Self is the dearest of all things, and only through the self is anything else dear. The Self is the origin of all finite happiness, but it is itself pure bliss, transcending definition. It remains unaffected by deeds, good or bad. It is beyond feeling and beyond knowledge, but it is not beyond the meditation of the sage."
— Brihad-aranyaka Upanishad

Twenty-five years?
A quarter of a century?
Think about it.
Think about it for, say ... a quarter of an hour.

Think about where you are in your life right now, the first time that you’re reading this ... or the second, or third, or the tenth time ... perhaps a quarter of a century down the road from that June evening, the witness of the commencement of your adulthood.

At any single moment we are the sum of all the things and people and experiences and ideas which have come before us. At that moment we are also a springboard for all of human endeavor, from which a yet-to-be unfolded future beckons.

The first students who walked the halls of East, who sat in her classrooms, who triumphed on her fields, are still here. Commemorated in the first Eidolon — the first “image of excellence” — they are our past. They are also our present and our future.

Looking back to them, we see the horizon of our goals, just as we stand ready to provide the solid foundation for those who follow us.

In high school, we wrestled with definitions for four years. But something far greater than the knowledge to succeed in a career or the building of heartfelt memories was at stake.

If our timeless moment at East was indeed transcendent, it was so because it gave us a sense of Self, strong enough to see the present in the past — and to see the future in both.
Mr. Gallagher takes time out of his busy schedule to pose at his desk.

To The Class Of 1992

As you prepare to leave East after four years, I find that we share some common experiences.

Four years ago, you entered high school as Freshmen, new to East and eager to succeed. In September of that same year, I began my new responsibilities as principal. We have shared many experiences together and, hopefully, have learned from each other as we've grown and developed. As Freshmen, I am sure that four years of high school appeared to be an eternity, while as Seniors, you may be wondering where the time went.

I will always save a special place in my memories for the Class of '92 for many reasons, but especially because that by your efforts you will be leaving East a better school than when you entered.

Thanks for making a difference and best of luck in the future.

During our Freshman year, former principal Anthony R. Cost turned his post over to vice-principal James G. Gallagher.
Into competition, twelve boys' gymnastics teams came, ready to show the best of their skill. Family and friends applauded as the gymnasts performed amazing feats of grace and agility. Closely they followed one young man to the next through the events, glancing away only to examine the judges' features for a hint of the scores before they were announced. With its many talented and determined gymnasts, our team performed well from the start. Nevertheless, by the last event, East trailed the highest scoring team by two points. The high bar alone was left. Each performance by the last three gymnasts encompassed eternity for the spectators as they awaited the results. Fortunately, the high bar was our strongest event, and with the near perfect performances of these three young men, East soared ahead in the last few moments to win the state title.

Looking Back After the Competition

Bystander: Gymnasts must be born with grace and strength! Look how effortlessly they vaulted over the horse and how perfectly they executed every move on the parallel bars.

Team manager: Yes, these young men seemed flawless as they took the 1990 Boys' Gymnastics State Championship title, but it certainly was not easy. Besides, did you say that move on the horse and parallel bars seemed effortless? Well, you should have seen the team as they started the season...

Bystander: Why? Was it really hard?

Team manager: Actually, these young men were already quite experienced, although sometimes, they seemed much less than graceful as they planned to vault over the horse, but tumbled over instead. Only practice, practice, and more practice perfected these moves.

Bystander: Unfortunately, an outsider to the sport like myself doesn't recognize the hard work behind the spectacular performance the gymnasts gave today.

Team manager: It is disappointing, but more importantly, this year the judges recognized and rewarded our ability and determination.

Every successful team in professional sports has one thing in common: a mainstay or a veteran. That's the stuff that dynasties are made of, for there is nothing stronger than a contingent of competitors centered around a figure of reliable excellence. Young, inexperienced athletes need a leader, source of motivation - someone who knows how to win.

When coach Ralph Ipri looked at his 1990-91 Boys Tennis Team, some faces were missing. Four of his starters from the 1989-90 team had graduated, leaving an encouraging yet fledgling team. It was for this reason the teens didn't set their goal too high. They just wanted to contend in the Division IV region.

However, when play began, Mr. Ipri was pleasantly surprised. The few upperclassmen that remained were talented and dependable, and the younger players far exceeded anyone's expectations. With a team of five new starters out of the seven positions, East's team could be compared to the Philadelphia Phillies of 1950. The "Whiz Kids," as they were called, were a group of rookie baseball players who, condemned by the experts to a season of despair, went on to win the pennant.

Similarly, East's team transcended its outlook. The crew achieved a record of 28 victories to just one loss and captured the state public high school championship. From there, East went on to defeat the best private school squad, the Christian Brothers Academy, a team that had won the state tournament title 8 of the previous 15 years, to be crowned the best high school tennis team in the state.

This marked the first time in the history of tournament play that any team from southern New Jersey had ever won the high honor possible. Recalled varsity player Sagarnil Nag, "It was an exciting time winning match after match, especially when we thought that we were too young to win. But as it turned out, a solid team is better than a couple of stars."

Star tennis player Dave Kurzweil slams the ball across the court in a crushing defeat of the Christian Brothers Academy to capture the state championship.

Coach Ralph Ipri and team members Jared Morris and Jay Bardwaj take a break from the action to pose for the Eidolon photographer.

'90-91 TENNIS CHAMPS 7
This year, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Cherry Hill High School East, Eidolon has reviewed our triumphs, moving experiences, and memorable events through the years. These times, as well as general comparisons of then and now, show just how much teenagers’ lives have changed and remained the same over the last two and a half decades.

The Way We Were

Turn left and go up the stairs to third floor B-wing. Third floor B-wing? No, it’s not a trick for unsuspecting freshmen. Surprisingly, B-wing was originally designed to have three floors. Obviously, the design did not go beyond the drawing board. After construction was completed, B-wing was first utilized as a temporary elementary school, separate from the high school which was, literally, next door.

And what a high school! Upperclassmen reported to school at 8:00 A.M. and left at 2:30 P.M. So far, so good. But pity the poor freshmen. They had to come in during third period and stay until... tenth! Yes, tenth period, which ended at 4:00 P.M., was the end of the day for them. This bizarre arrangement was necessary due to the lack of adequate space.

No wonder, then, that it was necessary to expand the facilities. Imagine what today’s student body would be going through if B-wing were still filled with grade-schoolers!

Hardly five minutes after school is dismissed, anyone in the vicinity of either the boys’ or girls’ locker room is sure to hear eager voices from within as the athletics teams get ready for practice or a game. In the past, however, this sound would be... in stereo! Before the Di Bart Gym was constructed, everyone used what is now called the girls’ gym. The girls’ locker room was therefore divided into two, for boys and girls. This explains the still existing “B” on half of the girls’ lockers today and the “G” on the other half. In the days of the split locker room, there were nowhere near as many girls’ sports offered as there are today. Many of them were phased in as the years went by. Even the playing fields behind East had not been developed when the school first opened its doors. Intramurals and open gym programs were also not available for a long time. With the addition of the “boys” gym, the school was able to distribute its physical education students as well as athletics teams much more effectively. Today, of course, both boys and girls have a wide range of athletic programs to choose from, with excellent facilities in which to train their bodies as well as their minds.

Sure, you may cherish your new jeeps and sportscars today, but back then, you would probably be adoring that brand new Caddie even though it only gave seven miles to the gallon, and was the same distance from front to back! And you wouldn’t have found as many students cruising the highways in those huge gas-guzzling classics during the school week, but everyone had them for the weekends. The question, “Dad, can I have the car on Friday night?” was usually answered with a “yes,” much to the glee of the kids.

From hip-hugging bellbottoms to patchwork jackets, fashion in the era of flower children was much less rigid and definite in its styles than it is today. Waist-length hair parted in the middle was the norm for most girls while guys let their childhood crew cuts grow down to their shoulders. Thick high heels and platform shoes completed the ensemble. It was a rebellion against the strict conventions of the past. Interestingly, the old structured styles made a comeback with the advent of the eighties, and the adoption of a school dress code in the beginning of the nineties shows the same limiting influence. But at the same time, the styles of before, though admittedly updated, are returning in the form of miniskirts, psychedelic leggings, and French twists. Who knows what may come next?

EDUCATION! Yes, it’s supposed to be your reason for coming to school, and imagining it from before, you can just see students of the past few decades coming in and plowing through the same courses you have been for the past few years. But actually, academics and electives have changed a great deal. Following the same trend from liberalism to conservatism in fashion, education (and teachers) in the late sixties weren’t so concerned with rules and regulations. The general atmosphere as students walked through the halls didn’t feel as threatening with fewer monitors standing at corners demanding passes. And electives were a great deal more relaxing. Pottery and basket-weaving offered real breaks during a difficult and stressful day of studying and learning. Towards the early eighties, however, education became more intense with more rigorous courses. Some of the simple, “for-fun” electives were dropped, and practical co-op programs were added. Other electives, like the music program, still exist and get better each year. With these changes, students are now more prepared for college or work because of the steadily increasing quality of education at East.

But do you want to know about life in general? Well, truthfully, kids just haven’t changed that much through the years. Sure, there have been a few changes in the general atmosphere. Again, students swung from liberal to conservative with the peace protests of the late sixties and early seventies (yes, even Cherry Hill had its hippies!) and the serious practical attitude of the eighties. But now, we seem to have swung back with the concern with recycling and more social organizations. On our own time, though, we are the same. We still go to the movies and the shore. We still get jobs to pay for our car, and more importantly, for the car insurance. We talk on the phone at all hours, and we party on the weekends, and we worry about homework at midnight on Sundays. It’s been 25 years . . . a whole generation . . . and we’re not very different after all.
The Eagles victory was an uphill fight against the persistent East players. The Eagles were a cut above the rest, but the East "Beauties" valiantly held their own.

AUGUST 17, 1991

The Philadelphia Eagles swooped into the East gym to battle the East staff in an exciting struggle between basketball and laughter. The event was a joint fund-raiser for the Eagles and the yearbook. Todd Rappaport and Lee Goldstein chaired the event, assisted by Alan Glazer and Manpreet Dhanjal. A crowd of almost 2000 excited fans gathered to see players, Andre Waters, Mike Golic, Britt Hager, Wes Hopkins and Don McPherson.

Even the varsity Cheerleaders were there to push the East team to jump higher, shoot faster and play harder. Mr. Sheldon Zeff, coached the East team undauntingly.

Following the fun-packed game, the Eagles mingled with the crowd, signed autographs and made this a night to remember.

Foreign Exchange Students

Incomprehensible American accents. A new school. Not a single familiar face. This was what the exchange students had to face as they looked upon the land they would call home for many months. They came from places as far away as Croatia and Japan and Holland to sample a different culture, taste a different way of life.

They had studied the United States in textbooks at their schools, but no textbook could encompass half of what they experienced here. Iva Orlic, a Croatian student, observed that she had studied fourteen subjects at the school in her hometown of Zagreb.

The students had to get accustomed to the school being the hub of activity. Here, unlike in many European cities, there was no café across the street in which to meet people over snacks. Thus, they had to learn new ways of getting to know people.

Slowly, the students began to mix with the East community. They joined clubs, participated in athletics, and began to get involved in their new community.

Transportation was another difficulty, because Cherry Hill had no public transportation system. Everyone had to rely on cars to get around. The quietness of Cherry Hill was unnerving to some. There was little nightlife, and most students didn’t go out on school nights. "There was more free time in Zagreb," remarked Orlic. "Still I like East."

In spite of all the differences, the students realized that people were people, no matter what country they were from. "In every country, people’s ways might be a little different, but every one is really the same - everyone has fun," commented Biana Brukman, an exchange student from Russia.

With friendships such as those between the exchange students and students at East, the world could only get smaller.

The lights are glaring from above as you lie there, waiting anxiously. The nurses and volunteers buzz all around. Suddenly, you feel a slight twinge as a needle enters your arm. The faces around you blur as you try to concentrate on anything but the pain... In a minute, it is all over, and you are at the canteen with your doughnut and juice, proudly showing off the sticker on your lapel that tells the world, “Be nice to me. I gave blood!”

For three days in the fall and spring, East’s dance gym was transformed into the arena for the semi-annual Blood Drive. Students, staff, and members of the community came in to donate the ever-necessary resource: blood. Although the actual drive spanned three days, preparation for it began long before that.

Weeks prior to the event, students signed up to be on various committees. Members of the publicity committee posted signs around the school urging people to donate blood with slogans such as “Give a little... Save a lot!” and “One pint saves five lives.” Flyers were distributed throughout the community - anywhere they might attract attention. Students dressed up as blood drops visited the cafeteria during lunch periods to convince people to give blood. It took a lot of persuading, because some first-time donors were apprehensive about it. But the hard work resulted in an outstanding donor turnout.

East has won the Camden County Red Cross Award for the most pints of blood donated by a large high school five years in a row. In 1990, a new East record was established for the most blood donated.

But the blood drive was a lot more than mere statistics. Every donor received a certificate of acknowledgement as well as specific information on how the blood is used - to treat victims of accidents, cancer patients, etc. Donor Michael Suraike commented, “This made it seem more real to me - it was not some abstract thing any more.” The countless lives that were saved certainly made every minute of the drive worthwhile.

EXPANSION MANAGEMENT

TOP SCHOOLS

CHERRY HILL SCORES IN THE TOP TEN SCHOOLS THAT HAVE THE RIGHT STUFF FOR EMPLOYERS.

Expansion Management, a bi-monthly magazine for business executives and managers worldwide, has ranked Cherry Hill’s public schools among the nation’s top 25 school districts that have, in their words, “the right stuff for employers.” The cover story in the Fall Issue explained the EQ (Educational Quotient) which their experts used to rate the districts, explaining why and how the magazine scored the schools on educating future workers.

Cherry Hill’s ranking of 8th nationally became very impressive since it was the only New Jersey district to make it to the Top Ten. With a baseline of 100 denoting the average, Cherry Hill scored 132.8, only 5 points below the top-ranked New Haven, Connecticut with a score of 137.8.

Expansion Management developed the Education Quotient (EQ), after a panel of business executives unanimously agreed that the areas of quality had to deal with the quality of high school graduates a company would be able to hire. Criteria for this was: average SAT/ACT scores, student-teacher ratio, drop-out rate, per pupil expenditure, achievement test data, graduation requirements and educational background of parents. Featured in the cover story, was an article on “solving the educational riddle”, the importance of comparison of district’s educational strengths. The ranking reflects the Cherry Hill district’s emphasis on involving the total school community in the pursuit of quality highly motivated students, a dedicated staff and Board of Education, and a community of concerned and supportive parents.

Special Thank You to Mrs. Laurie Zelnik, Public Information Officer, Cherry Hill District.
It doesn't seem possible that our time together is coming to an end. Not so long ago, I welcomed you and challenged you to make this school your home. Since that day, you have made a significant impact on East. Your contributions in the classroom, on the playing fields, on the stage, in the world of print, and through countless student government activities have helped to maintain our tradition as a community dedicated to excellence. As you move on, you leave behind a legacy of achievement, pride, growth, and a concern for the world around you.

During the last four years we have all been forced to deal with many issues that threaten our world. We have learned of the deadly reality of the HIV virus. We watched together the tragic events of the successful Operation Desert Storm. We saw poverty and homelessness grow to epidemic proportions due to serious economic recession. Reluctantly, we faced the threat of the abuse of drugs and alcohol. The pressures have been constant, but the resources for survival, even victory, are obtainable.

I sincerely hope that East has given all of you the ability to eventually recognize those resources and to realize that our successes in this struggle will depend on our ability to work together.

Finally, I would like you to know that I have thoroughly enjoyed being your grade level principal and that you have made a permanent impression on my life. In response, I can offer you no greater gift or more lasting message than that contained in my favorite blessing.

May the Lord bless you and keep you,
The Lord life up HIs countenance upon you and give you peace. The Lord make His face to shine upon you, and be gracious unto you.
Amen
Mr. T.

Dear Class of 1992,

I find it impossible to cram the feelings generated by four years of sundry personal relationships, Spirit Weeks, Homecomings, dances, proms, and fundraisers into a half of print. So, I decided to string my strongest sentiments together in the vein of hope of communicating my emotions. Well, as your adviser, I felt pleased - delighted - captivated - ecstatic.

Still not clear? Perhaps a change to a quite familiar format might help:
The question below consists of a related pair of words or phrases, followed by five lettered pairs of words or phrases. Selected the lettered pair that best expresses a relationship similar to that expressed in the original pair.

Example:
Malatesta : Class of '92 : :
A. adviser : pleased          B. adviser : delighted
C. adviser : captivated      D. adviser : ecstatic
E. adviser : all of the above

(Note: The Correct choice is E. all of the above because I say so!)

See, that alphabet soup you endured (HSPT, TAP, PSAT, NMSCT, SAT) has best expressed its objectives (of all places) in your yearbook. And, it was my foremost pleasure to bring this learning experience to you. Wishing you the best life has to offer, I remain.
Sincerely yours,
Anthony Malatesta

- November 18 - Hostages Terry Waite and Tim Sutherland are freed in Lebanon.
- December 2 - Pennsylvania hostage Joseph Cioppo is released.
- December 4 - Last hostage, Terry Anderson is released after 6 1/2 years in captivity.
- December 8 - Russia, Ukraine, Byelorussia form a “commonwealth” and declare central Soviet government defunct. The year’s end sees a once powerful nation in turmoil with food shortages and disaster for all. The U.S. readies food and medical supplies to be airlifted after the new year.

Rap star Vanilla Ice debut album hit the 6 million mark with “To The Extreme”.

Professor Anita Hill came forward to discredit Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas with charges of sexual harassment ten years earlier. The hearing made TV viewing a must and embarrassed a country. The U.S. Appeals court judge finally, after much debate and riveting testimony, was confirmed to the nation’s highest court.
January 17, 1991 saw the United States declare war on Iraq after Saddam Hussein refused to withdraw from Kuwait. The Persian Gulf war brought a new wave of nationalism to the United States as we toppled the Iraqi forces; however, Hussein remained in power. The Iraqi forces ignited thousands of oil well fires with the last one being extinguished in November 1991. A year after Kuwait City was freed, the effects of war remained.

Michael Jordan flew through the air as the star of the Chicago Bulls lead his team to the NBA championship. In this photo, he moves for a finger roll lay-up during a game with Houston Rockets.

Arnold Schwarzenegger was a hit in the hit film, "Terminator 2: Judgment Day." At a cost of more than $80 million, it was the most expensive movie ever made.

The coup in the Soviet Union began on August 19, 1991. An eight man committee took power from President Mikhail Gorbachev. By the time the coup was overturned four days later, the world saw the end of Communist rule in the USSR, independence for their satellite provinces and the collapse of the United Soviet Socialist Republic.

Civil War broke out in Yugoslavia. The war unraveled this nation of six divergent republics, two of which - Croatia and Slovenia - declared independence. All six had been held together under the previous hand of Dictator Marshall Tito. His death in 1980 brought radical changes to the communist bloc of Eastern Europe and the spirit for freedom and democracy emerged.

War is terrible, but it brought new friends to Cherry Hill East. As a direct result - our Croatian exchange students helped make the world a little smaller.

After nearly seven years as a hostage, Terry Anderson was released on December 4, 1991. Anderson spent 2,455 days as a hostage in Lebanon, being the longest held American hostage.

Magic Johnson, the popular Los Angeles Lakers basketball star, shocked the country with his announcement that he was infected with the H-IV virus that causes AIDS, and was withdrawing from the game he loved.

Class History

W ell, I finally sent out those schedules this afternoon. Just think! 500 clueless yet overly energetic Freshmen will soon be scurrying through the hallways searching fruitlessly for third floor B-wing ... Oh, by the way, we've got a new principal this year, Mr. James J. Gallagher. Wonder what he'll be like. At least the Freshmen won't feel alone. Well, I'm lucky. I've been through it all before ...

I see Mr. Belchikoff is back, with his exhortations to "Get involved." I love it when he says that "East is a buffet." Well, he's certainly right, as these young upstarts will soon find out. Let's see how the class of '92 does at Spirit Week.

On second thought, let's not.

On a brighter note, the football team won the Group IV State Championship. Let's hope my Freshmen learn something from them. And these kids certainly seem to be getting involved! Maybe it was Shakespeare that did the trick. At first, I thought, Romeo and Juliet? That antiquated sentimental story couldn't possibly be entertaining today. But I have to admit, my students never cease to amaze me! They really brought the play to life for every Freshman who had to pore over it for that first major high school English test. Boy, they work hard, those Freshmen. With courses like World Civilization, Earth Science, and QPS they trudge through the snow with piles of books in their arms, trying to get all of their homework done and still have time for their favorite TV show. By this time, they must all be looking forward to their well-deserved break. Before it, of course, is the FOP Rotary Party. The front hall is usually flooded with Freshmen cutting out paper snowmen and painting decorations, and this year is no exception ...

The halls always seem so empty and quiet during the holidays. My students who are out, however, are anything but quiet! These two weeks are filled with things to do—watching movies such as Scrooged and Rain Man, going to see Les Miserables perhaps, or even just...
shopping.

I'm always glad when January comes and the halls are filled with voices and footsteps once again. Oh, look what my students came up with this time to get into the spirit ... or should I say ... JELLO? It's the East premiere of ... Jello Wrestling!! In my 22 years here, I have never witnessed such a spectacle as people rolling in vats of crimson gelatin. They eat it, they breathe it, they bathe in it! Obviously, these kids (and teachers!) never want to grow up! Small wonder, then, that our spring musical is ... Peter Pan! The lighthearted youngster has flown in the door and has whisked all of us off on a magical journey to Never Never Land for two fantasy-filled weeks. Do you believe in fairies?

At last it's May. Those freshmen are so busy - because it's time for that annual freshman rite of passage - the Freshman Dance. The scene is set in the cafeteria, and everyone seems to be ready to dance their way into June ... and the summer!

Finals are over, and all the anxiety is past. All they have to do now is return their textbooks, empty their lockers, and say their goodbyes. Two and a half months!! But they aren't idlers, my students. Between volunteer jobs, beach parties, and traveling, they relax and enjoy their vacations. They naively imagine that Freshman year was hard. Just wait until next year ...

It's almost September, and schedule conflicts abound. Some Freshmen ... oops, they're Sophomores now, are sampling their first honors courses. To get psyched about East again, the classes pit themselves against one another in Spirit Week! Poor Sophomores. I guess they'll have to pick themselves up and try again next year. Some kids are then introduced to the enthusiastic romancing of Drosophile flies as they fruitfully multiply and replenish the test tube in Biology class. Then there's the high school requirement that no one dreads - Driver's Education (excluding perhaps those gory movies that rival even The Texas Chainsaw Massacre). For these Sophomores, the class means freedom as they will soon be let loose onto the streets with their permits. Phew!! It's a good thing that they're out there and I'm in here. Everywhere the students seem to be learning about the importance of biology and life, including in the Blood Drive. And there is quite a demand for blood, especially with our newest addition, Audrey II. This man-eating plant and the entire Little Shop of Horrors cast, (students and teachers included) are terrorizing the audience. In fact, the Sophomores' grade-level principal is enjoying himself so much, that he might just laugh himself to death...

From the microcosm to the macrocosm. The Berlin Wall, which has been there for as long as I can remember, is being quickly chipped away as Eastern Europe emerges from behind the Iron Curtain.

Seda Munis tackles a Molecular Building set in her Cell Physiology class.

Art teacher, Mr. George Jackson, assists Stephanie Porter with a linoleum block print.

This is certainly a historic year for the advancement of democracy around the world.

Quickly winter comes and leaves. As spring blossoms, the students' thoughts center on protecting the environment. Wow, my kids certainly know how to make a point! Walking out definitely makes it clear to our administrators that these students are serious about keeping the earth inhabitable. Styrofoam goes the way of horse-drawn carriages as East's own EPA, the Friends of the Environment is established.

But for one special night, the Sophomores are content to relax just a little and concentrate on not stepping on each others' toes while dancing. That's right! It's the annual Cotillion and the cafeteria has been transformed overnight into a tropical cruise ship complete with leis and pineapples. Uh oh! The guard rail has fallen down! Watch out there, sailor, don't fall into those warm tropical waters!

It's time to cram for finals. They seem a little more relaxed this year - perhaps it's that feeling of deja vu. For the warm summer months, some of our soon-to-be upperclassmen still go down to the shore, while others find jobs to pay for the car that they will soon be driving with their permits.

And they're back! They look so cool getting out of the cars of their Senior friends. They can stare down any Freshman now, or show him the way to the swimming pool. (I can't believe that joke's still around after 24 years!) It's time once again for Spirit Week. Well, at least there's a slight improvement... I sincerely hope they get their act together by next year. Some of these Juniors are finally realizing the importance of their grades, especially with PSAT'S coming up. Here's a sampling...

1) T or F: Milli Vanilli
2) T or F: Census takers cannot count.
3) Who killed Laura Palmer, anyway?

Among their brightest memories will be Brighton Beach Memoirs the play performed as this year's Fall production. Sure, the circumstances are different, but in that teenage boy who leads the show, I can see all of my kids.

For a while now, our thoughts have been in the Persian Gulf. We are all shocked by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. To show their support, the students are wearing yellow ribbons and are writing letters to the soldiers in Operation Desert Shield.

It's January. Desert Shield has turned into Desert Storm. The students are more concerned than ever for the safety of the forces stationed in the arid desert. Although I wish my students didn't have to live through a major war, I'm glad they care so much about the troops we've sent.

Suddenly, our attention is focused on one of our own townsman, Jeffrey Zaun - who has been taken prisoner by the Iraqis. All of us sympathize with the pain and anguish his parents must be experiencing ... Anxiously we await any news at all. Slowly, a month of uncertainty drags by. The fighting has ended quickly - unlike the war I went through years ago. Everyone breathes a sigh of relief as the war ends. Welcome home, Jeffrey.

The students begin to return to their everyday affairs. No, wait! They've caught Spring Fever, that disease that strikes unsuspecting Juniors and prevents them from any serious concentration. It's a mild form of Senioritis, and becomes worse regardless of treatment. All they can do is dance to MC Hammer and C&C Music Factory and watch Beverly Hills 90210. To distract themselves even further, the students put on a lively performance of Guys and Dolls. What next, finals? Forget about finals! Let's concentrate on the Junior Prom. In the elegant Phoenix Room bedecked with turquoise and silver balloons, couples attired in gorgeous gowns and tantalizing tuxedos enjoyed each other's company ... "For Just a Mo-

Planning already for their summers, the Seniors, yes SENIORS, seem almost to enjoy class. Why, some of them are even going to colleges during the summer! Others have found such jobs as clerks and salesmen to pay for the extravagant year ahead.

Finally the oldest kids at East, these Seniors come waltzing back into school, this time stepping out of cars that they themselves drive. The first half of the year seems so difficult for them. Already attacked by the full form of the dreaded Senior virus, my poor kids just don't want to do anything. But this is when they have to do everything as they prepare for COLLEGE - that monstrous word that looms before Seniors with its threatening SAT's as these young adults try to live with the ESAT's: East's Senioritis Achievement Test. However, it doesn't seem that these seniors will have too much to worry about if the 25 National Merit Semifinalists, the highest percentage of Mickey Mouse and all his friends at Disney World wave goodbye to the departing Seniors after an exciting Class Trip.

East's students ever, signify anything (as long as they keep their grades up)! how to work and relax at the same time is a timeless Senior dilemma!

To take their minds off of these worries, however, are a myriad of activities like . . . you guessed it . . . Spirit Week. Yeaah!! My Seniors have finally triumphed. I'm so proud of them. I knew they could do it all along! Then there's the fall show. TARTUFFE. Everyone is really getting a laugh out of Tartuffe's scheming ways, becoming totally Tartuffified in the process. There's also Battle of the Bands, Lip Sync, Variety Show, PAVAS, and countless other events which include these kids' final spring production. Fiddler on the Roof. Then add to those for the seniors' special enjoyment, the Mr. East contest, the trip to Florida, and the Senior Prom.

And now the moment that we've all waited for and dreaded at the same time is finally here: GRADUATION! As they proudly display their diplomas and toss their hats to the sky, the four past years flash through my mind - from the minute those freshmen walked in the door to the echoes of their cheers in the stadium. Whenever my students travel in the years to come, they'll always remember that their journey began right here at East.

Class History written by Suma C.M. and Rita Louth.
This year, our Cindy Kam won the title of Young Woman of the Year for Northeast Camden County and then competed at the state level, where she placed second in both the Scholastic Achievement and Creative and Performing Arts categories.

Summer 1991, Rachel Garfield traveled to Ecuador as a volunteer in a community service project.

Congressman Jim Saxton met with Keira Natal in front of the Capitol. This past summer, Keira worked as a page for the House of Representatives.

For the first time in three years, the Debate Team, coached by Mr. Robert Nation, recaptured the South Jersey State Title. At the competition, Manpreet Dhanjal was recognized as Best Speaker in the league.

Oboist Michael Chueh performs regularly with the talented Philadelphia Youth Orchestra and has auditioned at the preprofessional level.

Each year, the New Jersey Board of Higher Education awards scholarships to students who will be attending New Jersey colleges. Awards are determined by class rank and S.A.T. scores. Awards are determined by class rank and S.A.T. scores. The two divisions between the awards are the Garden State Scholars and the Edward J. Bloustein Distinguished Scholars.

This year, our seniors continue East's longstanding tradition of high numbers of recipients of the prestigious Garden State Scholarships for academic excellence.

Eidoion regrets that space limitations prevent the listing of the names of all Garden State Scholars, Bloustein Distinguished Scholars, and PAVAS members.
In the summer of '91, our student leaders attended the Leadership Training Conference, a program coordinated annually by the New Jersey Association of Student Councils. There, the NJASC brought together representatives from various New Jersey high schools to exchange leadership ideas and expertise. Our participants were (from left to right): Junior Tricia Relloso, Bryan Goldstein, Jeff Perkins, Howie Necowitz, Junior Lisa Shusterman, and Steve Asbell.

Each year, the Performing and Visual Arts Society recognizes the accomplishments of East's seniors by inducting a select few into East's chapter of the national organization PAVAS. Talents ranged from painting to drama to debate. At the induction ceremony, all the nominees were asked to design a mask characteristic of their personal achievements.

The Cherry Hill Board of Education created the "Breakfast with the Board" this year because it felt a need to have good communications with students in the secondary schools. Students who were chosen represent a wide variety of East's student body and share a common goal to better our school community. These students were: (Back row): Junior Lisa Shusterman, Stephanie Pearson; (Front row): Manpreet Dhanjal, Sophomore Neil Relloso, and Jeff Perkins.

A new division of New Jersey scholarships was created this year in order to honor the top scorers and academic achievers from each school. These students are called the Edward J. Blostein Distinguished Scholars. The large numbers of recipients of both awards represent the quality of East's education.

Every year, local corporations award scholarships to students who are among the best in their school science leagues. Our students chosen were (from left to right): Harry Sun, Michael Suralik, Rita Louh, Alan Glazer, and Grace Shih.

Congratulations!

SENIOR ACHIEVEMENTS 27
The top 1% of the class make up the ranking scholars, the individuals who are the academic best of their class. Although these students truly deserve recognition and honor for their outstanding achievements, the following shall contain nothing about their grades, scores, or awards ...

One cannot truly understand RACHEL GARFIELD until one looks past her excellent academic record and looks at the person behind it, from head to toe.

Rachel is often identified by her long curly brown hair which bounces as she walks. Her big brown eyes, always have a sort of questioning look in them as she tries to take in everything that is going on around her. One wouldn't think that such a small, thin frame could handle the strenuous activities which she puts it through such as biking through Europe, hiking, and mountain climbing. Lastly, one can often find Rachel's feet in her favorite summer shoes, Tevas - a cross between flip flops and sandals. They may look a little odd to most people but as Rachel would say "Who cares?". Those feet will surely lead her down a path filled with success and happiness.

CINDY KAM
It begins quietly, subtly. Shyness, hesitancy grasp onto the delicate tones that tickle the air. Seconds pass, marked by the flowing motions of the conductor’s arms. Crescendo and accelerando usher in the transition between exposition and theme, as the disparate instrumental voices melt into a unisonance. Determination replaces vacillation. While the exultant theme chimes dynamically, the mellifluous harmony calmly, surely provides unfailing support. The piece grows more impassioned, for the euphony becomes more inspired and complex. The conductor’s direction no longer suffices; the single voice pursues its own interpretation. The voice soars, above constraints, individualism captured in song, pursuing its own paths, embodying a spectrum of spirit-stirring emotion, until it begins its descent, winding down and settling into a powerful, resolute chord.

Welcome to the painting of my mind. The portrait is divided into irregular fragments put together like a bad jigsaw puzzle. A mass of color is seen swirling in a peaceful maelstrom into the center. The bright yellows and reds weave in and out of their more sombre counterparts, running into the blues, greens, purples, and oranges. The whole chaos of colors bullying each other and serenely in a startling white whose intensity depends on the strength of a colored life. How ever, deep in the core of the white, the colors emerge, almost imperceptible to the eye, - AGAIN.

I have frequently been informed and have often found that the only way to succeed in any discipline is to pay strict attention to the teacher, take clear notes, and consistently complete assigned homework.

Christianity is the guiding force in my life. Men have always been and will always be equal to women. I have profound respect for the math dept. at East. The students of East are the paradigms of intelligence. Unbeknownst to most, the ideal method of learning is by rote. Always treat others with kindness and respect even if you find them personally distasteful. Do not voice your true opinion if it will offend others.

These seniors were selected as Semifinalists based on their scores on the PSAT-NMSQT test, which they took as juniors. Students had to score over the selection index cutoff to achieve this standing. This year, the needed index was 204. These students’ scores were in the top one-half of one percent in the state of New Jersey.

Mr. James J. Gallagher, Principal and Mr. James Subin, Director of Guidance pose with the Merit semi-finalists. The 25 Semi-Finalists from East High School, set a new State record with the largest total to ever come out of a New Jersey High School.
Each year, a number of students in the senior class are chosen to be in the Senior Hall of Fame. They are selected based on their character, honors, and contributions to Cherry Hill East. Only 50 of the initially nominated 150 students are picked for this honor by a thirteen-teacher committee.
Hey! I bet you thought that the senior class trip has always been to Florida, right?

Wrong!

This annual recreational retreat was originally a trip to ... Canada! And in February! As you might have guessed, students spent more time putting on extra pairs of socks than they did enjoying themselves.

in the frigid cold. So, in 1982, the compass needle was fortunately turned in the other direction. Students began to fly south, like the birds before them, to the warm welcoming wonderland of Florida. With temperatures and spirits soaring high, they anticipated fun without frostbite.

So they found Mickey and Goofy and Donald. All in Disney World. They all greeted the visitors from East. What a difference to see palm trees instead of maple trees. Our seniors could pack more souvenirs than thermal underwear.

They visited and saw everything. Epcot Center, The Pavilions, Cinderella's Castle, MGM and Space Mountain. The senior class trip has come a long way from its cold, humble beginnings. Hooray!!

34 YOUNG WOMAN OF THE YEAR
America's Junior Miss, now known as Young Woman of the Year, is a nationwide program to recognize, reward and encourage excellence in our young people. Since its inception in 1958, America's Junior Miss, Inc. has become one of the leading scholarship programs in the world. Last year, more than $3 million was offered on local, state and national levels, with approximately $300,000 available in the State of New Jersey.

Young Woman of the Year is not a beauty contest. It honors senior girls for overall qualities of scholarship, talent, fitness, presence and composure expressed in a personal interview.

The State Finals, held each January here in Cherry Hill, brings together outstanding representatives from all 21 counties. Cherry Hill East's coordinator is Miss Joan Bruno.

Academic possibilities for high school students are nearly endless. Aside from the hundreds of different classes available in all of the different subjects, there is a multitude of clubs and activities outside school for students to become involved in. One such activity is the Governor’s School. Ranging from programs in the sciences to programs in the arts, these four week assemblies provide all who attend with an experience unlike any other education.

The selection process for all of the programs is the same. Each student must apply within his high school and take an interview. A committee of the high school then nominates the students best suited (a maximum of six for the Arts and two for all other areas). The nominees then must complete an application to the Governor’s School. To be selected for his particular field, a student must demonstrate extraordinary interest and ability through that application. Six of East’s students exhibited those characteristics: Terri Smith and Harry Sun for the environment, Rita Louh for science, and Michael Chueh, Andrew Kamholz, and Jason Lee for the arts.

The Governor’s School for the Environment, held at Stockton State College, provided an intense study of the world’s pollution, energy forms, and culture. The main study programs for the students included energy sources for the future, cultural perspectives on the environment, human ecology, and the ocean. Two more focused courses were a study on inner-city Camden and the development of an ideal city. Aside from the primary instruction, many speakers provided insight on the environment from many different angles. Field trips included a visit to the United Nations, the Museum of Anthropology and Archaeology at the University of Pennsylvania, and even an incinerator at a Buddhist Monastery.

The Governor’s School in the Sciences at Drew University covered both the traditional branches of science as well as some of the newer technologies. The main courses offered were introductory Pascal programming, a biology study in membranes, cosmology, number theory, chemistry and medicine, and physics in the twentieth century. Students also collaborated on team projects which included such topics as psychology, lasers, high speed photography, embryology, development of muscle, the ecosystem, and physics in music. In addition to guest speakers, there were field trips to the AT&T and Bell Labs, the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, and Exxon laboratories.

The Governor’s School of the Arts at Trenton State College supplied an intense study in several fields of the arts. Courses of study were music, visual arts, theater, creative writing, and dancing. Students devoted between six and nine hours a day practicing or performing their form of art, with an all-day performance each Sunday. In addition, students performed both individual and collaborative projects every Friday Night at a show open to the public. Each field had numerous specialists and performers demonstrate to the students, using performance as a method of teaching. There were also weekly speakers on the subject of the link between art and society.

The Governor’s School experience provided a wealth of information for the students. Aside from the academic education, they learned something about college life, living in a dormitory on campus for a month. However, each person brought something back greater than the sum of the knowledge he had accumulated. As happens every year, every student who attended a program shared his learnings with all of the rest of the students at East, providing a tremendous experience for all.

Girls State. It’s an honor to hear six girls win near the end of junior year. Laura Busse, Cindy Kam, Seda Munis, Nicole Nigrelli, Gerri Reid and Carrie Sendrow. You know it’s a fun week-long experiment in government and politics. Okay, so what do the girls actually do? Part of a nationwide program, Girls State brings young women together in each state to learn about government through actual participation. The girls begin as soon as they arrive, holding elections on the very first day! Starting each day with a patriotic opening ceremony, the girls then split into three parties of Nationalists, Federalists, and Freeholders to determine their party platforms.

Sure, politicians need to speak well and have a great smile, but the girls also find that politics requires a sharp mind and a serious attitude towards the issues. Like real candidates, the young ladies debate their two main issues, education and environment, for hours. Beginning with city positions, elections progress to higher and higher offices each day, and with their strong leadership qualities, more than half of East’s six girls have state-level positions by the end of the week.

But the girls discover a great deal more than just the issues. One of the competitions, the Model City contest, encompassed the spirit of the week. With people who had been complete strangers to them only a day or two before, the girls had to cooperate in different activities to win the competition. And whether they won or not, the girls enjoyed the week of comraderie and activity.
While most of us were attending the last day of school, six boys attended the American Legion Jersey Boys’ State program. Spending six days at Rider College in Lawrenceville, delegates Steve Asbell, Manpreet Dhanjal, Jon Glass, Ryan Jander, Jeff Perkins, and Scott Ross obtained hands-on experience of the workings of the American political system.

When the delegates arrived, they were randomly divided into two political parties, Federalists and Nationalists, and into twelve cities. From the beginning, the delegates were thrown into the mainstream of our governmental system. By the end of the first day, the delegates had elected officials ranging from Guide-On bearers to City Party Chairman to Mayor. These officials were to help govern the city and deal with their fictional problems. Next, each county (consisting of two cities) elected its officials. Each county then elected State Representatives and State Senators to deal with actual New Jersey problems. Manpreet Dhanjal was selected as an alternate for the American Legion Boys’ Nation program. The long, arduous week culminated in the election of the highest Boys’ State position, governor.

Even with the rigorous schedule and strict rules, the delegates did have time for fun. Every day had a specific time period set aside for recreation, which the delegates used to participate in sports or prepare speeches for their next race. Practical jokes abounded in each city. The boys walked away from the program with not only an in-depth understanding of the American legislative system but also some lasting friendships and memories.

Girls Career Institute

Early last summer 300 high school girls from throughout New Jersey attended the Girls Career Institute to learn about future career choices for women. The four-day program was held at the Douglas College of Rutgers University.

Samantha Levy, who represented East at the convention, felt that the program was educational and fun. Each day included two to three lectures which covered careers in topics ranging from math and the sciences to the FBI to sports like basketball. Samantha discovered the strong ambition in all of the girls who were willing to work hard to succeed. Between learning about careers and building initiative, Samantha also learned about the other girls as she watched the talent displays of anything from piano to judo. Activities like band, chorus, and sports brought all of the girls together. Samantha became especially good friends also with the girls in her dorm as they prepared a short play for “Skit Night” while munching on delivered pizza. But for the mandatory skirts at dinner and the “No Guys” rule which, surprisingly, none of the girls really missed, Samantha felt she had a small taste of college life—and it was great.

GREAT STYLE

traight from the hallways of East comes the latest news in fashion. So who's on top of it all?
Who's completely chic and totally suave? Why, everyone is.

The latest rule in fashion is that there are no rules.
From tight jeans to short skirts to baggy sweats and sneakers, the fashion advice for now is “Be you. Be individual.” So then what have the students at East picked as their favorites?
Anything and everything.
With the backlash to the sixties, A-line skirts and tweed jackets came back.
Students coordinated these with the colorful tights and short skirts of today. Then there are the typical favorites which are always in
-jeans and comfy
sweaters.

But why stick to the norm? There are plenty of unique pieces floating around out there: combat boots, trench coats, green hats, and floral ties. Mix and match your favorites and create your own style.

You are the last word in

From June 23 to June 27, five East students embarked on a stupendous exploration. True, they only travelled as far as Stockton State College, but that doesn’t minimize their discoveries. Bryan Goldstein, Marc Levenson, Stacy Lichtman, Stephanie Pearson, and Heath Weisberg all set out to locate the “X” that marks leadership. For five days, they searched for the answer to the question: What is a leader? 150 other young people from South Jersey high schools shared this quest with them. To find the answer, they attended seminars and lectures, listened to model leaders in society describe leadership qualities, and took part in discussion sessions. During the rest of the time, our explorers searched out new friends and had a great time playing volleyball, relaxing, and relating. By the end of the week, they all agreed that the “X” that points to leadership is a different X on all of our own value maps — that each person’s conception of a leader differs from another’s. But what they all truly discovered was even more important than that, for they found that by being open-minded, out-going, and true — to themselves and to others — they had made close and lasting friendships. Each of them left the program with fond memories, more knowledge about leadership, and a greater understanding of human relations and of friendship that will accompany them through the rest of their lives.

Star players John Lee and Lewis Eisen have made their school proud by becoming two of the top players in the United States.

Teammates Brian Kupersmit, John Lee and Lewis Eisen proudly display their board control from their triumph at the National High School Championships.

One thousand students, hunched over green and white boards, remained in a hushed silence marred only by the ticking of timers and the slight clicking of pieces. The tension hung heavily in the air, relieved only by the quiet declaration of "mate."

From May 3 to May 5, 1991, Cherry Hill East's Chess Team competed in the National High School Championships. The varsity team consisted of graduates Hong Lee, Jason Rubin, and James Chappel, present seniors Lewis Eisen and John Lee, and junior Ryan Sand. The junior varsity team included Brian Kupersmit, Stephen Turer, Jeff Datto, Erik De Prince, Michael Ko, and Rick Hong.

Spirits were high as the teams competed and proved to be national powers. The varsity team, placed second nationally, and the junior varsity team, placed in the Top 25, returned to Cherry Hill confidently vowing to place first next year.
Will you go to the prom with me?"
These words signalled the beginning of weeks of flurry activity. For the guy, this meant a foray into the daunting rows of tuxedos at the local formal wear boutique. The jackets were fitted, and refitted; the pants were tried on, and a shirt picked out (whew!) and finally the fun began: Being imaginative with the color of the bowtie and the cummerbund. Was he done yet? No. It was then time to order the most beautiful corsage imaginable to adorn his date’s wrist. Next, a quick phone call to the limo service was in order, to ensure that he and his date would be transported in style.

Of course, while he was rushing through all of this, the girl wasn’t sitting idle. What with salon appointments, dress fittings, shoe dyeing, and visits to the florist to pick out the perfect boutonniere, she had her hands, and her schedule, quite full.

Finally, the long awaited moment arrived. Junior year, the night of enchantment was on April 13 at the Phoenix Room of Garden State Park. Senior year, it was held on May 28 at the Cherry Hill Hyatt. As the day turned into twilight, the memories began …

She stepped into the bathroom to add the finishing touches to her makeup and he approached the house. He quickly fixed his hair and hesitantly rang the doorbell. His date opened the door, and they both stood in awe. Each was amazed at how glamorous the other appeared to be.

A few minutes later, the doorbell began to ring again, as friends arrived. All the parents gathered around like bustling news reporters, ready to take group pictures. Lights started to flash in everyone’s faces. Flash! Flash! Flash! Each couple feared that the tedium would never end. Finally, like movie stars trying to escape tabloid photographers, everyone dashed toward their limousines, looking forward to the evening ahead.

When they arrived at the prom, they all posed for yet another picture. Then, they finally began to relax. As they surveyed the scene, everything seemed incredible—the room, the music, and especially the people.

After mingling with friends, people slowly began to move toward the dance floor. From that moment on, the night seemed to go by like a blur. Later, after dancing, eating, walking, and talking, the last dance of the evening arrived. All of the partners approached each other once again as the sentimental slow song was played. For just a little while, time seemed to stand still and everything seemed perfect.

But, of course, the song had to come to an end and the night went on. The couples crowded back into their limousines to embark upon whatever adventures lay ahead. Plans made weeks in advance came together as the couples headed for various destinations, such as restaurants, comedy clubs, or even the shore.

The night of fun and excitement eventually came to a conclusion, but the glittering memories will never lose their lustre.

12 GOOD REASONS FOR A PEP RALLY

12. it shortens classes
11. gets you psyched for the weekend
10. watching those cheerleaders!
9. pumped bodies in football uniforms
8. jumping rope is so invigorating!
7. good for relieving stress
6. there's a live band!
5. scouting out eligible future boy/girl friends
4. great socialization time
3. cooler than physics class
2. the noise will keep you awake
1. hey, it's free!
Everyone has it around the end of September. Mr. Belchikoff has it. Mr. Gallagher has it. Even the freshmen have it. No, it's not the flu. It’s S-P-I-R-I-T!

And the event that starts this contagion that everybody loves to get is the annual Spirit Week Dance, usually held on a Friday night. Sure, everyone - Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors - are all jamming together to the latest tunes. But even then, signs of what will soon be an intense competition are already beginning to emerge. Eager, energetic dancers representing each class take the floor to show off their moves. Everyone is psyched for the zany days ahead.

And the excited students find that the week has only just begun. Not a day is wasted as classes race against one another in the relays over the weekend. Included are such amusing relays as piggy-back riding and egg-passing. During the weekend, the students also start to dissolve away the drab cafeteria and build in its place fantastic and faraway places such as Oz and Transylvania. On Monday, the students return to school and the week of crazy, competitive mayhem really begins to roll. And MAYHEM is the word for the lunch periods which feature Twister, Musical Chairs, Hula Hoop Chains, and Milk Drinking. Everyone actually seems to revel in this little reversion to childhood pastimes.

But that's not all! Spirit abounds at all times of the day in these students, who even compete afterschool in the Volleyball Tournament. Even those who don't feel physically fit enough to test their strength against others in the Tug of War eagerly contribute their time by baking and decorating cakes for the Cake Decorating Contest. And although there are more than two dozen cakes from each class, they all disappear in less than fifteen minutes after school ends as the students taste the delicious entries. All of this competition pitting the classes against one another culminates on Friday with students sporting red and white for the Spirit Week finale, the Pep Rally.
As students eagerly wait for the last period to end, they can already hear distant drumrolls and trumpet blasts coming from the gymnasium. Be-ee-p! "All students are now dismissed for the Pep Rally!" No sooner does the announcer finish than students pour out of every door in gleeful anticipation. The throngs of students become one steady stream as they reach G-wing. The band is blaring as everyone scrambles for a seat on the bleachers with their classes. As soon as everyone settles down, the festivities begin. First, the National Merit Semifinalists are honored for their outstanding achievement. Then it is time to cheer on the cheerleaders as they dance and arrange themselves in human pyramids in a spirited routine. And let's not forget the cougar mascot, who walks around trying to get everyone excited for the year ahead. Next come the fall athletics teams. The gymnastics team vaults its way into everyone's hearts with breathtaking displays of their feats. As the teams are introduced one by one, from soccer to field hockey to cross country, the atmosphere grows electric! The jump rope teams are coming out on the floor. One! Two! Three! . . . and so it goes as the class with the most number of jumps takes the prize. But perhaps the real highlight of the pep rally is the announcement of the class that won the week, and this year, it was the class of '82! After three unsuccessful attempts, they finally showed the world that they could pool their effort and proudly display their school spirit for all to see.
1. Nicole Nigrelli sprints to block the defense as Kelly Mumman catches the pass.

2. The senior team huddles to plan the next play.

3. Triumph shines through the faces of Staci Lichtman, Shira Taylor, and Jen Wallner after the senior team victory.

4. Lisa Cosiol, Jen Wallner, Lisa Kim, and Oun Mi Na, sport exuberant smiles, psyched for the kickoff.

5. Marc Ricci uses a sweatshirt to cover a newly-discovered rip in his jeans while Steve Selverian pretends he hasn't noticed.

6. The class of '92 gets rallied for the game with a spirited sign.

7. Muy Ing, Sue Wright, and Michelle Briggs cheer the other juniors on.

8. Mr. Haines watches the girls toughness it out in the rain as he stays dry under his umbrella.

9. Seniors Jay Lu, Kelly Mumman, Allison Podolsky, and Nicole Nigrelli are ecstatic after the win.

Touchdown!! Field goal!! The spectators cheered as the girls battled for victory on the gridiron. It was the annual Powder Puff game, pitting junior and senior girls against each other, spiritedly vying for the coveted title.

It had taken long hours of practice to prepare the girls for that day. Their rough and tough male coaches had had to work hard to teach the girls to be aggressive out on the field. With practices for weeks beforehand, excitement ran high when the day of the game finally came.

Juniors Virginia Tucker, Diane Croft, Natalie Levy, and Amy Waddell helped their team put up a good fight as the seniors, led by Christina Blakeley and Nicole Nigrelli, managed to walk off with the title. Maybe their secret was in those unique jerseys. The variety of nicknames displayed on the players' backs ranged from the curious to the zany. But in any case, for the second year in a row, the class of '92 had proved that they had girls who could do their stuff on the football field. And the amazing thing was that all this was done in the rain! The day of the playoff was dreary and wet, but somehow, the girls managed to kick up enough mud, if not dust, to keep the fans interested in every moment from the kickoff to the minute the clock ran out!

And for the juniors, it wasn't a total loss. They gained valuable experience for their year as seniors when they would again fight for the title ... in Powder Puff.

1. The crowd is tense as the juniors are about to hike the ball.
2. The winded players set up for the next down.
3. Ryan Janders coaches the senior girls on to victory.
4. Monica Musero goes deep for a pass.
5. Allison Murray, Betsy Harvey, Alexi Weinberg, Rachel Cohen, and Brandee Barton, a few die-hards, try to keep dry under a blanket.
6. The senior girls, with Susan Bass in the lead, warm up for the game.
7. Juniors Sue Wright and Sue Fox attempt to block seniors Lisa Cosiol and Monica Musero.
8. Theresa Buchborn concentrates intensely on the game.

... What You Get Out Of It
Joe Melchiorre, lead singer for Sly Child pours his heart and soul into a performance that brought them a 2nd place finish.

Kathy Comperatore, female vocalist with the 1.21 Jigawatts, was a popular favorite with the audience.

Mr. David Cole performs a change-of-pace type of music between the battling band acts.

Dave Leibovitz of 1.21 Jigawatts, brings his acoustic guitar to life with a rousing solo performance.

The stage and the audience are never left idle, even while the bands set up. Between the music of the bands is more... music. Mr. Cole entertains with a mixture of softer songs as a calm interlude to the hard rock and roll. Brad Feldman and Alok Mehta do a duet of vocal and guitar and alumni Steve Mathai and Brett Wynn do a vocal arrangement. And for the final pause, while the judges decide upon this year's winner, the winner of last year's Battle, Silhouette, plays to a wildly cheering audience.

And then, it's over. The judges have made their decision. The two runners-up are Legion in third place and Sly Child in second. And finally the winner is announced... Banned in C.H.E. While all may not have agreed with the final verdict, the audience agreed that it isn't important who wins, for with the great music performed this night, with East's talent running rampant, the Battle of the Bands is once again, a huge success.

However, tunes from the top forties and other popular songs are played as well by Banned in C.H.E. and 1.21 Jigawatts. Really, any type of musical sound is okay - as long as it's good. And these bands are good!

But, for the bands, music is not enough. They must concentrate on stage presence and other visual effects as part of the competition. Ted Fallin, Dean Russell and Tom Keiffer of Cinderella (who really did show up), presided as the three deciding Fates. The bands really enjoy their presentations, but they try to build the enthusiasm for the audience as they gyrate across the cable-crossed stage. At one point, Banned in C.H.E. brought the audience to their feet with the song, “You Can Call Me Al”, complete with a miniature brass section. The contagion of excitement spreads and the audience starts to dance - in the aisles, in the pit, in a conga line around the auditorium.

The ultimate music extravaganza at East - it's the Battle of the Bands. The concert is an explosive display of the talent and hard work which students put into the playing of their music. Three of the bands, Legion, Sly Child, and Requiem, vibrate the auditorium with their harder rock.

F rom the moment you walk in, you know that it's going to be great. As the guitarists tune their instruments, the drummers assemble their sets, and the technicians run around checking the amps, this night of music promises to be fantastic. Greeting others, you are eager to find a seat, waiting impatiently for the show to begin - and then it does. Music blasts from the sound system put together by the stage crew as the bands rocks away.

THIS IS NO ORDINARY

FOOTBALL GAME

It's people milling around, flat-bed trucks and floats, convertibles lined up along the track, the smell of buttery popcorn in the crisp autumn air, and clusters of East students and graduates meeting again. Traditionally held on Thanksgiving day, it's Homecoming, the annual football game against our sister school, Cherry Hill West. But what exactly is it that makes it so much more than just a football game?

One look around the stadium, and it's easy to see that this is no ordinary game. The stands are packed on both sides with fans, sporting East's red or West's purple. The marching bands entertain, pre-game and half-time. Floats and convertibles remain on the track until the end of the half-time show, when the Homecoming ceremony begins. The Cougar and the Lion, the Young Woman of the Year, the Homecoming representatives with their escorts, and the floats circle the track. Then the game begins again.

But the half-time processional is not the only thing that distinguishes this game. Homecoming is the traditional time and place for East graduates to meet again, to experience anew the Cougar pride that flows through East. But despite East loyalty, they don their respective college sweatshirts, regardless of the cold. They watch the game anxiously, cheering for East, laughing as they huddle together. And then those of us who have yet to graduate look on, knowing that someday we, too will be among those graduates returning to see old friends again and to fondly recall our years at East, so full of friendship, love and laughter.

The two maids, Dorine and Flippote, watch as the lovers kiss.

In the infamous "rape scene," Orgon is shocked to see Tartuffe with his wife, Elmire.

As the family watches, Tartuffe is finally reprimanded for his crimes.

Tartuffe the charlatan, feigns embarrassment and asks Dorine to cover her bosom.

The flighty Flippote tries to cheer up the stern Madame Pernelle.

Many plays, from Romeo and Juliet to the Little Shop of Horrors have taken the spotlight of East's, and all have been great. But this show is different from any other Thespian attempt in the past. Moliere's sharp-witted satire, originally written in French, created not only for a different time period, but Tartuffe was conceived for a completely different audience, the decadent and French nobility. It has survived from the seventeenth century, attesting to its worthiness.
The white cast takes out time from their busy rehearsal schedule to pose for a picture.

The red cast practices for their curtain call.

As Orgon is caught between Mariane and Elmire, he is forced to hear the truth.

Tartuffe pleads with the ever-refusing Elmire.

The final confrontation between Orgon and Tartuffe is at last at hand.
SERIOUS FUN!

Swarms of people dash through the halls, hoping to get outside before 4:15. They run to the late buses and mob them, desperately trying to get seats. Why the sudden mad rush of students? Where are they coming from? It's the preparation for the annual F.O.P. Christmas Party for mentally and physically handicapped people.

For several weeks in the fall, students camp out after school at Communications, Cafeteria I, the front hall, and wherever else space is available. They create minor masterpieces of holiday art to deck the walls and tables. Anyone walking by must carefully step around faces of characters such as Mickey Mouse, Snow White, Calvin, and Hobbes. Chairpeople survey the students' efforts, making sure that everything is going smoothly. Students creating decorations work on one of three major areas: Santa Claus Room, Ballroom, and Table Decorations. The fanciful Murals will soon adorn the walls while colorful placemats provide the setting for the delicious food.

The preparations don't end when all of the decorations are ready, however. The dedicated students who have been chosen to attend the party spend most of the night before at the Hyatt Hotel, putting up all the holiday trimmings on which they have worked so hard.

Finally, the big day arrives. It's hard to tell who's more excited, the kids or the students. Everyone loves the party, as anyone can tell from the sounds of laughter, and it's always rewarding to see a little kid smile as he points to his favorite decoration. But that's not the only aspect of the party that lights up the children's faces. Imagine their excitement when they meet their favorite Disney characters in person! Look! There's Mickey, Minnie, and Goofy! But that's not all. Look who's sitting in the Santa Claus Room! Why it's Old Saint Nicholas himself, with plenty of toys for every girl and boy at the party. And while all of this merry-making is going on, special guests entertain the children. The Madrigals and the Belles of East serenade everyone with cheerful holiday tunes while the Mime Company evokes yet more giggles with their amusing performance. The festivities continue for hours.

Even after the tables have been cleared and the children have gone home, the spirit of the holidays lives on in the hearts of those who attended the party as well as the students who made it all come true.

Michael Policarpo, dressed as a Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle, and Lisa Geramman, his assistant, entertain lots of laughing guests.

After a long, hard day working at the FOP/Rotary party, Santa relaxes with his elves.

Two colorful, silly birds warble and twitter to the delight of many admiring children.

The Movers And Shakers

January 15, 1992. The day that students took over the town. A day that they will never forget.

Several East students participated in the Cherry Hill Annual Student Government Day. Joined by others from West and Camden Catholic, they worked on an actual town project. Approximately ten students from each school took the places of their real-life counterparts for a day. At the conclusion of the day session, the students conducted a mock town council meeting. The day started promptly at 9 A.M. After the young politicians introduced themselves, Mayor Levin spoke to them about the important role of local government. After the selections for the various positions, each student discussed with their real government personnel the stances they could take on various issues.

The main item on the agenda was a decision dealing with land use. The township of Cherry Hill plans to buy a piece of land in the vicinity of Point of Woods. The parcel of land has been available for several years and has about four acres of prime area. When the land is purchased by Cherry Hill, the council will make the decision as to how to utilize it. This was the issue turned over to the students. A discussion ensued in which the students debated the various uses for the land. Later that night, at the town council meeting, the students presented their arguments to the board of councilmen. The outcome was 7 to 1 in favor of building a playground on the land.

"It was a great experience. We were given a very good opportunity to see how the township government actually works. I used to think that everything was clear-cut, but it takes a lot of thinking, planning, debating and careful consideration," observed Bryan Goldstein, S.G.A. Secretary-Treasurer. The students from East took on a number of jobs including, City Engineer, Director of Public Works, Director of Recreation Ombudsman of the Handicapped, Aide to the Mayor and Council Member at large.

Staci Lichtman spoke for many when she remarked, "It was certainly educational, but at the same time it was a lot of fun and very exciting. We met a lot of people from other schools as well as from our own government. I absolutely had a great time."

CHERRY HILL STYLE

Amy Allmendinger and Craig Silverstein perform the "Time Warp" from the classic Rocky Horror Picture Show.

Alex Jankovic and guest performer move to the booming vibrations that filled the auditorium.

Tricia Rellosa and Scott Ross do a number from "Dirty Dancing."

Tapping out the beat on the drum, Stacy Caruso provides the rhythm for the limbo behind her.

Josh Meltzer and Jeff Perkins get ready to prove that clothes do not make the man.

"Day In My Life Without You" is the rendition of Danielle Zucker and Wendy Scanlon.
Lip Sync is one of our most popular events. Nearly a hundred kids put together acts for the show. After selection of the perfect song, they must develop the cool choreography that fits the sensational stage presence. After scrambling to get in a rehearsal or two, they are ready to audition. Improvising most of the routine and just hoping to make it through, the groups wait for the list of accepted acts to be posted. And there it is! Their group's name! They're in!

The big night arrives and after weeks of rehearsals and staging and revisions, the performers are nervous, but psyched and ready. As their name is announced to the cheering audience, they scramble behind the curtained stage making adjustments and taking positions.

It's over! They were great! The audience loved them! The cheering and clapping is their proof. And beyond that, Lip Sync is another contribution from East to our community for the money raised benefits local charities, under the auspices of our Student Government Association.

Shawn Ravitz and Steve Young lead the group with "OPP."

Heather Henry and Jeff Perkins provide a pleasing change-of — pace with their selection.

Rick Grossman leads "GNR" with "Live and Let Die."

David Lean and Todd Burt do "The Cat Walk" as the group lips to "I'm Too Sexy."

John Albright and the quartet do their rendition of the 70's hit, "Staying Alive."

Pumping up the volume, Mike Gilman and group were an audience favorite.
Robert D. Nation, Director, shows the program to the cast prior to a rehearsal.

Heath Weisberg who plays the role of Tevye in the White cast, knows that Stage Manager Nora Rubel is an actor’s best friend.

Lee Rosen, Andy Kaufman, Ryan Wolfson and Lee Goldstein do a run-through of the “Bottle Dance.”

anatomy of a show—

“Fiddler on the Roof”

When the drama department decided to bring the little Russian village of Anatekva to East’s stage, about two hundred people materialized to produce the show. While crew people memorized spots and places, case people memorized lines and rehearsed songs with Mrs. Wilson. Miss Quinlen choreographed dance numbers and Mr. Nation put everyone through their paces. Simultaneously, a miracle of set design was in the works - East’s Anatekva rose on the stage through Mr. Weaver and his miracle workers. And in D-wing, Mr. Yurko and the Pit Orchestra arranged, practiced and perfected the musical score. And finally it comes together as players, technicians, musicians and directors are ready for Opening Night...

Steve Palladinetti and Iva Cimermanovich concentrate on their cue for their dance in the wedding scene.

“Places everyone,” is the command that positions the Red cast for the Wedding scene rehearsal.

102 SPRING SHOW
Jennie Winter, Rhian Baker, Suzanne Schwartz, Jen Sturtz, Samantha Levy and Natasha Ross appear surprised as a scene is blocked.

Mike Gofberg and Rhian Baker work out a dance sequence before putting it to music.

In the music room, cast members work out the song lyrics to a difficult, but beautiful show number.

Saumya Bhatnager and Shailaja Raval move gracefully through the routine of the Wedding dance.

Lee Rosen is hoisted up on a chair as demanded by tradition, by Heath Weisberg, Todd Burt and Andy Kaufman for the difficult routine of the wedding scene.

Show candid by Manpreet Dhanjal and Esther Vaturi
Reena Meltzer enjoys her role of scenery painting, a task that makes her one of the "miracle workers." Josh Ratner, another "miracle worker" deftly helps create a little bit of Anatolika.

Members of the Pit Orchestra work hard and long, practicing the show music to perfection. The elementary school actors who appear in East productions, wait off-stage for their cue.

Shelby Adams with the help of Mrs. Nation, start the tedious work of making the authentic Russian period costumes while, Tim Brudy, Brian Weyardt and Lee Forshner build a village house.

106 SPRING SHOW
The Student Government Association is responsible for organizing many school activities, including both community projects and entertainment programs. Every fall, SGA kicks off the year with Spirit Week and Homecoming to bring the students back into the swing of things. Following that, the elected representatives start meeting in earnest to plan the big events of the winter, such as the Battle of the Bands, the Lip Sync Contest, and the Variety Show. These events always attract large, enthusiastic crowds. But SGA does more than just entertain the student population. It also performs many small, but greatly appreciated, services for the school community. A multi-colored array of balloons float down the hall, above the smiling faces of birthday girls and boys, thanks to the SGA. The official SGA Publicity Committee paints signs and distributes timely flyers notifying students of upcoming activities. Recently, the SGA has even decided to play matchmaker! With the addition of the Heart-to-Heart Computer Dating Service, students have fun meeting the partners that are supposedly perfect for the. The Student Government Association also extends a helping hand to the community. Through charity drives for donations of food, clothing, and other items, SGA works to aid those in need. In addition, its members organize parties at nursing homes during holidays, bringing smiles to the faces of the residents. As the Senior Class Publicity Manager, Laura Busse, sums it up, "SGA is a great asset to school and community because it's constantly working to get more people involved and to foster school spirit."

110 COMMUNITY SERVICE CLUBS
With the many activities offered at East, students hardly ever have a reason to be idle. However, there are people for whom daily life inevitably becomes a humdrum routine that they are almost incapable of changing. These are the elderly residents at nursing homes, who often must see the same faces and wander through the same halls day after day. The Adopt-a-Grandparent program is dedicated to bringing a bit of cheer and excitement into the lives of these residents.

Making two visits weekly to the Meridian Nursing Home, the students give the elderly a new perspective on having fun. Monday is an activity day at Meridian. The residents can anticipate exciting games such as bowling, Wheel of Fortune, Trivia, and Balloon volleyball. Both students and residents join in the fun by participating in such games. Sometimes, students work on arts and crafts with the residents as well. On Fridays, the residents play Bingo with the students and socialize. Club members also help the Meridian employees distribute snacks and escort the residents to and from their rooms.

Each student is encouraged to get acquainted with many of the residents, who enjoy the chance to talk to someone who cares about their lives. After becoming friends with a lot of the residents, the student may choose to adopt one that he has gotten particularly close to. Therefore, the club holds “adoption ceremonies” in which members can formally adopt residents of their choice.

Mr. Craig Burgess, the faculty adviser, coordinates the club’s activities with the help of the student chairpeople. The Adopt-a-Grandparent program shows students that friends can easily bridge generations with a little bit of love.

One of the school’s newer clubs, Amnesty International continues growing and diversifying with success. With monthly writing sessions and booths set up in the cafeterias on Human Rights Day, the group is now recognized for its efforts to free prisoners of conscience and end torture. Some better known Amnesty activities, like the pizza sales after school every Monday and the annual rock concert in March featuring student bands, are also quickly becoming traditions with the student population. But that is where the similarity with past years ends.

The organization has increased its membership tremendously over its three years in existence, with more students involved this year than in the past two years combined. Through working with chapters in other high schools and in the community, the club has also begun some new traditions. One of these, the Spring Walk for Human Rights around Cooper River Park was created by a coalition of several regional high school chapters in an effort to bring greater awareness of human rights abuses to the South Jersey area. Attending meetings of the Haddonfield adult Amnesty group, East’s students receive seasoned ideas and advice. And in March, the group enjoyed a weekend in Boston while attending the annual National Meeting for Students. Working hard to make protecting human rights a recognized issue in the school and the community Amnesty International gets bigger and better every year.

Have you ever wondered what makes the world go 'round? Science teachers may have some answers, but members of World Affairs Club would probably reply that it’s the people who live on the earth that make it so dynamic. From local to domestic to international affairs, hardly anything escapes scrutiny at the club’s meetings.

At least a week before a meeting, the officers confer to choose current topics for discussion and to paint signs in hopes of attracting new members. Catchy slogans are utilized to grab the attention of anyone who passes by.

After school on the day of the meeting, people grab a bite to eat and then converge upon FO77, ready to express their views. Seated on desks, on the floor, or wherever else there’s space in the bright yellow room, club members engage in a lively discussion on diverse issues. The officers slate one or two topics for each meeting and introduce them briefly, but from then on, it’s a free-for-all. All are welcome and everyone is encouraged to put in his own two-cents’ worth on the topic, be it Florio’s new education policy or the civil war in Yugoslavia. The debate often gets hot – facts are uncovered, opinions are aired, and spar. At 3:45, when a vote is taken on the issue at hand. After closing comments, members disperse, still hyped over the many-faceted issues.

Is there a winner in all of this sparring? Only in what the students have learned about their fellow students ... and the world.
"I f you don't agree, I'll launch a nuclear strike!"
"I think you're bluffing!"
"Well, just try me!"

Comments such as these are not only heard in world courts, but also in the annual Model United Nations at Cherry Hill East. This year, on April 29, 1992, the Lecture Halls of East, the Principal's Conference Room, and the Library were all transformed to assembly rooms where student delegates held the fate of the world in their hands. Originally, the Model United Nations was created to allow students in South Jersey to participate in a Philadelphia World Affairs Council event. Now, after ten wonderful years, the Model United Nations has become one of East's long-standing traditions.

For the past ten years, issues ranged from the Palestine Liberation Organization taking over the Occupied Territories to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics allowing the breakup of their nation.

This year, the day began with a general assembly in the East auditorium. Other delegates arrived from area schools as the Secretary General of the Model U.N. called the meeting to order. After the roll call, students separated into their respective committees.

Each committee discussed pressing issues concerning human rights, the arm race and world hunger. A special select committee on Eastern Europe and the Former Union of Soviet Socialist Republics addressed concerns in that region of the world.

Throughout the day the delegates held heated discussions, arguments, and debates. However, these exciting disputes came from more than just a group of informed, interested students. The day was a reflection of weeks of preparation: researching the culture, people, and history of all the countries.

At the end of the day, everyone returned to the auditorium for the final assembly. There the committee chairpeople and their rapporteurs announced the results of voting. As the Secretary General closed the meeting, the delegates resumed their high school identities. From this simulation, they learned how to become more than just informed citizens but active leaders of tomorrow's world.

TENTH YEAR ANNIVERSARY
"Order in the court!"

This is no actual courtroom battle, but a ... Mock Trial. It is a national program in which students prepare a case and present it a trial. Teams from schools compete on the county, state, and national levels. The program was started ten years ago and has quickly caught on in many parts of the country, now involving thirty-five states. Each year, the State Bar picks the topic of the trial and then makes up the characters. Some cases in past years have dealt with: child custody, freedom of the press, AIDS discrimination, sexual harassment, and murder. This year's topic is about a senior in high school who is nearly illiterate and has trouble functioning in standard society.

The Mock Trial program came to East in 1983 with Mrs. Jepson, a Social Studies teacher, acting as a head. Since then, leadership of the program has moved into the hands of Mr. Hillman, also in the Social Studies department, and Mr. Shipley and Mr. DeMichele, both lawyers.

Mock Trial is for students who are interested in learning about how the legal system works and how a courtroom trial is developed and executed. To be in Mock Trial, a person must either take a test (if the person wants to be a lawyer) or have an interview with the advisers.

There are two teams, defense and prosecution, this year totalling ten people. There are also junior spots for people who are training to be on a competitive team. Students involved in Mock Trial meet several times a week, with more practice time as the actual trial draws near. The teams receive both group and individual training and must prepare for both sides of the case.

County level competition starts in early February and the Nationals are held in early May. In the past, East has been the state champion in the 1988-89 and 1989-90 school years. The Mock Trial program does not stress winning, but emphasizes learning about the American judicial system and the workings of a trial.

In 1988, the Varsity Debate Team continued Cherry Hill East's fine tradition of excellence by winning the South Jersey Debate League Championship for the second year in a row. In fact, under the guidance of Robert D. Nation, the East Debate Team has won the SJDLL championship twelve times in the past twenty-one years. In the following three years, the Varsity Debate Team struggled to maintain the standards that previous East debaters had set. The team won the Southern Division Title three times. Yet, three times they lost the South Jersey Debate League Championship.

So it was no surprise that this year's Varsity Team was hungry for victory. But, the Debate Team faced an uphill battle. Out of the eight varsity debaters, only four were on the team the previous year and none had debated at the Varsity level. In fact, Mr. Nation and the returning debaters largely viewed this season as a reconstructive year. However, the Debate Team was able to make up for this lack of experience through a combination of Mr. Nation's superb instruction in the fundamentals of debate and the team members' hard work and natural talent.

This year's Resolved Topic was: That the Federal Government Should Significantly Increase Social Services to Homeless Individuals in the United States. This year's Affirmative Team of Co-Captain Sagarnil Nag and Michael Suralk proposed that the Federal Government issue $4500 worth of medical credit to every homeless citizen. In their proposal, they hired 25,000 social workers and created a Federal Agency to administer these funds that would be generated by a three percent tax on foreign imports. During the regular season, the Affirmative Team had a 5-2 record.

This year's Negative Team of Co-Captain Manpreet S. Dhanjal and Adam Goldworm defeated "ambiguous, esoteric, nebulous" proposals ranging from low-income housing, increased medical care, and availability of postal mailboxes to receive services. During the regular season, the Negative Team compiled a 6-1 record.

The Debate Team's combined 11-3 record earned them the Southern Division title and the opportunity to debate the winners of the Northern Division in the South Jersey Debate League Championship. This year, there was a two-way tie in the Northern Division so, East faced Lenape High School and Moorestown High School in the Championship. East's Affirmative Team confronted Lenape's Negative Team, while East's Negative Team challenged Moorestown's Affirmative Team. Because East could lose in a tie breaker, both of East's teams had to win outright in order to win the Championship. In two of the finest debates of the year, both of East's teams soundly defeated the opposition by unanimous decisions. At the end of the seasons, Co-Captain Manpreet S. Dhanjal was awarded the Best Speaker Award. The team was given the South Jersey Southern Division Trophy and the SJDLL Trophy. Thus, despite seemingly insurmountable odds, Cherry Hill East's 1991-1992 Varsity Debate Team staged one of the best seasons ever, continuing the fine tradition at East.

The word is yes,” chuckles advisor Tony Sipp at the monthly newspaper meeting as the eager writers crowd around the flat, green drafting tables in F-087. “If you’re asked to write a story, that’s the word we’d like to hear!”

The advice is heard often, as the editors try to out-shout one another to attract the staff of writers to their sections.

“Come on, you know you’ve always wanted to write a feature story … How about taking two?” asks one editor of a sophomore writer. From News to Student Life to World Issues to Sports, writers scramble over assignment sheets for a half-hour, trying to get the good stories. By about 3:15, the hubbub has died down, and only a few editors remain, hawking their last two or three stories to an almost empty room.

The next morning, those last assignments are given out, and the real fun begins - writing the stories. The first task of writers is usually to decipher the harried editors’ handwriting on the assignment sheets. Once they have successfully accomplished this, they begin to stroll the hallways, hunting for the elusive interview contacts listed as possible sources of information.

Around two days before the deadline, the source and the writer cross tracks. An appointment is set up, and the interview takes place. Now, the writers must put their notes and quotes together in order to produce a coherent and interesting article.

“Oops! Almost forgot the heading! Slug, Byline, Number of lines, a third of the page skipped, More, Add 1, 30 . . .” Slug?? The uninitiated shake their heads sadly as their literary friends seem to be losing their sanity. Not to worry - they are merely lapsing into legitimate journalistic jargon.

No sooner has the story been finished than the feared DEADLINE arrives. That morning, a horde of aspiring journalists appears in the hall. Like a magnet, the remote region of F-wing attracts a stream of writers submitting copy. They stagger in with fifty pounds of books and triumphantly extract two copies of each story from underneath their chemistry notes.

Section editors then sort the articles and begin the job of making raw text into a newspaper. They proofread, truncate, and of course, edit. Perhaps the most important rule is: no paragraphs more than thirty to forty words long!

(In case you were wondering, the above paragraph just barely made it.)

After they are read, the stories are sent to the publisher to be printed out in long columns of text, called galleys.

“Galleys are back!” The news spreads to all the section editors in a matter of seconds. In boxes, cardboard tubes, or just bare hands, the editors tote them to and from school for the next couple of days.

“How many inches is the little mark in between ⅛” and ¼”? Every editor knows the answer to that one by heart: 3/16”. It’s the magic number of newspaperdom - three-sixteenths must come between headline and story, photo and cutline, etc., and everyone learns it in no time.

Balancing rectangles of text and art, editors draw and redraw rough pencil dummies until they are weary of making vertical and horizontal wavy lines to represent text and headlines. Soon, it’s time to transfer the preliminary lines on to big white boards. The editors cut the last few paragraphs of stories to make them fit into the design. The pieces fit like a jigsaw puzzle, with spaces left for art and photographs.

“Oh, no! The copy isn’t long enough to fit the hole!” The solution lies in liftout quotes, subheads, or dingbats (little symbols) - anything to take up space. Once the editors have placed the text where they want it, they have to write headlines, come up with cutlines to describe photographs, and position the photo credits. The list of things to do seems endless - photographs must be proportioned and cropped, art must be sized, headline styles must be chosen, correction sheets completed. And woe to the editor who forgets the dollar bill test - no block of unbroken gray text can be longer than the dollar bill!

Finally, after about a week of frenzied layout activity to make the boards ready, the page prototypes are sent off to the publisher. As the long wait begins, editors begin experiencing strange visions of improperly laid out pages. Was a headline missing on page 4? . . . Whatever happened to the photo that was supposed to go with page 14 . . .

Fortunately, there’s not much time to brood over such items, because within a few weeks, the cart comes rolling down the hallway with the stack of newspapers piled high. Escorted by ecstatic editors, the cart of newspapers is taken to the teachers’ mailboxes in C-wing for distribution.

The next morning, every homeroom is abuzz with the latest news of East - compliments of the latest edition of Eastside.

Students and teachers are not the only ones to rave, however. Eastside has won awards from: The International Quill and Scroll Society, the American Scholastic Press Association, the New Jersey Press Women’s Association, and the Garden State Scholastic Press Association. Last year, Eastside bagged the rolling trophy at the Temple University Press Tournament.

1992 EIDOLON 121
Tell me, O muse, of the great and wonderful dragon called Demogorgon...of its coveted treasure chest of words - words that capture the spirit of the school known as East. How difficult it is to put on paper even the most familiar emotions; yet, behold the members of the club, who have succeeded in expressing themselves in lyrical poetry and flowing prose! They have bound their feelings in a book for all to see and cherish!

They not only penned their thoughts but also gathered them up into packet form. Such collections were then placed before the group, at each Wednesday weekly meeting, in yonder hall, to be reviewed by a full and thorough process. Some of the works were accepted by all for publication in the great dragon book. Others were perhaps selected for the dragon’s sister, Vignettes. O, that hall did hear such discussions of literature as never before!

"By this date," proclaimed the town crier, "all submissions must be received!" And they were received, and lo! in the space of a few months, the great Demogorgon rose as it did every year, replete with illustration, photography, and veritable gems of student literature. Due thanks must be given, let it be said, to the dedication of the editors, the staff, and adviser.

The word spread like seeds in a gale wind - Demogorgon was here! Wherever a patron of literature could be found, copies of the book were made available. No common dragon was this - it had won awards for its design and content for years. Of course, the dragon would sleep the summer through...but come September, it would stir - and breathe its great fire yet again!
Bonjour! Buenos dias! Guten Morgen! In languages ranging from Chinese to Hebrew, Punjabi to Polish, the Foreign Language Literary Society’s Passport magazine takes its readers on a linguistic flight around the world. From its beginnings as a black-and-white, photocopied packet of poems and articles two years ago, the magazine has grown into a colorful showcase for writers and artists of various cultures.

Putting the magazine together is no simple task. From September through January, club members go on a massive campaign to ferret out the literary talents of East. Trying to represent as many languages as possible, they approach students before and after school, during lunch, and during foreign language classes to solicit a wide variety of work. The next major hurdle is finding bilingual "experts" to proofread the material and check the translations. Around the end of January, staff members meet to come with a suitable theme and rough out the general plan of the book. Last year, Passport displayed stamps from different countries throughout the book as a unifying element. After these basics are dealt with, deadlines loom. In one month, layout, artwork, and cover design must be completed and reviewed. Finally, the pages are sent to the publisher and the club waits with bated breath ...

... Until it arrives! The much-anticipated magazine is then ready to savor and sell to the school and community. A pleasant surprise came with last year’s magazine - Passport won a First Place award from the American Scholastic Press.

But wait - there’s more! In addition to its literary activities, the society hosts an annual party for foreign exchange students at East. After warming up the atmosphere with some good food, the staff and the exchange students hold a lively, informal discussion about what it’s like to live in a different country. East students find out what their foreign counterparts do for recreation and how the school systems vary from one place to another. The exchange students, in turn, get some insider knowledge about the Cherry Hill scene and are encouraged to express their feelings about their experiences in their own languages for the magazine.

Thanks to F.L.L.S., globetrotting is now as easy as picking up a Passport!

FOREIGN LANGUAGE CLUBS
While East offers second-level courses in Biology, Chemistry, and Physics, many students, especially those seeking careers in the sciences, desire a more thorough education. Those individuals can have their thirsts quenched by the Science Leagues of New Jersey.

In order to qualify for these teams, students must show both an aptitude for the subject by taking a qualifying test and a genuine interest in science.

Each of the leagues consists of high school teams of four people. There are several statewide meets each year where each student individually takes a timed, multiple choice test. After all competition is over, the school receive state rankings for the year.

Advisers:
Mr. Stanley Krantz
Mr. Anthony Robino

East's Chemistry Team, which has taken part in the competition since the conception of the New Jersey Science League in the early 1980's, has been extremely successful. Between the Chem I and Chem II teams, a dozen state championships have been captured. Neither team has ever finished out of the top ten and both have usually been in the top three.

The Physics Team has enjoyed similar success. Also competing since the beginning of the League, the Physics I and Physics II groups have rarely placed below the top three.

The Biology Team, which covers the most material of the three, has performed extraordinarily. Their teams, like the others, continually place near or at the top of the state.

They are the forgotten ones, the people behind the curtain. They play a major part in all of the East productions, yet we do not see their faces. The back stage technicians make it possible to have all of the events that take place on the stage.

The greatest task that the stage crew technicians have is working on the main-stage plays, which are performed twice a year. They are responsible for building the set from scratch, creating just the right amount of lighting, and making believable special effects. The work can be difficult and the hours long, but for them it is worth the effort.

The people involved in stage crew always manage to have a good time. The mood is usually not too serious, so the work they do is made more enjoyable. Also, there is a unique bond between everyone who works backstage, and close friendships are often formed.

When each play finally opens, they get the chance to see the results of their efforts. It is very rewarding to see at last how their work has turned out. When the show is over, the "strike" the set, and begin to work on their next assignment. The work of a techie is never done!

The Mime Company of Cherry Hill East was established fourteen years ago, and the tradition of quality entertainment continues today. Relatively small when it was formed, the club has now developed into a fifteen member company well-known for its achievements.

Mime is a two thousand year old non-verbal art form that narrates stories using hand and body motions. East’s company is patterned after a technique called commedia dell’arte, which is a recurring cast of characters that appear in many different stories. Because the students write their own stories, the half-hour show changes every year, even though old favorites are often redone. The tales portray a range of skits including situations of two men and their dogs or a your child chewing bubble gum. Through participating in the Mime Company, the students not only broaden their learning experience but also enrich themselves by learning a fun, imaginative way of expressing their emotions. Comedy is vital to the Mime Company because it plays a great role in the success and enjoyment they have.

In order to join the Mime Company, the students must go through auditions. They first study the art of mime, then create and direct short tales, and finally perform their acts in front of the community. This year’s schedule included shows at the FOP party, Silver Court Nursing Home, Girl Scout troop meetings, and TGIF Night at East. In the past, they have also performed at homeless shelters, day care centers, Christmas parties, and the openings of new stores at malls. The group meets afterschool on Wednesdays year-round and has become a favorite among the students of East.

What do you do if you have to put on a show, but the audience tells you what to do instead of a script? Why make it up as you go along, of course! This is exactly what a group of seventeen East students do all the time. The Improvisation Club, started last year by Joel Weiner and Todd Burt, is a zany organization dedicated to whatever is on the members’ heads at the moment. The club performs with no prior rehearsals and no scripts. All of the dialogue is spur-of-the-moment; whatever pops into their heads comes out, often making for some highly amusing entertainment.

The club meets on Wednesdays to practice the craft by way of “improvisational games.” One such game is “Freeze and Justify.” Here, actors in the middle of dialogue are told to freeze. At this point, other actors must switch into the previous actors’ positions, change the situation, and justify their new interpretations. Another technique used by the club is “Video Dubbing.” Members must supply impromptu dialogue for a movie which is played with the sound turned off. Such games help to improve the actors’ presence of mind and ability to think on their feet.

The Improvisation Club performs at East during T.G.I.F. nights, P.A.V.A.S., and other events. Such performances are always true to the spirit of the club - the action is fresh and unrehearsed, the words are original, and no one ever knows what will be said next - probably not even the actor who will say it!

Marketing Education is an instructional program designed to prepare students for marketing careers. It trains students for entry-level, mid-management or management, or entrepreneurial positions. Instruction is practical, interesting, and challenging. In addition, it provides valuable training and offers practical experience with compensation. Under the cooperative method, the student combines classroom instruction with on-the-job training in a career of his or her choice.

If the students in the various Marketing Education classes want to participate in a fun competition which will test the skills they have learned, they can participate in the Distributive Education Clubs of America, better known as DECA. The annual contest begins with a week of tests and interviews. The written test on the first day is like any other examination but for its subject, which may be on such areas as management, fashion and design, and marketing and sales. The next day students must enact two real-life situation which may occur in the test area of their choice. These situations can include anything from an executive’s discussion with his client to a model’s walk down a runway and her subsequent discussion of her ensemble - creating the well-known DECA Fashion Show. Then it’s time to await the decisions of the judges, who will evaluate the students’ performances and finally select the top five winners. These students must then study and practice their speaking skills for the state competition. The top two winners there become contestants for the final national competition held in California.

More than just a class and more than just a job, Marketing Education and DECA give students the change to learn and apply actual business skills and techniques. Not only is it a valuable program because it gives practical experience, but it’s also great, as Paul Gorgodian finds, because it “covers every area of the marketing world.”

GOTCHA!

The average school day lasts from 8 A.M. to 2:30 P.M. In that time period, students enjoy a variety of things. The many sides of our student body have been captured in the following candids.

1. Eric Wasserman, Craig Cherkas, Chris Sherwin, Mike Rosman and James Francesconi just hanging out in the courtyard.
2. Marni Sclaroff mixes her linoleum blockinking in her Commercial Art Class.
3. Seda Munis samples the cuisine of one of the many cultures studied in Humanities.
4. Renee Polite is engrossed in her coursework.
5. Shu-Ya Lee concentrates on a biology lab.
6. Chris Tobe finalizing his notes.
7. Jon Bornfreund works out one of the many mysteries of science.
8. Stacie Schmerling follows a composition lesson in Intermediate Photography class.
What Goes On Behind Closed Doors ...

What Type Are You?

TYPE A

"THE NEAT FREAK"
Are your books lined up according to size? Are your notebooks color-coordinated with your folders?
Is your bookbag neatly hung on a locker hook?
Is the door of your locker spotless?
If you answered YES to any of these questions, you are a NEAT FREAK.

TYPE B

"THE SLOB"
Do you have old gym clothes stuffed in your locker? Do your pictures clutter the inside of door? Are your books haphazardly tossed inside?
Do the straps of your bookbag jut out of your locker? Is there an avalanche everytime you open your locker?
If you answered yes to all of these questions; then you are "THE SLOB."
It is always a rush, like a marathon. It is never calm, quiet, or fun, but even so, it is done everyday. Each student has one and has to be there by 8:00 every morning. It's homeroom and often it's burden.

Students dash through the hallways, staring at the floor, counting tile after tile, hoping the monotony will end soon, fearing hallway hypnosis, and regretting sleeping those extra five minutes. Then, just as the bell sounds, students miraculously leap into classrooms as the familiar words are heard: “All students should now be in homeroom.”

The hustle and bustle does not stop there. Now it is a race with the clock to get that last assignment completed. Suddenly an interruption is heard . . . “Please stand for the flag salute.” Everyone drops what he is doing and immediately rises to recite The Pledge of Allegiance.

Then at once everyone falls back into his seat and resumes previous activities. A lucky few receive such exciting rewards from the teacher as library obligations, white cards, guidance passes, or even surveys.

Still, homeroom is not all business. It is a place filled with an abundance of social activity. No other classroom during the day has such diverse activity occurring at one time. Arguments, commotion, and just simple conversation fill the room from wall to wall.

Homeroom, a place of refuge, companionship, or just complete chaos, must come to an end. Students pile out of the doorways at the sound of the bell, and they move onto the first period. They look back on the preceding events and know that nothing could possibly equal the homeroom experience.
TRAFFIC JAM

It's every freshman's worst nightmare, and even the sophomores and upperclassmen still get occasional shudders when they remember. It can't be equaled by anything - not even a serious discussion with a grade-level principal. It's C-wing intersection.

Everything's peaceful, quiet - until the bell rings. Then the halls immediately fill with innumerable students - all heading towards C-wing intersection and all trying to get to some place on the other side. The ones who make a simple turn are lucky because, as in the traffic circles South Jersey is famous for, they quickly come into the crowd and then go out. However, for the unfortunate most who have to cross the intersection, they must dart through openings in the crowd without - BAM! - crashing. SLAM! into anyone else. Even for the upperclassmen, it's a little better. They're seasoned walkers - they know how to maneuver skillfully through the mob or simply avoid the intersection altogether. But the poor freshmen gave up at the older, towering students around them, unable to see the ceiling, hoping desperately that they don't drop anything - STOMP! CRUNCH! - as they are herded along with the mass of people moving in various general directions.

Even South Jersey government officials realize that circles should be gotten rid of, but it seems that there is no way to get out of having C-wing intersection. Maybe it would be possible to put in an overpass, or perhaps a traffic light with someone directing the traffic ...

Well, it might happen someday! But for now ...

Hey! Watch out! Coming through! Be careful there! Uh oh! Sorry about that! Awww!!!
YOU SAY IT’S YOUR BIRTHDAY

"Embarrass a friend!" - the signs say in the hall. "8 balloons for $4.00!" Almost everyday you see someone walking down the hall with a bunch of colorful balloons in hand. It’s a great way to say Happy Birthday or Congratulations. After all, what's a special occasion without balloons?

AND HERE’S YOUR HOST . . .

"Hi, Ma’am. How may I help you?" The student host/hostess is here to assist you. Seated at a desk just outside of Communications, the student host/hostess is there to aid anyone who walks into the school. Each day a different senior is assigned the job. Whether they need to show a visitor to a class, or a parent to the guidance office, the host/hostess is ready, willing, and able. Dressed to impress, they greet all with a smile and help in any way they can.
If one were to ask a student not attending Cherry Hill East what the word lab meant to him, he might respond that it is the shortened version of the word laboratory. However, every East student would answer that it is an extra class period which provides students and teachers with extra time to examine the fundamentals of the class. English labs are required for freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors. Only some science courses require a lab period. Students may not realize how beneficial labs are, but without lab periods, students would not be receiving the same quality education they receive presently at East.

"I really don't mind missing gym for lab. I need all the help I can get with Chemistry."

Keep up to date

There is a wide variety of academic courses and activities which East students can partake in. However, students must be able to balance and keep track of their activities. In order to organize a busy schedule, students use a daily planner which the administration offers to each East student at the beginning of the semester. The planners are free of charge, which leave no excuse for not picking one up. In addition to the calender, there are day-by-day historical facts printed at the bottom of each page. If you already have a daily planner, tell your friends about them. Write it down, so you don't forget!
Scenario: Just any plain old morning in homeroom. Seven young men are sighted down the hallway, slowly approaching. One of them even carries a horn. As they near their destination, a fanfare is heard.

A fanfare? Who are these seven mysterious people? Are they minstrels from long ago? If so, what are they doing at East?

All of these questions are answered when the melodious sounds of "Happy Birthday" rings through the room and a certain person suddenly turns several shades of red. Who else could they be but the Singing Telegram people? Many an unsuspecting birthday boy or girl has been the surprise object of their serenade.

Tim Anagnostis, Todd Burt, Jeff Kaufman, Brian Levine, Robert Nipe, Chris Wilkins, and Craig Willie are the seven singers. They charm their "victims" with cappella tunes such as "Goodnight, Sweetheart" and "Lion Sleeps Tonight." Their voices transform birthdays into musical events that the lucky students remember forever.

"May I Have Your Attention, Please?"

... with liberty and justice for all. Please be seated. The morning announcements will begin in a few minutes. Will Dana Wachs please report to B131, that's Dana Wachs.

Gooooooood morning! Rise and Shine! Today is day 5, and this is Grace with your Monday morning announcements. Attention all seniors: the first payment on the Florida trip is due Friday. Get those checks in now if you want to have fun in the sun... Duke University is visiting today. Representatives will be in the Guidance office at 1:00... Anyone interested in becoming chairperson of the FOP party must get an application from the Activities office and return it to Mr. Belchikoff no later than next Thursday... And now over to Jen.

Friends of the Environment will meet on Thursday in C117... Come find the answer to why the sky is blue and other imponderables on Wednesday with Demogorgan in B147... World Affairs club will be holding its next meeting on Wednesday in F067. New members are always welcome... And now over to Tim.

There will be an SGA meeting tonight in the Little Theatre. We will be discussing Homecoming... Auditions for Fiddler on the Roof, the spring musical, will be next Monday, you don't have to sing or dance, and in East's last production of Fiddler a freshman played Tevye! Don't forget to watch Eastcast tonight at 7:30... And now over to Natasha.

The varsity soccer team won against Triton yesterday. Please come out to support the team as they demolish Highland. The new Athletes-of-the-week are posted in C-wing intersection... And now back to Grace.

For Jen, Tim, Natasha, and anyone else in B131, this has been Grace. Have a great day, week, and life!"
Guidance And Grade Level,

Grade Level. It strikes fear into the hearts of some. With those ominous pink passes, students are suddenly summoned to A-wing. They walk cautiously down the hall and upon entering the office for the first time, are ready for anything... But there's nothing. There is only the friendly secretaries who help them by answering their questions and reassuring them that surviving their next visit to the Grade Level Office will be easy.

Two doors down is the Guidance Office. Students are summoned there by a white pass that gives them a few minutes' reprieve from class. Upon entering the area for the first time, students notice immediately the busy secretaries who offer their lost souls help. They are friendly and warm, and search determinedly for the answers to any questions students may pose, that is, if they do not already know them. Although most students do not realize it, the job of a secretary is not easy. It's not just answering phone calls and telling students if their counselors are available. Secretaries are the first line of public relations. Their duties range from greeting the public to scheduling appointments to helping parents with their students' questions. Although they have a multi-faceted job which requires hard work and patience, our secretaries agree that it is very rewarding.

Then there are the counselors. These people promise to assist students in tackling any and all of the problems they may encounter. They guide students as to what courses to take and later help the seniors with college applications. Their jobs are never done— and with the large number of students that each counselor has, it's amazing that the counselors can remember every student's name and file. Besides the regular counselors, students are encouraged to talk with Mrs. Denker, the Student Assistant Counselor, if they have any serious problems. Organizing the peer support groups in the school, she provides students with a comfortable environment in which they can talk about anything on their minds.

Guidance and Grade Level in A-wing. It's not a mystery anymore.

Movin’ Right Along ...

Br-r-r-r! It’s freezing! I’ve been waiting out here - let’s see - exactly 12 minutes and 15 seconds, and there’s no sign of the bus so far. And I left my gloves at home - just my luck when the wind chill is twenty below!

"Look! The bus is coming!"

Finally! Now I get to take my barely thawed hands out of my pockets, pick up my two ton load of books, and get them onto the bus without dropping any ... Oh, great, I’ll never find a seat ... There’s one! Whew!

Hope I get in early enough to grab a doughnut ... Can’t believe I’ve got a test first period! Hopefully Johnny remembered to bring in my tape today ...

Oh, there’s Mr. Bill, all bundled up for the cold and cheerily waving to all of us on the buses as we pass by ... Time to get off the warm bus into the deep freeze again ... Mr. Frank’s there braving the temperature to greet us as we step off the bus and head for the heat as quickly as we can!

Well, it’s 4:15 now, and, of course, my bus has to be the most crowded of them all. Look at all these people waiting! Where did they come from in just two minutes?

Here come the buses - Let’s hope I get a seat before the bus is full!

"Sure, you can sit here, even though there’s already three people in the seat ..."

"Ouch! I sat on a seatbelt!"

"What do you mean, you have to get out at the next stop? Can’t you see I’ve got ten tons of books in my lap?"

"Stop at Country Club, please!"

Wow, I made it, and finally got off at my stop. Only three blocks to go, and then I’ll be home. Thank goodness for those bus drivers. I couldn’t even begin to imagine what finding transportation would be like if it weren’t for them!
On Wednesday, December 18, 1991, Dr. John Vivone’s Senior English classes hosted their third annual holiday party for twenty pre-schoolers from Camden. Preparations began in September with plans that provided entertainment, decorations, food and beverages and even, two gaily decorated trees. The teacher’s cafeteria was transformed into Santa’s Workshop from 2 P.M. to 5 P.M. The seniors donated many, many toys for their little guests and on the practical side, each child received a pair of warm mittens. After the gift distribution and as Santa disappeared, the children got the opportunity to spread out into the main cafeteria and play with their new toys. It was an unforgettable afternoon for the seniors and the children, and the event brought the spirit of the holiday closer to home.

Santa (Scott Ross), was the center of attention as gifts and holiday treats were distributed to the children.

With stores like The GAP and Structures as well as The Food Court, Echelon Mall's got it all.

TCBY: The country's Best Yogurt, the name says it all.

M-Street, the Mansion, and millions of shops make up what we know to be Main Street.

Round and round we go on the Ellisburg Circle.

Twenty five years ago, our parents were grooving to the sounds of the Beatles and The Stones. Twenty five years ago, Lyndon B. Johnson was the President of our country. Twenty five years ago, the town of Cherry Hill that we know did not exist. Cornfields and apple orchards stood on the land now occupied by malls and McDonald's. How different was the life of a high school student living in Cherry Hill twenty five years ago?

It is hard to imagine a teenager surviving without the presence of the Echelon Mall, the movies at AMC, and the early bird special at Denny's. We cruise down Route 70 and brave the Ellisburg circle. It makes one wonder what teenagers did for fun in 1967.

This only proves that places and people are forever changing. Many of our favorite hangouts such as TCBY, Dalt's and Friendly's may be gone by the 50th anniversary issue of Eidolon. What used to be Holly Ravine and the Cowtail Bar on the corner of Springdale and Evesham is now a shopping center. Ellisburg and the Garden State Racetrack circles are now under construction. The circles are getting a facelift and within the next five years will be transformed into ... Who knows what? Twenty five years from now all that will be left of the places where we played will be faded photographs and memories.

For instance, how many remember the birthday parties at the Echelon Roller Skating Rink or at the Super Bowl? Do you remember playing Pacman at Blast from the Past? For a few years, a popular hangout for kid was The Silver Palace where one could eat pizza and play video arcades. Malibu Grand Prix, once a hot spot for future race car drivers, has lost some of its excitement now that we can drive real cars. However, our town entertains people of all ages.

Cherry Hill is a great place to live. We do not have a Central Park or a Hard Rock Cafe. We do have a Pennypacker Park and a Richman's. Experience what your town has to offer you. Experience it now. Experience ABSOLUTE CHERRY HILL.
A Classroom With No Walls

And they still are. Various classes and extracurricular groups continue to take learning out of its usual context as they go on field trips. Every year, the physics classes participate in Physics Day at Great Adventure, a nationally sponsored event which invites students to see the laws they have studied put into action on various rides. Creating their own accelerometers with a packet of materials and some confusing airplane model-type instructions, the students are then prepared to study motion as they ride the roller coasters, the pirate ship, and the merry-go-round. And the lab report on the findings recorded ensures that the students learn while enjoying themselves at the park.

Humanities, or Non-Western Cultures, is the ultimate class when it comes to field trips. The students often explore such places as Washington D.C. Coming to school at six thirty in the morning, the students are all bundled up and ready to go - a scene reminiscent of the childhood visits to the zoo. After traveling in style on the luxury buses (you know, the ones with the televisions and VCR's), they arrive in Washington. Once there, the students have some choices as to which museums or embassies they would like to visit. Thus learning is not only fun, but it lies in the control of the students, allowing them to choose, in effect, their own education for the day. Discovering new forms of art and learning about different countries through talking with their representatives in the embassies, the Humanities class returns from the informative trip, happy and exhausted.

Then there are the extracurricular groups which go on trips. The Orchestra, Wind Ensemble, Belles, Madrigals, and East Singers travel annually. The Thursday of departure, the students exhibit tell-tale signs of traveling, bringing their luggage to school in the morning and daydreaming all day, unable to concentrate from excitement. The trip is not just for fun, however. The main purpose of this excursion is to perform in a music festival for renowned music professionals who judge and score the groups' performances. The judges then give their evaluations, stressing areas which may be improved. Thus, the trips are a truly effective learning experience. To unwind from the grueling practices and stressful performances, the musicians relax by visiting and sightseeing in the city where they are staying.

A few years ago, the many talented student actors and actresses who grace the East stage, went on a voyage. They put together "A Tribute to Broadway" and with their hit production of "Little Shop of Horrors" went to the Bahamas! Performing for the students at the University of Nassau along with performances for the other hotel guests, the Thespians had a great opportunity offered to them; a superb learning experience and it certainly was fun.

And that's the point - that learning is fun and goes on in the myriad of classrooms without walls.
Why are these girls jumping with joy? Probably because they just learned that they are going on an Environmental Science field trip to the Philadelphia Zoo.

Excited students wait patiently on the bus before heading out on a Humanities field trip to Washington, D.C. Several of the Humanities classes have also explored the cultural treasures of New York City.

East cheerleaders ... and Kevin Kain? (probably his day in the cougar suit), on the bus before leaving for an away sports event.

Soo Jin Paik, Melodie Lee and Kathleen Paulate sail away with other music students at the Charleston, South Carolina Music Festival in the Spring of 1991. The 15 hour bus ride did not seem to dampen their spirits.
The situation: Jane Doe desperately wants to be accepted by the “in” crowd at school. To impress her friends, she throws a party at her residence while her parents are out. The guests arrive... with beer and marijuana. Unable to resist peer pressure, she accepts drinks and even tries to smoke. Soon, the party is way out of hand, as the guests deface and destroy Jane’s own painting. Jane’s feeble protests are of no avail; more guests are invited against her will and the party promises to become even bigger...

The above scene was enacted by actors representing the Good Clean Fund, a community group, an October 24 and 25 in East’s auditorium. Earlier in the week, students were encouraged to wear red ribbons that proclaimed that they were “Proud to be drug-free.” These activities were held to observe National Drug Awareness Week.

After the actors finished their skit, they left the stage and led a discussion. What was unique about the discussion was that the actors stayed in character throughout it, showing students the attitudes of certain stereotypes and urging them to come up with ways of resisting pressure from peers. They emphasized the importance of self-esteem in learning to combat outside pressures. Students laughed at some of the characters and sympathized with others, but importantly, they were forced to think about what they would do in those character’s situations.

Mrs. Janet Denker, Student Assistance Counselor at East, felt that the play was beneficial because it got the students thinking about some of the issues - and that’s what is most important.” She observed that although it was hard to judge the event’s success, the students’ enthusiasm was evident from the depth of the questions and responses that were elicited from them in the discussion.

The program also found strong support from the administration. Mr. James J. Gallagher, the principal, remarked that even though this one program would not be entirely sufficient, every little effort is valuable. The more approaches taken to solve this problem, the greater the number of students it would reach. Gallagher observed, “We cannot be afraid of failure; otherwise we would be paralyzed in our efforts.”

The performance of the play at East was sponsored by the Cherry Hill Alliance on Drug and Alcohol Abuse, and organizations of residents, school administrators, and community leaders. This group works to promote awareness throughout the school system.
as well as the community.

The skit makes it clear that the problem of drug and alcohol abuse is everyone's problem, and that discussing it openly could effectively promote awareness and foster ideas on how to combat it.

Do You Dare To Be Different?

Clothes. They are a form of expression and a testimony to an individual's character. Certain items have always been considered daring, risque, or just plain unacceptable in school, but with only a vague “No” about these clothes, students continued wearing them. However, with the enactment of an official dress code delineated in the Student Handbook disseminated in the September of 1991, very definite rules now outline what students can and cannot wear.

Various reactions sound through the hall. Although some students are slightly unhappy about their diminished right to choose, most simply accept these rules which their representatives had decided upon in the spring of the previous school year. The forum of administrators and students who discussed the dress code wanted certain restrictions which would create a better atmosphere in a place whose primary purpose is education, and yet did not wish to forbid too many types of clothing in a public school.

Consisting of clothes considered improper, the list includes such items as tank and crop tops, short shorts and miniskirts, and clothes which mention sex, illegal drugs, or alcohol. Excessively tight or immodest clothing is prohibited as unnecessary and potentially distracting to others. Clothes which mention unacceptable topics may be a bad influence, and since the topics are mostly illegal, are not considered acceptable in a public institution. Finally, the group relented on certain items, like baseball caps, which they found would have been unrealistic to prohibit. With this, the administrators created and implemented the dress code containing the most logical and reasonable guidelines for clothing in a public school.

STUDENT LIFE 163
Finally got our feet wet and figured out how to peel 'em in... just look friendly.
LET'S DO LUNCH

It's the one place to which you can be ten minutes late and no one will question you. Simply the most relaxing period offered, it's Lunch.

As students stroll in, the cafeterias begin humming with activity. For some, these next forty-two minutes are a great chance to unwind while they eat and talk to their friends about anything from yesterday's soccer game to today's Physics test to tomorrow's party. For others, the lunch periods are essential in completing any homework not finished in homeroom.

Lunch becomes even better on beautiful sunny days in the fall, spring, and summer as activity shifts outdoors to the courtyard. Here students relax in the open air, lounging on the grass to eat and talk, or playing hackeysack with some friends.

There's no doubt about it. With the short period of free time lunch gives us, it's the best time of the day.
The Little People Are Coming!

Watch out! Watch out! The little people are coming! No, they aren’t Munchkins (although that could be debated), they aren’t Lilliputians, and they aren’t Smurfs (though they look like Smurfs). They are psychology projects!

That’s right. Children between the ages of two and seven are invading the halls to participate in experiments under the control of East’s blossoming Freuds, Wundts, and Skinners.

Psychology students bring in younger siblings, cousins, or neighbors to perform experiments which demonstrate cognitive development, characteristics of age differences, and differences between the sexes.

Although they may want to, the psychology students perform no torturous or painful experiments in the class, even on the most hyper or annoying children. For the most part, they just ask the children questions, or present them with hypothetical situations.

The young children are not the only ones who undergo Test during their stay at East. It is often equally as challenging for the students to keep track of these children for the entire day.

However, almost every student involved finds the experience to be a rewarding one. “It gave me a chance to spend time with a young child, and even to remember my own childhood,” mused Shira Taylor.

Those students not in psychology class need remember only a couple of things to survive the attack of the little people: (1) watch where you step, and (2) not every puddle is composed of water. With these things in mind, most students should try to spend a little time with these children, and maybe be reminded of those days not so long ago when the cookie jar was more than an arm’s length away.

Individualized English

Individualized English is a class in which the curriculum is expressly tailored to the students’ individual needs. Each student is encouraged to study on their own in areas where they might need help. The atmosphere is free yet disciplined. Students work on SAT preparation and vocabulary to help boost their test scores and improve their comprehension skills. The pupils are also taught to write summaries of books they have read. Students learn skills in grammar as well as composition by writing various types of essays. They also get an important lesson in self-discipline by learning to pace themselves in the course.

Advanced Reading

Contrary to what its name may imply, Advanced Reading is not a course entirely devoted to the perusal of higher literature. It is an English course in which the primary emphasis is on expanding students’ vocabulary as much as possible. Students in the class are free to create much of their own curriculum for this course, depending upon where their strengths and weaknesses lie. The class also goes over strategies for improving verbal scores on the SAT. Students are encouraged to read widely in order to sharpen their comprehension skills. They can tailor the course to their needs and work at a comfortable speed in order to get the maximum benefit from this course.
"Let's Talk About It!"

ex, drugs, and you. Mrs. Joan Saltzer, one of the Family Living teachers, is aware of the social pressures facing teenagers today, and offers herself not only as an instructor, but also as a friend.

Mrs. Saltzer has been teaching Family Living since Cherry Hill East incorporated the course into its curriculum. When asked why she chose to teach the course, Mrs. Saltzer replied, "I see myself as a positive member of society and want to channel my attitude towards my students." She achieves this by approaching her class with an openness that allows her students to easily and willingly discuss topics which are pertinent to today's teenagers.

Her enjoyment of the course stems not only from her need to inform students of controversial issues, but also because she achieves a sense of fulfillment. Mrs. Saltzer gives of herself and in turn her students reward her with an honest and unequalled trust. Pauline Chow, an advocate of this timely course claims that, "It is one of the few courses offered where you do not have to be afraid to voice an opinion or dare to disagree with the instructor." The course content varies because it is about living.
Stress... it comes in many forms, and unfortunately we all experience it: English tests, college applications, club meetings, and more. At Cherry Hill East this stress is exemplified. Ten years ago, it was only parents who instilled the pressure for good grades and success. Now, stress comes in forms of self-pressure and peer-pressure. Students learn in a competitive environment. It seems as if learning "for the sake of learning" is no longer their primary goal. Now, it is to create an appealing image. After all, it is the well-rounded student that colleges want, right? A student who takes challenging courses, participates in extracurricular activities, has a career promising job, and still maintains a good grade point average is the perfect package. How often does one see students computing their class average after receiving a test grade? Whatever happened to the concern of learning about a mistake and not how a mistake will affect class rank? Is a "C" really passing? Not to some people.

In addition, many students hold down jobs as well as balancing a heavy course load and extra activities. Pressure to help pay expenses for college coincide with the powerful pressures of school. Late work hours cause some students to sleep through classes or do poorly on schoolwork. Students need time out from stress. They don't only suffer from the competition to be number one in the class. They suffer striving to be Blood Drive chairperson, employee of the month at McDonald's, a sitter for a baby brother, and quarterback for the football team all at once. Is this a healthy environment for students to live in? Probably not. This is not to discourage involvement in as many activities as possible; it is just to say that it's impossible to cram thirty hours of activities in one twenty-four hour day. In essence, the students put a measure of the pressure on themselves. In order to get the best, one has to be the best. As a wise songwriter once wrote, "Slow down, you move to fast"... or you'll burn out by the age of thirty.

Are You Stressed Out?

A. Work overwhelms Craig Errazuriz as he finishes up last night's homework assignment in Study Hall.

B. Students keep a steady pace as they scurry from class to class.

C. Christa Catanosa takes her stress out on an innocent poster with the word "Kill".

D. These girls take time out in the wrestling room for a snooze.

E. Jill Ventimiglia cannot stay awake in class. Is this due to too much work the night before or a restless night due to stress?

F. Steve Palidinetti tries to reassure Susan Gooch that things are not as bad as they seem.
ANXIETY
It's 2:30 p.m. ... Do You Know Where Your Friends Are?

R-r-r-r-ing! The day is done, and students are running desperately to their lockers before dashing to their buses.

But wait! Not everybody rushes home just yet - there's a whole new world after school.

By 2:45, Cafeteria I is teeming with energetic people, whether preparing for club meetings, working on group projects, or simply hangin' out. If the activity gets too strenuous, students can always head over to the candy store for a bit of energy.

Taking a break and stepping out of the cafeteria, students find a myriad of colorful signs and posters being painted outside the SGA office. Enchanting melodies drift up D-wing, serenading the busy sign-painters as they work.

For students who seek a quieter environment, the library is the perfect place for research, photocopying, and reading.

Perhaps the most common activities after school are the club meetings. From World Affairs to Orchesis to Math League to Friends of the Environment, there's always something for everyone to get involved in.

Of course, for all those after school athletes out there, there's open gym, the weight room, or even just the courtyard for hackey-sacking, or playing frisbee and football.

But it doesn't last forever - come 4:15, most of the students disperse until the next day - when the chaos begins all over again.

1. Mrs. Hopp helps the Asia Culture Society out by buying pretzels after school.

2. Heather Bronstein and Suzanne Fox help their publicity manager by painting signs.

3. Keri Schneider adds a personal touch to her sign.

4. Students carry on an intellectual discussion, even after hours.

Do Sol Fa Sol Mi Sol Re Sol ... Do Sol Fa Sol Mi Re Do ...

From scales to rhythms to songs, the training in Vocal Workshop is the beginning for every aspiring singer. It is here that they first give their fledgling voices a maiden flight as they soar through the octaves to find their own ranges. They learn to control their breathing so as to sustain the notes to the fullest extent. Starting with simple songs and easy rhythms, the class progresses towards more complex pieces. All of this training prepares students for the simultaneously dreaded and anticipated rite of passage: Auditions!

Tension mounts as the students rehearse their audition pieces and practice sight-singing until the moment of truth. Taking a deep breath and focusing on the music, the students try their best, hoping to make the cut.

For some, the hard work earns them a spot in one of the higher singing groups, with chances to perform in various concerts both at school and in the community.
For many girls, the next stop on the road after Vocal Workshop is ... Chansons. This all-female choir sings unique pieces suited to its membership. With voices as enchanting as those of the mythical Sirens, they charm the hearts of all their listeners.

Clad in cream-colored gowns, the girls perform at the various concerts held at East for the community. The group studies octavos and major forms of the choral tradition during their daily class period. Students are also instructed in more advanced music theory. Some use the techniques acquired in this class to prepare for auditions for East Singers.

The tension is nerve-wracking. Short of breath from anxiety, the singers must calm themselves, take a deep breath, and concentrate on their voices. One by one, the students go through simple scales, then chromatics, then their rehearsed pieces. Next they must sight-sing an entirely unfamiliar piece without ever having seen it before. Soon, the audition is over, and it's time to go home and hope that a certain name will appear on the list posted in D-wing.

For those who survived the tough auditions for East Singers, the year ahead promises to be both challenging and rewarding. With less emphasis on rhythm and greater emphasis on theory, students rehearse difficult pieces and practice singing in harmony. The daily class period allows these singers to work on perfecting their music for their many community concerts.

Sing. Ring. Sing. Ring. No, this is not an English poetry lesson. This is what the young girls aspiring to be Belles of East must be able to do with perfect synchronization. The students first learn the melody of the audition piece. Then they work with experienced Belles who teach them how to handle and play the hand bells. Each bell is a different size and plays a unique note. Each girl must hold two or three of these bells, playing them at the appropriate times according to the music. As a result, the auditions require a great deal of concentration and coordination for these girls who have just recently mastered the many difficult techniques. The girls who are the most talented instrumentalists and vocalists can then look forward to a rewarding year of concerts for the school and the community as the Belles of East.
"Fa la la laa laa ..."

In the merry halls of East that standeth on the road of Kresson, there lives a band of jolly minstrels. They call themselves the Madrigals. Clad in velvet dress and silken hose, they wander the corridors reveling in glorious songs of yore.

From whither come these young songbirds? After the last snow hath melted from upon the land, there beginneth the yearly ritual of auditions. Each aspiring child of the Renaissance singeth two tunes - "Silver Swan," and a lively piece known as "Hark all ye lovely saints." This they singeth in a peculiar fashion. Each must sing his part in harmony with others on a tape. They are then told to clap out a particular rhythm and sight sing a tune. If a youth desireth to play the recorder, let him stand forth! For such instruments are beloved by the Madrigals.

The happy minstrels often come forth to present their musical repertoire to both school and community audiences at various concerts.

Beginning their days with a musical interlude, these students never have to anticipate the terrifying first-period essay test because they play their instruments in a relaxing and pleasant atmosphere instead. However, this doesn’t mean the class is all play and no work. Rather, the students improve many of their basic musical skills here by practicing rhythms, scales, and songs. Cultivating both their talent and their interest, Concert Band prepares students for the more difficult levels of playing in the other two bands by first readying them for the dreaded annual event - Auditions! Although these instrumentalists tense up simply at the sound of the word, nothing can compare to the panic they feel as they walk through the door to be judged by; not one, but two conductors! The sweaty palms, the racing mind, and the quick, choked breathing all end suddenly as the students calm down to play the rehearsed piece to the best of their abilities. Some of the anxiety returns when they begin sight-reading the rhythms, but that is quickly over as well. The audition is done! And the cycle begins again for students in either this band or the next as the amateur instrumentalists gradually become talented musicians.

There are a select few who make it. They comprise a group of some of the best musicians in the school. They are the members of the Symphonic Band. Every day is another chance to hone their talent. Although the music may seem simple to spectators and onlookers, it is both challenging and interesting to the students. However, not just any students can join this band. Selection is strictly by audition, which makes for a stressful experience for these musicians. The players are judged in three key areas: scales, the solo piece, and the sightreading piece. Students are examined for not only tone and precision, but also for musical interpretation and creativity. The result is a group where talent is abundant.

The fifty students who embody Symphonic Band work hard under the direction of Mr. Roy Hough. Mr. Hough extends not only his love of both music and teaching but also his years of experience. The band, like the other musical groups, performs twice each year for students and parents. The winter and spring concerts are always a great opportunity to exhibit the talent which each student has.
The musicians calmly walk on to the stage in their concert black, ready to give the best performance possible. They have practiced this music for months, perfecting not just the melody and the rhythms, but the intonation and the emotion as well. But the effort began long before the past few months. They have played these instruments for years, beginning with "Mary Had a Little Lamb" and "Ode to Joy" like everyone else. Practicing their instruments and surviving years of auditions, they earned their spots in Wind Ensemble and in this performance. In fact, this performance can even feel somewhat like an audition. After all, everyone is tense and hoping to play his best. But the anxiety is gone. It has turned into the nervous energy that every singer in a choral group, every musician in an orchestra, and every performer in a play finds as he is about to demonstrate the pinnacle of his talent. This performance - this is the goal and the expression of the students' musical achievement.

At the end of January, we become a little detached from the normal scheme of things. As we concentrate on auditions for String Workshop, scales run through our heads and hands. We spend all our available time practicing the already practiced and practiced piece. As we wait our turn, our hands, clammy and shaking will probably lose the needed dexterity. We are on the verge of being...STRING WORKSHOP.

Even though we feel we have absolutely no chance, we do have hope. This hope is the class of String Workshop, taught by Mr. Eugene Magill. The daily drills and weekly rotating lessons are geared to make us musicians capable of being accepted as one of the music area’s elite.
The sound of scales, spicatto passages, and flourished ending spins around the room in a cacophony. The varnished surfaces of violins, celli, and violas gleam in the light as the fingers dance from one string to another. Behind several music stands, string players concentrate intently on the music trying to ignore the butterflies in their stomachs. From this fountain of abilities, the East Orchestra will shoot up under the conducting of Eugene Magill. The new orchestra each year begins by preparing for the winter concert with pieces like “Pavane” by Ravel or the intense “Victory at Sea.” However, this Orchestra does not always remain at East. Every year, the whole group also travels to a jurisdiction site for one weekend - this year in Virginia. Gold medals have always been a tradition.

Suddenly, silence cuts across the music pages as a relieved student walks into the room. For him, the audition is over. But …

For many of the orchestra members, this is not the end of the practice rooms. All South Jersey audition come in December, and snatches of the audition piece can be heard in rehearsal everyday. Then after All South Jersey, the string players proceed to All State Orchestra where the practice rooms become even bigger and the cacophony even lovelier.

Jennifer Low accompanying Mimi Wang on Bach's "Arioso"

Rob Nipo and Craig Wille singing Williams and Ascher's "Movin' Right Along"
Senior Soloists Night is a great time for seniors to strut their stuff. Plain and simple. If a senior has some talent, and wants to exhibit that talent, then he’s eligible.

Although there is some of the usual nervousness at the concert, this anxiety is quickly dispelled by the knowledge that it’s the friends and family of the performer who are watching him do the best he can.

There are the usual violin, piano, and vocal acts. Buy maybe they’re not so usual after all. All of those performers are the people you’ve seen in the halls for four years, or gone on a first date with, or stayed up all night on the phone with, or crashed your car with. And while your best friend is up there, these fond memories are running through your mind, as you watch him perform is an entirely new environment.

As with all things done senior year, Senior Soloist is tinged with a bit of nostalgia. As seniors perform, each one feels that somehow, this performance should be one of the best he has ever given because it is his farewell to his four years spent here. The seniors, their families, and friends came together and created yet another fond memory for those years after East.
Despite the dejected looks, seniors Tony Kim and Marc Ricci watched a cougar team go on to chalk up another win.

Cherry Hill East Celebrates Birthday

Junior Dance Slated For January 18

In February of 1967 the new buildings on Kresson road were finished, and with the arrival of some 480 freshmen, Cherry Hill High School East became a separate and distinct institution. Student Body Without A School! Previously to that time East had been a student body without a true home, living in E-wing at West between the hours of 12 noon and 8 p.m. Events were always crowded: every boxer had two or three students sharing his room, because of the close quarters, rec- curricular activities were practically nonexistent; certainly most of the students involved in extracurricular activities, East had not yet been formed. As there was no gymnasium of dis- posal, everyone took health. The sole consolation offered the student was being able to sleep until 11.

As one can imagine, everyone was happy when the new school was ready for classes. Since the school went to a normal time schedule, after school activities will be held on January 18. The time will be from 8 to 11 p.m. and admission will be 25 cents.

Sponsored by the Junior Class, East’s Birthday Dance will feature a live group from Philadelphia. Although they are not well known in this area, they are reputed to be an excellent band. Consisting of two cel- los, two violins, and three brass, the Orchestra met with considerable success in their en- deavors, both athletic and other- wise, in celebration of the birthday of the school. A dance will be held on January 18, The time will be from 8 to 11 p.m., and admission will be 25 cents.

Miss Albert prepares slides in the BIo Lab.

New Biology Teacher Fills Mr. Costs’ Post

Mr. Cost has left the biology department to take an administrative post. Therefore, a new teacher was added to the staff of CHHSE to take over his classes. She is Miss Lois Albert, who as a student in the year when Mr. Cost’s classes were held, she worked as an electron microscope. Now she works as a student in the biology department.

Miss Albert was also employed at the Institute for Medical Research, at the time of the research laboratory in Camden, while she worked in an electron microscope. She still works in the Institute in the present.

Originally from Audubon, East’s new teacher knows the South Jersey area quite well, she attended Audubon High School and currently resides in Audubon Heights.

Miss Albert, when asked what she thought of Cherry Hill East, replied that it was almost as big as the college she attended.

Miss Albert was asked what she thought the biggest problem would be in adjusting to a new school. She smiled and replied, “getting to know the kids.”

Alma Mater Decision Pending Approval

The committee that was formed to pick the words for East’s Alma Mater is planning to make its final decision early in January to make its final decision.

Committee members: Mr. Culpepper, Mr. Brunner, Mrs. Mroczek, Miss Bruno, Mr. Forchion, Joan Fry, Ann Alexander, Cindy Gark, and Ken Sunberg will choose the song’s verses from the entries that were submitted by students for the Alma Mater Contest. Mr. Cannons, Mr. Grower, and Mr. Newkirk will make the committee’s decision. Most of the members have active music background and are representatives of our school’s administration, student body, and faculty. The committee will be looking for words that are not dated while reviewing the entries. The committee will also be looking for a representation of a school that is not the athletic season or social event. Our Alma Mater will be one of the factors that will determine the stan- dards that we are endeavoring to promote throughout our school community.

The tune of the words were written for a traditional Welsh air called “Men Of Harlech,” It is a folk song that has endured for several centuries and Mr. Cul- pepper claims, “It embodies the dignity of a formal alma mater with the spirit that will make it popular for the student body.” He believes it to be unique as a school alma mater and “It looks like it will be fine tune for three years, I finally decided, it was the best choice.”

East Debaters Battle Over Draft Question

The Cherry Hill East debating team talked West into a seven year point with our school and tied with Cathedral Academy’s team on Debate. Cathedral’s affirmative team supports a program of compulsory military and nonmilitary service for all able-bodied young men for each resident of the United States. The members of the East team, Shaun Morrison and Kathy Hard, collected 35 points against the 31 earned by West’s negative team during the hour-long debate.

Each debate is held in a separate room at Cathedral Academy in Camden. That high school is the meeting place for the interschollar debating by member schools in the South Jersey Forensic League. The last debate is planned for April 23.

Each of the four participants in a debate earns, at the discretion of a judge, a certain number of points in each of six areas: analysis, reasoning, evidence, organization, clarity, and delivery. The number of points won by a team in each of the areas is the score for the team’s school.

Miss Ferguson, who was “rescuing the team” during Coach Scena-ris’s absence, was forever off to a great start and every hope of keeping it up.

The last debate is only one of a series of future confrontations which are expected to lead to a successful year for the team of East.
Throughout Cherry Hill High School East there are a core of people that make sure that each day moves smoothly. Without them, Principals would not be able to do much more than sit, students could roam unattended, and Guidance would go unguided. Those people are the Office Personnel.

Each day, the agendas, the attendance lists, the important letters, and the college transcripts are typed, filed, processed, and mailed by these important people, and unfortunately, many go unnoticed.

This is a shame, because, not only does the Office Personnel care for the school, many are quick with an affectionate greeting or a warm smile.

WHEN we arrived as Freshmen, Mr. Gallagher was in his first year as Principal of Cherry Hill High School East. However, Mr. Gallagher was not quite the novice that we were. For the previous seven years, Mr. Gallagher had been an assistant Principal under Mr. Anthony R. Cost. The assistant Principalship was a promotion after eight years as a Biology chairman and two years as the Science department chairman, which followed several years of Biology teaching, all here at East.

Mr. Gallagher’s public school education started right here in Cherry Hill at the Erlton Elementary School. He went to the Heritage Middle School and was a member of its first graduating class. He then attended Cherry Hill West, graduating in 1967 with Peggy Beck, Mark Steele, Dave Grubb and Tom DeLuca. What a class! Mr. Gallagher’s high school interests were the Ars Medica Club (the adviser was Mr. Cost), and the Language Club. He served as a Biology Aide and was intramural bowler for all four years of high school.

Because of his unique evolution through the Cherry Hill system, Mr. Gallagher has been able to witness changes and growth over the years. He has seen the quality of our school develop its own distinct personality as the movement toward open student-teacher exchanges grew.

After completing the Cherry Hill school system cycle, we can only wonder where Mr. Gallagher will expand to next. Perhaps he will move on to Central Administration, but for now, we want him here for us, with us and as he has been, a very positive part of us.
A Hand To Help You, A Shoulder To Lean On
If You Try Sometimes, You Get What You Need

Our Guiding Light

The Guidance Department navigates all students through their four years at East, directing their educational and vocational requirements while carefully handling their personal needs. From Freshman year up until Graduation Day, the Guidance Counselors design rigorous schedules for each successive academic year, assisting students in their respective course selections. The goal is to tailor each course load to fit the academic abilities and interests of each student. Over the four years counselors learn each of their student's thresholds for challenge and opportunities for academic growth.

Most notably, the department aids each upperclassman in planning and applying to colleges. The counselors sponsor visits from admissions representatives and from recruiting officers. The Cherry Hill High School East Guidance Department plays an invaluable role in our higher educational goals and helping get established in jobs for those of us that do not go on to college.

You Said It, Again

"The closest to perfection that a person gets, is when he fills out a college application."
-1989 Eidolon
You Said It

"There are times that require a kind word and an affectionate gesture, or more importantly, a good ear."

When You’re Down And Troubled, And You Need A Helping Hand

Cherry Hill East provides its students with many special programs to assist and encourage them in the educational process. These programs include the Child Study Teams, the Special Education Instructors, and a variety of other programs. These are the people who are more than ready to give a student a little extra encouragement.

Because everyone has his or her own needs and weaknesses, these educators help people to overcome their problems in order to receive the best education possible. Through programs such as “English as a Second Language”, foreign students are helped to overcome language barriers in order to facilitate learning in language dependent courses.

Whoever the student and whatever the problem, the Special Programs Department is always ready to assist utilizing their specialized skills and their warm smiles filled with encouragement. They are special educators with a very special job.
As in any other large operating facility, Cherry Hill East has a key core of people working behind the scenes to keep it running smoothly. Though most people hardly notice that these services exist, no one could go without them.

Everyday, East is delivered countless numbers of supplies which must be kept track of and processed before reaching their in-school destinations. Constant repairs and maintenance checks are done in order to maintain safety standards. Athletic equipment is stored and fixed, and Athletes are mended. Even the halls are guarded by Campus Police.

In the end, however, these people need to be noticed and applauded, because by doing their jobs well enough to be noticed, they are rewarded by the efficiency of the school.

SPECIAL SERVICES 239
Time and time again, the teachers in the Cherry Hill High School East English Department have told their students that, if they paid attention and if they took the lessons to heart, they would be more than just prepared for college.

"You will be helping your roommates with their papers," they said. "You will lead your study groups," they insisted.

Almost every returning East graduate agrees. The fact of the matter is that Cherry Hill East is even better at preparing their students in English than is expected.

But How?

The big difference is, of course, lab. Each class, once a week, every week, meets for an extra period to work on and to improve their writing skills. The goal is to perfect the exact skills needed in college to write the required research papers, position papers, and creative writing assignments.

You Said It, Part One

"The grade is the administrative device that does violence on the developmental process."

-B.F. Skinner, Walden Two

Candid Camera

Did you really think that you could hide from the all-seeing, all-knowing yearbook staff?

Did you really think that you could keep such a DELIGHTFUL childhood picture secret?

English students may have had you for either senior English or Individualized English. You like the New York Yankees and have been known to wear your hat to school?

Who are you?

Surprise! Mr. Carr. This picture was taken when he was in 6th grade at PS 93, in the Bronx in 1959. Isn't he just adorable?
"Lucky!"

Mr. LaVoie graciously enclosed the following letter, addressed to Mrs. Hopp, with these two pictures.

"Well, ol' chum, you know what 'they' say ... if you're gonna fall off the wagon, make a thud! Here are two photos from my deep, dark, mysterious past. In one, the year is 1947, I'm all of four years old, and I'm riding my fancy English-made tricycle down the sidewalks of Broad Street in Philadelphia, where I grew up before moving to Collingswood. The other one is, believe it or not, my Senior Prom picture - Bishop Eustace - from June of 1961, thirty years ago! Wasn't I a good-lookin' young teen? The girl is Patricia Murphy, and heaven only knows where she is now ... Lucky

About the nickname - Lucky - what does it mean?
We could tell it, but let's let Mr. LaVo.

"My parents had lost a little girl at birth a year and a half before I was born. I arrived premature, four pounds, five ounces, by six weeks. Two days after birth, I caught bronchial pneumonia. Faced with a second infant catastrophe, my dad swore he'd nickname me "Lucky" if I survived. I did - and ever since, the name's stuck with me."

You Said It, Part Two

"Chaos can descent at any moment."
-Roland "Lucky" LaVoie, to his creative writing classes.

Did You Know That ...

... that Mrs. Shuster won a best actress award for her portrayal of the wife in the play Roshaman, while in college.
... that Mr. Hansell was a priest before he left the monastery to marry Mrs. Hansell and become a teacher.
... that Dr. Dwyer was elected President of his school in high school.
... that Mrs. Sipp is related to famous pilot Chuck Yeager.
... That in the last lottery to be drafted into Vietnam, which was also the last lottery in the nation, Dr. Vivone received lottery #1.

“Working On His Tan, Ph.D. Style”

Dr. Vivone:
teacher of English, teacher of Life.

His former graduates remember him as the one who prepared them, really, for the reality of college. They return regularly, write letters, and assist him in preparing the next batch. Faithfully. Loyally. Graciously.

His “potential graduates” see him as a tough but fair, not to mention funny and amusing, pseudo-prophet. They remember his words, even if reluctantly, because they truly help. Dr. Vivone, Ph.D., Student Government Association adviser, forever in pursuit of his favorite activity—working on his tan.

Perhaps the reason for his unique relationship with his students is obvious. He always takes a personal interest in his seniors and they cannot but take an interest in him.

The library is, arguably, the most important place in this building. Well, besides for the cafeteria, and maybe the yearbook candy store.

The students of Cherry Hill High School East are lucky; in that, the school library rivals- in some respect- local counterparts. Equipped with computers, microfilm/microfiche viewers, sojourn, and countless numbers of books, the library here at East has all that a student needs to conduct an experimental research report, write a position paper, or study up on an important historical figure.

In addition, the library is always expanding its quantity of books, magazines, newspapers, microfilm, microfiche, audio and visual tapes, not to mention its computing, audio, and visual equipment. In reality, there seems to be little reason for an East student to seek research materials off of school grounds.

Top 3 Reasons To Visit The Library

With apologies to David Letterman, they are:

(1) You don’t have to go to regular class.

(2) The copy machine works! (Most of the time, when there is paper, and ...)

Do You Know What You See?

Art does not, as a rule, have to encompass the talented alone. It is a sensory discipline which offers creative training and problem-solving. A stress on critical thinking is the common denominator. The art department concerns itself with teaching creative processes through coordination of the mind, hands and eyes. Artistic beauty is all around us and the art teachers are determined to expose the student to as many aspects of that beauty as possible. The art department prepares and develops students for careers or simply as a furthering of knowledge. The art student is polished into gleaming renaissance scholars.

The Art Of American Film

Very few courses at East can be said to have both academic rigors and entertainment. "The Art of the Film", taught by Mrs. Hopp fits that category. In this class, students learn about the history of filmmaking and learn to see films from the standpoint of its technical achievements and not merely from its storyline. Use of color, compositional line, camera angles and positions and editing techniques are illustrated and debated for their modern worth.

Part of the beauty of this course content lies in the fact that Hollywood has contributed to our cultural heritage and Mrs. Hopp makes it reflect in our lives.

Traveling Musicians

This year, on May 29th, the East Singers, Chansons, Belles of East, Madrigals, Wind Ensemble, Orchestra, and the East Marching Band travelled to Williamsburg, Virginia to perform in a national music festival. As usual, East performed and ranked incredibly well, taking more than its share of awards.

Afterwards, the member of the ensembles were able to relax and enjoy King's Dominion Park.

Bragging Rights!

Everything that you ever wanted to know about East music, but were afraid to ask. East is extremely proud about our 10% make-up of the All-State Chorus and Orchestra. This is from a sampling of 200 schools, and East, once again, topped the list as the school with the greatest amount of musicians.

In addition, East has several appointees to Governor's School of the Arts. Once again, an unproportional sampling of East students were accepted as compared to any other school.

The Sound Of Music

The Cherry Hill High School East Music Department offers a wide array of instrumental and vocal courses. Among the courses offered at Cherry Hill East; Wind Ensemble and Music Theory are two of the finest. The three bands at East, Concert Band, Symphony Band, and Wind Ensemble are all elective courses that offer students the opportunity to play with a large group. Orchestra and assorted vocal classes also are offered. In addition to these 8:00 to 2:30 classes are a number of extra-curricular groups. These include Marching Band, Jazz Ensemble, Woodwind Quintet, Brass Quintet, Chamber Winds, Pit Orchestra, Bells of East, Madrigals, and Chansons. Rotating music lessons offer students the unique opportunity to study privately with their teacher or just to practice a difficult passage in private practice rooms. With help from dedicated faculty, students are offered the opportunity to expand their own individual techniques and taste the professionalism that is necessary during concert performances. Although many participate in the music program for enjoyment, East prepares students for future careers in music. The Cherry Hill High School East Music Department is one of the finest departments in the school and is loved by its students.

DO YOU SPEAK ENGLISH?

Traveling to a foreign country for the summer? Trying to watch the Spanish Channel on T.V.? Want to visit Germany as an exchange student?

Cherry Hill East's Foreign Language Department can help you in all areas. It offers a wide assortment of courses in French, German, Latin, and Spanish. Teachers stress proper reading, writing, and speaking methods as well as cultural and historical aspects of the language, and the people who use it.

Some classes help with English vocabulary and SAT work, while others are known to be extremely valuable in college.

The bottom line is, that if you want to gain as much as you can from Cherry Hill East, remember the Foreign Language Department. It has so much to offer!

"More Than A Teacher"

There is more to life than work alone. The supreme example of this doctrine is Mr. Craig E. Burgess, resident Spanish teacher, poet, and published author.

Published author?

Yes, it's true. Mr. Burgess compiled a collection of his writings and had them published under the title Thoughts and Perspectives. One should not be surprised, however, to learn that a teacher at Cherry Hill High School East, especially Mr. Burgess, has plans after school hours.

Seventeen year old Craig Burgess and date prepare to go to his 1962 Junior Prom.

In addition to being an author, Mr. Burgess is an avid bowler, and a pretty successful one.

After school, Mr. Burgess advises Adopt-a-Grandparent, the Spanish Club, and was the recipient of the Cougar Pride Award.

The aim of the Cherry Hill High School East Physical Education Department is to increase the skill and understanding of students' personal fitness levels and to broaden their knowledge of athletics in general. Students are encouraged to actively participate in structured physical activities. This is enforced by daily "gym" classes, one of the two only mandatory courses required here at East. Students learn how to play soccer, volleyball, tennis, and softball. All of these sports can be played after necessary instruction and with strict supervision. In addition to playing these games, students are taught the rules and regulations of some of their favorite sports. Values such as teamwork, team spirit, and hard work are all strongly encouraged.

For one marking period, students are instructed in the classroom on various subjects such as Sexual Education, The Effects of Drugs and Alcohol, Respect for Drugs, Nutrition and Exercise, and general health information. In addition, courses including Family Living, Nutrition and Exercise, and Respect for Drugs are offered as electives.

You Said It...

"It's not right, it's not wrong, it's just different." Mrs. Joan Saltzer, Family Living's first and favorite saying.

You Are Going To Be Unprepared For Gym Again!

The Best Kind Of Car Insurance

Ready to drive? First you need driving lessons. Before your six hours behind the wheel, you have to pass Driver's Education. Driver's Ed is offered Sophomore year as the health course. It is a required course until those enrolled, and others who have not yet passed the Driver's Written Examination, finally score an eighty or higher. Students are taught straight from the official Driver's Manual that is available from the Division of Motor Vehicles.

For one marking period, instead of physical education, students study driving skills, traffic laws, and public safety. They learn appropriate stopping distances, and in specific situations, who has the right of way. An in-depth unit on drunk driving and hazardous driving is explored along with traffic films of bloody car accidents. The goal of these disturbing features is to shock students into realizing the potential dangers associated with driving and with the handling of an automobile.

In Driver's Ed, students learn the laws and penalties associated with driving while intoxicated. We learn about speeding and other traffic violations. Special guest speakers are brought in to address the class on important issues relating to automobile safety. Campus Police Officer Lazar and other informative speakers relate tales of automobile accidents and automobile theft. At the end of Driver's Ed, students return to gym class a little wiser about the world in which we live and drive!

A Lesson On Human Life

Perhaps one of the most popular courses offered at Cherry Hill High School East, and undoubtedly the most controversial, is Family Living. This is a one semester course taught by Joan Saltzer and by William Sheppard that satisfies senior health class expectations. The class is a mature extension of sex education and awareness, and then some.

Simply put, Family Living is a comprehensive guide to modern living for today's teenagers. The curriculum juggles many aspects of life that high school and college students must face as they bear the responsibilities of adulthood. Topics range from a survey of religions to debates over abortion, with pit stops to cover anatomy, birth, sex, sexuality, birth control, marriage, and culture.

As you can imagine, Family Living in 1991-1992 is a far cry from its counterpart twenty-five years ago. A Family Living class in 1967 would most likely have been separated by gender, and the females would have covered topics such as sewing, cooking, and basic hygiene. Basic curriculum would have dictated that girls learn to first sew an apron to later use in a cooking unit.

Will our version seem that archaic in 2017?

Probably, but that still does not take away from the social importance of a course such as Family Living. The students in the class are treated like mature adults and contributors to lessons. No one is a mere spectator. Interaction with speakers, especially questioning and challenging them, is greatly encouraged. The teachers want the students to be well informed, and then to come up with their own intelligent and informed decisions.

As Mrs. Saltzer is fond of saying, "I will challenge what you think, but I will never challenge what you believe."
"Put Me In Coach, I Can Do It!"

Not everyone can play a sport in high school. Whether it is the result of a lack of time or a lack of talent, it doesn't matter, a student can still fulfill an athletic fantasy.

Simply by allowing students to play basketball, football, or volleyball, the Physical Education Department has created opportunities for the non-star to bask in momentary glory. A last second jump-shot is as exhilarating in a gym class as in a "real" game, if only for a brief moment. The same can be said for a diving interception, a monster spike, or a homerun—the self-rewards can be endless.

However, the benefits are not only for those who can excel in these small-scale competitions. The Physical Education has structured its program so that anyone can build upon his/her skills. This idea is founded on the maxim that practice makes perfect, and when used correctly, the maxim rings true. Such is the case with East's Physical Education Department.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION 251
A New Look For An Old Standby

Everyone knew that it had to happen sometime. But when Dr. Solomon and Mr. Schnell were suddenly transferred to Cherry Hill High School West, the Humanities Program was left without a set of veteran teachers. The enrolled students were in a panic! No one knew who was going to assume the role or what to expect.

When school began in September, students found Mr. Keith Haines and newcomer to East, Mr. Paul Howe at the head of the classroom. Would they be able to take the place of the recently transferred teachers or would there be a revolution?

Though there were a few problems in the beginning as far as the structure of the class and the familiarity with the subjects at hand, the students found that the course did not lose much of the sparkle that had made it a long time favorite of upperclassmen. Certainly, the class was different, but most students were satisfied with the "new" Humanities!

The Social Studies Department offers a unique learning opportunity that teaches students a myriad of lessons. In History, we learn the factual history of a country, and we learn the concepts and reasons that cause the history. In Psychology, you can learn the different schools of thought, and how that applies to life.

"How it applies to life" is a big thing with the Social Studies Department. That is why they are deemed "Social Studies", the study of the interaction between people. We learn about wars, not to just glorify them, but to understand the political, social, and economic issues behind them. We study the economy and the success of government programs so that we can teach ourselves to repeat the good things.

Many a great scholar has said that it is useless to understand a culture if you do not study its past. The Social Studies Department of Cherry Hill High School East is designed to do just that!

Hands On Experience

With a wide variety of courses ranging from Fluid Power and Mechanical Drafting to Small Engines and Woodworking, the Industrial Arts program at Cherry Hill High School East is second to none. The Industrial Arts program supplements the already outstanding academic reputation of the school. These diverse courses give students the opportunity to learn vocational skills such as woodworking and basic home repair, giving the East student time to work with advanced equipment. Students can gain knowledge, in addition to their academic studies, and develop "hands on" skills for the future. By working in conjunction with the Cooperative Industrial Education program, students have the unique opportunity to develop valuable work experience, thus preparing them for a more "rounded" and "hands on" educational experience.

What Exactly Is A Co-Op?

For over a hundred students a year, co-op is a program that gives students an opportunity to develop marketable skills on the job and receive training pay. Co-op is, in fact, short for cooperative education, a program used for three separate courses: Cooperative Education (CIE), Marketing, and Cosmetology. The students take classes in the morning, then, in the afternoon report to work.

The program, however, is not as easy as it sounds. The involved students must attain employment through all proper employment procedures: working papers, resumes, and countless APPLICATIONS. Once hired, they must work hard not only on the job where they are evaluated by their employer, but also in class where they are graded by course instructors. Only those students maintaining a "C" average or better may continue to participate in the co-op program.

As the students learn skills and gain real valuable work experience, they earn money which, in turn, makes them salaried workers. The opportunity is also there for this to possibly develop into a full-time employment position after graduation.

The program is well appreciated by students, as shown by the increasing enrollment, and by the colleges that have started offering scholarships to students excelling in their field of work.

How To Get Ahead In Advertising

Business Education offers a diverse selection of valuable courses for future business majors and to those who just wish to improve their typing and computing skills. The curriculum, which includes fundamental courses on retailing, merchandising, consumer affairs, and advertising, lays the groundwork for the challenging business requirements of the finest colleges. In a world that is extremely dependent on computers, computing skills are of utmost importance. The Cherry Hill High School East Business Education Department recognizes these needs and is expanding to meet its great increase in demand.

You have all seen those commercials, "I was turned down three times for a job because I could not operate a computer." At East, every student has the opportunity to learn this and countless other skills that will open the door to a successful future.

The Knee Bone’s Connected To The Thigh Bone . . .

From dissecting frogs to stuffing squirrels, from observing the mating rituals of Drosophila to identifying rare species of organism, the life sciences are more than just explored in Cherry Hill East’s Biology Department. After taking an introductory core course, students may choose from an ever expanding array of department electives. Depending on personal interests and varying career plans, students may choose to analyze athletic injuries, prepare for college studies in the allied health professions, practice and perfect the collection and preservation of numerous plants and animals, or construct terrariums under variable physical and environmental conditions. In addition, aspiring scientists may conduct individual projects in the Biology Research Club or here firsthand information from guest speakers in the Biology Careers Club. The Biology I and II Science League Teams have consistently ranked near the top in state competitions. Most importantly, East’s Biology Department helps us understand and appreciate the everyday miracles of life.

From Q.P.S. and Earth Science to Cell Physiology and Physics II AP, Cherry Hill East’s Physical Science Department offers its students a world of classes. By maintaining a standard of excellence which constantly measures up to the rapidly growing abilities of the student body, the department continues to evolve a well-developed program centered on the practical sciences which can challenge students of all levels of ability.

It has been a goal of the department to institute courses that increase the student’s study habits through emphasis on pop quizzes, involved assignments, and tests. In addition, the teachers impact on the students thought patterns, allowing for explorations of “why” as well as “how” and “what”. Above all, Cherry Hill East’s Physical Science Department prepares students with clear thinking for college and careers.

Can You Throw A Slider Without Math?

course you can, but you cannot understand how it is done. You cannot measure the break in a curveball, or the speed of a split finger fastball. You cannot calculate the arc of a freethrow, the airspeed of an airplane, or the landing site of a meteor that just hit your car if you part it in the wrong spot.

The truth is, though many of us have a difficult time understanding the function of X, almost everything in the world today has something to do with mathematics. Science, and scientific progress is dependent on it, as is medicine, engineering and architecture. Even art is based, in some way or another, on math.

The mathematics department at East is designed to ease the burden and ensure its students conquer their phobias of fractions and functions!

Attention: A Guide To Better Mathematics

Does reading your mathematics text book confuse you to no end? Do the "Mean-Value Theorem" and "parametric equations" frustrate you to no end? Do you need a computer sized calculator to complete the simplest algebra problem?

If the answers are yes, do not fear. The staff of the Yearbook has decided to include a series of helpful pointers to help you through this devastating period.

1. Always do the homework, even if the Korean Assembly instructions on your new home entertainment center make more sense. You cannot get penalized if you try!
2. Always ask the teacher to explain those problems that you do not understand. If you are tenacious, the teacher will explain until you have no choice but to understand. This method also wastes class time.
3. Go to after-school help. This is not any help unless you get further instruction on an area of difficulty. It serves as a good argument to your parents for the need for your own car.
4. Get a 14,000 button calculator that can calculate the gravitational pull of any given star in the universe on a dorito lying on the floor in a cafeteria in St. Louis by the push of a single button. This is extra helpful in physics as well.
5. Look in the back of the book. You know that the answers were there all along, right?

If You Have Taught One ...

After twenty-two years of teaching at Cherry Hill High School East, Ellen Dooneief has probably taught every mathematics class known to the human race. At one time or another, she has taught Fundamentals of Math, Algebra 1 ("A" and "R"), Geometry ("A" and "R"), Algebra 2, Analysis (Honors), PreCalculus (Honors), and Calculus.

But don't think for a minute that her life is solely based on the quadratic equation or the formula for the surface area of a cone. For one, Mrs. Dooneief is a diehard New York Giants fan. She likes them so much, that she would rather live in New York than in any other place in the world.

In fact, the world of sports touches her life quite often. She taught Orel Hershiser Algebra 2, and claims to have helped with his curve- mathematically of course!

Money Isn't Everything.

As the largest independent banking organization headquartered in South Jersey, First Peoples Bank of New Jersey is concerned about more than just the region's economic well-being. That's why, in addition to providing individuals and businesses with loans and financial resources, we support countless community activities.

At First Peoples, we know that serving our customers is important. Even more important is doing all we can to help make southern New Jersey a better place for all of us.

Dear Rana -

"In my little world, you are the sun." We've weathered a lot of storms together, you and I. You've always been the silver lining behind the cloud for me. As you graduate from high school, I can't imagine not having you near. But I know that wherever you go and whatever you choose to do, that little world will be brighter because it will have you in it?

You have made me very proud, Rana. May you always have the very best and may happiness and sunshine go with you always!

I love you very much!

Dear Chris AKA Crick,

We're so happy for you that you're finally out of East! We know it's been a long 4 years. Be proud that you hung in there when things got rough. We always had faith in you, we hope you know that.

Remember the plaque over the sink and your life will be much more enjoyable in the long run. It's easy to be a quitter but it takes guts to stick it out when life goes hay-wire.

We love you and are very proud you are our son.

Love, Mom and Dad

Chris,

You finally made it after all those times that you wanted to quit. I knew you wouldn't because you aren't that stupid! Wasn't it worth it, staying in school instead of being a dropout all your life? Well, congrats and good luck in making money, being happy and getting a Vet!

Love, Rick

Chris,

Good Luck! You finally got out. Well, good luck in whatever you do.

Love, Brian

Chris,

Congrats! I believed you'd do it and you did. All those arguments about quitting for nothing, I told you so. You will go far because you are a smart, kind and generous person. A person that I'm proud to call brother. You've been there for me through the tough times and I'm here for you in the tough times ahead when you get out. It's a good feeling, believe me! Way to go!

Lots of Love, Elmer

Dear Chris,

I love you and I'm very proud of you.

Love always, Jill

"It starts at the crossroads, the beginning of a great adventure.
Going East, going west, going in the direction our experiences lead us.
Looking back on where we've been, looking ahead to where we're going.
Following a path worn by those before us.
Stopping for a moment of peace ... and togetherness.
Having a friend to lean on.
Emerging amid the trees and the shadows and the dancing of light.
Wondering how long the journey will last.
Asking questions, searching for answers, knowing that time will tell.
Waiting for the perfect moment.
Keeping our dreams alive, spotting our destination up ahead.
Realizing the moment is near ... "

To Gina,
Summers past spent in the sand,
Down on Ventnor’s beach.
We played and swam, I held your hand,
You were always within my reach.

We got along, but fought sometimes
As brothers and sisters do,
You scratched my face, I pulled your hair
But soon enough, we’d start anew.

Through the years, we’ve become so close
And the petty fights have ceased,
Elementary school, Junior High
And now I’ve followed you to East.

Next year will be different though
With you away from home.
But you’ll always be there in my thoughts
And I will never feel alone.

Good Luck in everything you do
Our closeness will never end.
Saying Good-bye is so hard, sis
I’ll miss you, you’re my best friend.
Love,
Daniel

Esther -

I can’t believe you are already graduating. It seemed like yesterday that you were screaming on your way to nursery. Just remember that no matter where you go or what you do, your family will always love you.

As a poet once said:

“I have you fast in my fortress, and will not let you depart, But keep you down in the dungeon In the round-tower of my heart.

And there will I keep you forever, Yes, forever and a day. Till the walls shall crumble to ruin, And molder in dust away!

We love you and we’re so proud of you.

Mom, Dad, Galit and Karen

MIKI,

To BELIEVE is the first step in making your DREAMS come true.

Love, Mom, Dad, Jami, Frosti, Iggi, Rascal and Moki
To our sweet Keri who is so very. We wish you Happiness, Success and all the best.
We Love You! Mommy & Marla
