This year marked the return of the Marching Cougars to the competitive field, and, for the first time since the 1979 season, they participated in the Tournament of Bands Competitions. The band is off to a successful start and has many more years of achievement ahead.

“... Of The Way We Were...”

I have fond recollections of our first visit to Walt Disney World when we transformed an area of the school one evening for Hall Decorations; of perennial powerhouse tug-a-war teams and vagabond volleyball marathon squads; of hard-to-sell Class Caps and easy-to-sell soft pretzels; of one successful Valentine’s Day Dance and 400 Mother’s Day geraniums; of birthday kisses and best wishes; of gold fish and Barnum; of Class Rings and a Class Seal; of a bulletin board that established our domain and a newsletter that heralded our fame; and of a Sophomore Cotillion Ball that lasted “All Night Long!”

And I can remember transporting a little bit of New York to Cherry Hill was quite an “award-winning” feat. Then there was good ole Humpty Dumpty who fell into first-place for us as football concession sales made wealthy juniors of us all; even the red and white candy canes kept us in the green. There were Saturday mornings with SAT’s followed by trips to Mickey D’s; research papers and vocabulary quizzes; yearbook picture deadlines and Junior Jive bylines; the Spring came, and we danced “One More Night” at our prom.

But how can I ever forget Hawkeye, Hot Lips, Klinger, Radar, “GLORIA” and the wacky crew from MASH-4086 or the way in which teachers had to travel through a swamp and dodge enemy bullets at a war zone just to visit the mess hall. The Senior Year brought us “First-Place” awards in Hall Decora- tion, “Spirit Week” and in the Homecoming Float; a less than Super Bowl-bound Powder-Puff Team and Coaching Staff; millions of letters of recommendations and countless Career Essay drafts.

And you have brought me priceless gifts of everlasting memories and a firm belief that EAST’s ‘86 will “always” remain “NUMBER ONE!”

Fondly,
-V

The future is yours . . .
GO FOR IT!

Wishing you happiness, health and success.

Mom, Dad, Nancy & Jonathan

Elizabeth (Liz) Anne Stout,

May your skies be filled with sunshine
Each day your whole life through.
May efforts that you now put forth
Bring rich rewards to you.
May each rainbow that you seek to find
Not e'er be sought in vain.
May each cherished goal you have in sight
Be yours to have and gain.
May hopes and dreams that you possess
One day for you come true.
May God walk always by your side
And light The Way for you.

Sincerely with Love,

MOM AND DAD
