The land now known as Cherry Hill was originally inhabited by the Lenni-Lenape Indians who co-existed peacefully with the English settlers when they pioneered the area in the late 1600's.

On March 13, 1844 residents held a town meeting and decided to incorporate the area under the name of Delaware Township, honoring the Delaware Indian nation.

In 1940, the township had 5811 residents and by 1986, that number peaked at 72,544. 1961 saw the township formally renamed after the Cherry Hill Farm which occupied the land where the Cherry Hill Inn now stands.

Cherry Hill High School East was founded in 1967 when it opened its brand new doors to 455 Freshmen. With the opening of the new school, the Delaware Township Regional High School was renamed, Cherry Hill High School West. East's peak enrollment was 4550 students by September of 1978.

Cherry Hill Township is approximately twenty-five square miles and contains 26,000 housing units.

Cherry Hill High School East is a three story building which contains ninety-five classrooms.

Among its many recreational facilities, Cherry Hill contains fifty-something parklands and playgrounds.

Cherry Hill East contains the East gym, the DiBart gym, a fully furnished dance gym and three recreational courtyards.

The Township of Cherry Hill upon its incorporation back in 1844 selected the single word “Prosperity” to represent its future as a motto.

East’s motto, which translates from the Latin, Vir sapiens fortis est also has reflected the future of the thousands of graduates that left her hallowed halls, A wise man is strong.

Cherry Hill Township employs 122 authorized sworn police officers.

Cherry Hill East employs two full-time campus police officers, James Wood and Sandra Lazar.

The Cherry Hill Library, located on Kings Highway on the west side contains well over 170,000 volumes plus other informational items.

The East Library, housed in B-wing, contains over 30,000 books, tapes, slides and visual educational supports.

Cherry Hill has over the years boasted many firsts. One of the most famous landmarks in the Delaware Valley is the popular and up-dated shopping mecca, known simply as The Cherry Hill Mall. This was the first self-contained indoor mall in the country.

East offers a school store, and thanks to a myriad of clubs and organizations, there is a vast selection of items to be purchased that suit individual interests. On the scholastic front, East has boasted the highest number of National Merit Semi-Finalists in the state for the past five years.

October 1992 saw two Cherry Hill landmarks cease to exist. The Racetrack Circle and the infamous Ellisburg Circle became straight through roads as the Route 70 expansion work widened into six lanes. The traffic tie-ups were almost a parallel to that of the C-wing intersection.

The government of Cherry Hill consists of a mayor and seven council members who are elected every four years. On November 7, 1987 Mayor Susan Bass Levin and her council began their terms. To broaden the level of citizen input, the mayor established a Citizen's Advisory Board consisting of forty citizens who offer expertise and opinions on issues that affect the township residents.

East’s Student Government elected along the same routes used by political candidates, consists of a school President, two Vice Presidents, a Secretary/Treasurer and a Publicity Chairperson. Also, at every grade level there are four grade officers and a faculty adviser. Each homeroom selects representatives to attend SGA meetings and to keep the student body well informed.

Cherry Hill offers a balanced blend of residential, commercial and recreational areas, as well as a mix of world-wide cultures and people, making it one of New Jersey’s most prestigious communities.

Cherry Hill High School East offers a quality education, an exposure to world cultures, exchange programs and therefore has ranked as one of the most prestigious comprehensive high schools in the state.

1992, the year Mother Nature unleashed her fury ... Princess Di separated from Prince Charles ... H. Ross Perot couldn't fix it ... U.S. troops carried tons of food to hunger-ridden Somalia ... the bombing and dying continued in Sarajevo ... President George Bush lost his bid for a second term ... December Christmas sales showed signs of pulling us out of a long, cruel recession ... and locally, 3 days before Christmas, fire devastated the Moorestown Mall ...
The Rodney King beating resulted in 3 days of rioting in Los Angeles with 52 dead and property damage estimated at $785 million.

When the Middle East War, "Desert Storm" ended in February 1991, Saddam Hussein seemed to emerge as powerful and as threatening as ever. Kuwait still fears this powerful enemy, while the world watches.

Hurricane Andrew hit South Florida for 54 hours of devastation. 180,000 were left homeless with $20 billion in damage before Andrew moved into Louisiana to repeat his powerhouse.

Jobs were one of the major issues of the 1992 campaign. The unemployment rate had risen from 5.2 when Bush took office to over 7% by Election Day. According to Labor Department projections, there will be 30% more college graduates than college level jobs from now until the year 2005.

The horror of Civil War still raged in Croatia. Thousands are homeless, starving and have no heat. Children roam the streets, orphaned by the reality of hate.

Hurricane Iniki, the most powerful hurricane to ever hit Hawaii, almost leveled Kauai Island with wind gusts up to 160 mph.
Rapper Ice-T ignited a furor with his song "Cop Killer." he claimed the song was a warning to the L.A. police department as an aftermath of the rioting. Ice-T said the song was a result of the brutality of the Rodney King police beating.

Basketball great Larry Bird retired from the Boston Celtics after a 13 year career. The 35 year old Bird was plagued by back problems for the last two seasons of his court life. His brilliant passing, pinpoint shooting and rebounding skill made him the consummate team player.

Guns N' Roses was a heavy-metal phenomenon. Though they had a tendency to get a little rowdy at their concerts, sometimes even needing police to quell the many melees, the group enjoyed staunch fan support. At a St. Louis concert, 40 concert-goers and 25 police officers were injured in a wild free-for-all.

Barcelona, Spain hosted the summer Olympics in 1992 and it proved to be a bonanza for the United States with a total of 108 medals. A record 10,000 athletes from 183 countries gathered for this sporting event. New Jerseyan Carl Lewis brought home two gold medals, one for the long-jump and the other for the 400 meter relay.

Garth Brooks lifted country music to new heights and was voted the top entertainer, by his peers, for the second year in a row in 1992.

Vice-president Dan Quayle caused quite a stir when he attacked the morals of a TV SitCom character, "Murphy Brown." All the excitement seemed to do was boost the ratings for the show as "Murphy" retaliated and CBS laughed all the way to the bank.

Miss America, Leanza Cornett, 21 of Florida was the 66th Miss America. Not just a pretty face, she will be a strong spokes-person for AIDS awareness.
Two rappers are turning teen-age fashion inside out. The look by Kriss Kross is to wear clothes backwards, labels out. It’s called "kross-dressing." The Kriss Kross duo is Kris Smith and Kris Kelly, both 13.

The Red Hot Chili Peppers’ album, "Blood Sugar Sex Magik" hit the top of the charts as soon as it was released. The "magik" ingredient, plenty of sonic funk.

Tom Cochrane became more popular toward the end of 1992. The pop singer made it to the charts with his hit single, "Life is A Highway.

Billy Ray Cyrus, the next Elvis? His trademark, blue jeans with an American flag on the right rear pocket. The 30 year old hit it big with "Achy Breaky Heart." His music is a blend of country, blues and rock 'n Roll.

Madonna’s book is called "Sex" and can only be sold under-the-counter ... after 11 seasons, Cheers goes off the air ... and gasp! oh no! Superman is dead ...
In the four short years that you have attended East, the world has witnessed dramatic political, scientific medical and environmental changes. The leaders that managed these share with you a portion of the continuum that exists between generations. As you leave high school for college, military service, or employment, you will move along this continuum and eventually take your place as leaders in our society.

It is the purpose of public education to prepare you for these leadership roles. From my perspective, the Class of '92 is indeed well prepared for this task. As a class, you have excelled academically, athletically, musically, and as seniors you have provided the student leadership that East needed.

The current world leaders should be "looking over their shoulders" as the member of the Class of '92 prepares to take their place on the world stage.

Congratulations on your graduation.

James J. Gallagher

Class of '93:

You are about to embark on a new journey - one filled with bigger challenges, rewards and an occasional disappointment. But don't forget the journey you have just completed. There is much to learn from it. During our four years together we have held many dances, managed several concessions, planned two proms, four homecomings, four spirit weeks and a host of other activities. Yes, it has been a successful four years. But that success did not just happen. You made it happen. And therein lies perhaps the most important lesson of all. You can let life happen to you, or you can take control and make it happen for you! Some 470 students made things happen... good things. I am proud to have been your adviser through it all. Remember that the same determination, cooperation and hard work that paid off here will help you meet the challenges ahead. Thank you for becoming such an important part of my life. May each of you achieve whatever goals you may set for yourself. Thank you for your spirit and friendship.

Good Luck,

SENIORS
The period of time between 1989 and 1993 was not just any four years. From the San Francisco earthquake to the fall of the Berlin Wall, from the Persian Gulf War to the election of a new president, the country evolved and changed. And so did Cherry Hill East. In the same four years, East learned to expect the unexpected from the class of 1993. We came in the fall of 1989 as wide-eyed freshmen, full of spirit and enthusiasm. Doing the best in Spirit Week of any freshman class ever, we showed that we were going to be the class to break all the traditions - even if some of them were not the best ones to break. For four years, we learned that East truly is a buffet, and we filled our plates. During our ups and downs, victories and defeats, we proved that new twists on old traditions were a vital part of the class of '93.

Top: Each year, East students try to increase student participation in the blood drive.

"... And to the Class of 1993, I only have one final thing to say, GOOD LUCK!"

8th grade was finally over for me, and I was on my way to East full of expectations about my next four years of high school - expectations for myself and my class because we weren't going to be part of just any class of students. I was going to be part of "the" class, the class of '93, the one that would set all the records and break all the traditions.

September had not yet arrived, but I was already learning about my new school at the freshmen orientation. Throughout the next four years of my life, I would remember this one phrase first heard there which expressed East's magnificence to everyone.

EAST IS A BUFFET!
And with that in mind as I entered East on my first day of high school, I prepared myself for all that East had to offer. As I found out the first day, East was full of something, but it was more like windy corners and big football players. Of course, I was just a freshman, a fresh, the one to be made fun of and sold elevator passes to, but even I was smart enough to avoid these tricks. Though, trying to find F-066 without my school map was a little tougher. Maybe that's how the other freshman and I could be picked out from the crowd, but I and everyone else soon showed the school that we were going to be something to think about.

After a couple of days, I could happily walk from World Civilizations to Earth Science without even a peek at my map.

I immediately began my new experiences with my class elections. After that, there was Spirit Week, in which my class showed everyone that we would be a tough match for the next four years when we beat both the sophomore and junior class by coming in second place, the best any freshman class had ever done in East history. Though my class should have won, the rumor does go something like, "Seniors always win Spirit Week."

Having an urge to explore the multitude of clubs and to have some fun, I decided to see East's production of Little Shop of Horrors with my friends before its showing in the Bahamas and help out in the F.O.P. holiday party.

But who could forget what else happened during our freshman year. Who could ever forget the destructive San Francisco earthquake that struck in October. As I watched in terror each night, waiting to see any hopes of survival, I was also trying to pass my classes at the same time in my first marking period of high school. The tragedy in San Francisco followed the happy destruction of the Berlin Wall in which millions of East Germans finally learned what freedom was. While this happened, I rejoiced my new found freedom and the much needed arrival of winter break.

Winter break? Skiing, Christmas, Hanukkah, shopping, relaxation, sleep, Romeo and Juliet, and movies.

Then school started. I returned to East, psyched for the new decade, the 90's. As I soon found out, T.G.I.F. nights were cheap and fun and the Lip Sync Contest was hilarious with "Me So Horny."

Let there be snow, I prayed. No answer. Soon though, spring arrived.

With it came our Freshman Dance. Though only in our (con't pg. 14) cafe teria, we were all thrilled by the decorations of our first class dance.

As my first year of high school drew to an end, I watched Oklahoma, the East spring musical, and heard the frightening words David Toma had on drug abuse. Of course, let’s not forget walking out of school with friends on Earth Day and going to Dorney Park on the class trip.

As June rolled around, I said goodbye to the seniors I had met. But before this, I had to survive finals. Somehow I did on my way to becoming a sophomore.

Though I returned the next fall as a veteran of East, I quickly found out that school doesn’t get any easier. As school started, my mind was still on the American troops in the Persian Gulf. While I waited to see the outcome of Operation Desert Shield, good news was heard from both around the world and in our school. While East and West Germany united to become a singular country, the Class of ’93 also united once again to display their might in Spirit Week. Beating the freshman and junior class, we came in a strong second place once again only to the senior class. Again it seemed once again “Seniors always win,” depriving us yet another much deserved victory.

I attended Driver’s Ed and sat through film after film of gore that would make Friday the 13th movies look almost nice, all in the hopes of passing the test and becoming one step closer to driving. Of course, who could ever forget about biology. There, I learned about Drisophilae flies and fetal pigs and enjoyed myself with friends in trying to answer wonderful questions like “Is a flame alive?”

In December, I flocked to the movies to see The Godfather Part III and to East to see Brighton Beach Memoirs. Once again, I rejoiced as the winter recess arrived but worried for the Americans still stationed in the Persian Gulf.

As January arrived, I was shocked to hear that Operation Desert Storm had begun, but I along with the rest of Cherry Hill supported our fellow Americans by wearing yellow ribbons around the school. We were even more terrified when the news that one of our own Cherry Hill residents has been captured by Iraqi troops.

We all felt a little more relieved a month later when American troops took control of Kuwait and Jeffrey Zaun returned to Cherry Hill where he was honored at a Desert Storm Parade.

Though still in the cafeteria, my fellow classmates and I celebrated our second class dance at the Sophomore Cotillion where we danced to the theme of “An Evening in Paris.” We all enjoyed catered food and a night full of memories with our friends. Also, we got our class rings to show the pride we had in the Class of ’93.

As spring arrived, I went with my friends to watch Guys and Dolls, joined the Blood Drive helping to get upperclassmen to donate blood, and watched Beverly Hills 90210 which soon became the hottest show on TV.

In June once again, finals had arrived and as I soon found out - it gets harder with each year. But somehow I passed, hoping that the coming year would bring many new wonders into my life. Now, I began my voyage up to the status of upperclassmen.

The summer of ’91 was filled with days of excitement - jobs, trips to the shore, and driving with my permit, perhaps just a little too quickly.

Reluctantly, I returned to school, but this year, I no longer had to ride the infamous Yellow Submarine, thanks to my Senior friends. I was now a Junior; how nice it seemed to be an upperclassman. “Do you want to buy a pass for ... the pool’s right around the corner.

I noticed that there was a lot of new faces at East. Oh, they were only the exchange students from war-torn Yugoslavia; excuse me, the newly founded country of Croatia.

It was that time of the year, again. Spirit Week. Showing our mighty power, we lost for the third year. Well, we had next year. “Seniors always win.”

Enough about the fun stuff, this was my junior year. Gone was the carefree ignorance of my first two years. I had to get my act together; grades were finally important and on top of all that, the PSAT’s were coming up. Great, I thought that being an upperclassman was going to be easy.

Christina Bartnikowski, Heather Hohmann and Miss Schooley cheer the sports teams on at the Pep Rally. Every year, the participants in Vocal Workshop bring their musical abilities to the stage at the Winter and Spring Concerts.

Rachel Alban is one of many students to participate in the elective photography courses that East offers where students learn photography techniques and are able to process the film themselves.
I eased up a little by going to see Moliere's hit comedy, Tartuffe, and the blockbuster, Wayne's World. Finally the biggest stress reliever of them all arrived, twelve whole days of total relaxation, Winter Break.

And yet with a blink of the eye, it was over and school started again. It was the new year and always I had made some resolutions: study every night for the SAT's, watch every episode of Seinfeld, stop watching Beverly Hills 90210, and stop eating the school lunches.

As quickly as Winter Break came and left, winter itself came and departed, Spring came, and struck every Junior. Luckily, it was only a small preview of the deadly virus that lay ahead, Senioritis. Still, it had left its mark. No longer able to concentrate, I attended TGIF nights, helped out on the Blood Drive, kept my resolution to watch Seinfeld, saw Fiddler on the Roof, and went to the elegant Phoenix Room for a night of "Tears in Heaven," my Junior Prom.

After a week of finals, summer had finally arrived. Three long years had gone by, and now I was a SENIOR. This summer was filled with visits to colleges, jobs to pay for a car, and days of just plain buzzing around.

Finally Senior year had started. Driving myself in my own car, I came back to East as the king of the hill. With Senioritis already in full bloom, I sat back and relaxed . . . and did my college applications and brought up my mid-year grades. Whoever said that Senior year was easy lied. However, twenty students seemed to be keeping up East's academic tradition by being named National Merit Semifinalists, the highest percentage of students in the state, again. Well, if I could only keep up my grades and finish all of my applications. How had I caught this bug anyway?

No use wondering how, I had Senioritis, and I might well have some fun. Spirit Week was coming up, but in a different time this year, right before Thanksgiving. My class should finally win this year because as the rumor goes, "Seniors always win."

Maybe not.

New twists to old traditions were evident everywhere, not only in Spirit Week. Maybe, it was President Clinton's influence. For the first time ever in East's history, there was no senior class trip to Florida. We lost Homecoming for the first time in 8 years.

Liberal, young, and fresh, we, the Seniors, saw nothing wrong with breaking a few traditions, even though they were not the best ones to break. However, there is one tradition that will never be broken, Senioritis.

As first semester ended, this disease had already run rampant among us. Lip Sync, Variety Show, FAYAS, and Mr. East were some of the many activities I decided to enjoy. Since there was no class trip, Spring Break was spent however one wished. Finally, after receiving acceptance letters, all stress, if there was any, disappeared. I danced, laughed and reminisced about the good ol' days of East at the Senior Prom, which was once again held at the Phoenix Room.

I ended those four years of many memories at the final activity, GRADUATION. . . And to the class of 1993, I have only one thing to say, GOOD LUCK!" One journey started with these words as another ends.

Goodbye East! I'll never forget you.
Ten students from Cherry Hill High School East had the honor of attending the Rotary Youth Leadership Conference in the summer of 1992. Only about 150 students in South Jersey were able to participate in this unique experience. Competition among the applicants was high, but this year East had the distinction of sending ten students from the class of 1993 to the conference. Lauren Bell, Tim Brady, Anthony D'Allesandro, Rebecca Fried, Dave Gealt, Melody Lee, Marissa Rothman, Melissa Spitz, Nicole Weinberg, and Jim Yang outqualified the rest of the applicants and earned the opportunity to take part in this four-day, four-night conference at Stockton State College.

Selection was first based on a teacher's recommendation. Then, the students completed an application describing their academic achievements, involvement in extra-curricular and community activities, and leadership qualities.

The day started at 7 a.m. with calisthenics to help the students prepare for the day of lectures. The lectures, given by prominent politicians and professors, discussed the importance of leadership and how it could be utilized in solving the current problems in society. In addition, there were also small group sessions in which the students debated the issues presented by the lecturers. After dinner at 6 p.m., students relaxed by attending a variety of evening activities. On the first night, a dance helped introduce everyone to each other. The Rotary Club presented a Careers Night the next evening exhibiting different fields where the students could use their leadership training. A pool party ended the third night. On the last night, many of the students performed in a Talent Show. The conference ended with a banquet attended by the students and their proud parents. For the students, it was a memorable experience where many formed lasting friendships and, at the same time, learned important life skills for the future. "The Rotary Youth Leadership Conference had broadened my understanding and my perspective concerning various issues through series of lectures and discussion groups," said Fried who was very active in her discussion group.

As the summer of '92 was about to begin, most students were struggling with finals before they could relax and enjoy their vacation. However, 300 junior girls from throughout New Jersey had something extra to attend to during the week of the finals. These juniors were invited to Rutgers University in New Brunswick to attend a four-day program about future career choice for women. East's representative, Lisa Shusterman, was especially excited for this convention. Along with being a true learning experience, the program allowed the girls to make friends and have a good time. Shusterman said that the girls there were very much like her in more than one aspects, but "one thing that all of the participants shared was the endless ambition to do the best they can." Three lectures were given each day which included a variety of women speakers such as an FBI agent and a handicapped teacher, but there were also many social events which everyone enjoyed. The opportunity to see college life was an additional bonus and every delegate had a memorable experience.
LEADERS IN THE MAKING

Interviews, essays, activities, and stress made up the activities of the daily lives of Christine Halberstadt, Jennifer Klear, Tricia Rellosa, Gayle Horvitz, Rebecca Schlanger, and Randi Fleishman, nominees for Girls State. The final text that determined who the delegates would be was the interview given by the Women’s Auxiliary. The nerves of each of the girls ran wild, as they all sat close together afraid to make one wrong move. The interview came and went. These six girls were going to attend Girls State in the summer from June 28 to July 3, 1992. A month before their departure, there was meeting for those attending the program. Everyone was excited and could not wait for the incredible week to begin.

A month later, the delegates boarded the buses and headed for Rider College that was to be their home for one week. 500 girls gathered into one gymnasium and were thrilled to participate in one of the most informative and amazing week of their lives. Immediately after they arrived, all of the Cherry Hill girls were separated and on their own. They were divided into different “cities” and thrown into a dorm with new faces.

No time was wasted. They unpacked and attended their first official Girls State meeting in a matter of minutes. Speeches made by professionals were the center of the program. The delegates had no idea that by the end of the week they’d be up there giving a speech.

The cities were the focus of the first day and then moved on to country, to state, and then finally to nation. Everyone from our school ran for some sort of position and won most of the elections.

The days were filled with tons of activities, often things were extremely hectic. The mornings began at 6:30 with the flag salute and ended at 12:00 in the morning with vespers.

A major rule of Girls State was NO FRATERNIZING. Talking to males was forbidden, but in the end everyone got by o.k.
School had only been out four days when five East students were sent off to an all-expense paid week at Rider College in Lawrenceville, New Jersey. They were our representatives to the American Legion Jersey Boys' State program, and they had no idea what to expect. Back in March, teachers had nominated 50 students to participate in this program, but eventually the list was narrowed down to Matt Leshner, Michael Mansour, Michael Lustbader, Greg Weintraub, and Jon Pecarsky. "It was an honor to be picked," Matt said.

Arriving at the college, the delegates started working immediately. The first couple of days were spent setting up sixteen city governments and later eight county governments. The final days were then devoted to devise the state governments. The delegates chose a House of Representatives, a Senate, and a Governor of the state. They also wrote and passed bills which were eventually sent to Trenton for review, so our Congressmen could see the way young people think.

Along with this role-playing activity, speakers, including the president of the Senate and former Attorney General, Carl Edwards, came every night to talk to all the students. Seminars led by volunteers were also held. Their topics were law enforcement, business careers, CPR, and future education plans. Then, of course, there were also free times. Counties competed with each other in every sport from water polo to softball, and there was also a student center in which delegates could relax.

Looking back, East's Boys State representatives enjoyed their week immensely. The work was intense, but they feel proud of what they have accomplished. They also have a much better understanding of the way our governments works.

"Boys State provided me with the opportunity to develop leadership skills while meeting potential leaders of the world."

- Michael Lustbader

"Despite my expectations, Girls State turned out to be one of my greatest experiences. It was not learning about government that made the experience so great, but the friends I made there."

Trenton State College

For one exciting month this summer, seven of Cherry Hill East's most outstanding students attended the New Jersey Governor's schools. There, they were given an opportunity to grow and learn with many other talented students from New Jersey. Three of these students attended the Governor's school for the Arts at Trenton State College. Courtney Ames, Sara Braslow and Wendy Huang spent a rigorous month perfecting their performance in song, dance and flute, respectively. In this creative atmosphere, they also learned valuable lessons in self expression and friendship. Ames said, "It was a great experience because we really learned a lot, but we also made friends that we will keep forever."

Louis Haym was selected for the Governor's School of the Environment which was designed for juniors interested in exploring the social, political, and economical environment as well as its natural scientific aspects. At this program, which was held at Stockton State College, an intensive course and an integrated seminar were required. Students at this program had an unique opportunity to meet the governor, Jim Florio. "Governor's School was a great program both academically and socially. It was an experience that I will never forget," said Haym.
The Sciences

Eric Braverman and Melody Lee attended the Governor's School in the Sciences at Drew University. From July 19 to August 15, 1992, this program introduced Braverman and Lee and a hundred others to scientific research via hands-on research in the student's area of interest. Impressed with Governor's School, Lee said, "It was a very unique learning environment and I also enjoyed working with more advanced equipment than we usually work with at school." This program also broadened the students' appreciation and knowledge of science through exposure to a range of scientific topics and scientists.

Public Issues

Michael Lustbader and Greg Weintraub were the two delegates from East for the Governor's School in Public Issues and the Future of New Jersey. This program was held at Monmouth College. The students chose their courses from a broad curriculum including Futures of New Jersey amid changing global realities. In classes, teachers enlightened their pupils about the problems that New Jersey, the nation, and the world at large are facing today, and what can be done in the future to help promote mutual understanding and cooperation to solve these problems. Lustbader said, "At Governor's School, I learned as much from my peers as from my instructors. All in all, only the word 'amazing' can describe the Governor's School experience."
Every year, a new set of portraits immortalize fifty students of the senior class for ten years. These students are chosen to be in the Senior Hall of Fame. Based on their character, honors, and contributions to Cherry Hill East, these students are picked from the original 150 nominated students by a thirteen-teacher committee.

The top fifteen percent of the class, Cum Laude Society, is one of East's most prestigious organizations. Led by Dr. Ann Eck, our society is part of a national, eighty-seven year tradition which honors the class's top-ranking scholars. At the end of the fifth, sixth, and seventh semester, the top five, ten, and fifteen percent, respectively, are inducted into this society during a special ceremony.

Meet The Finalists

Twenty bright seniors who were named National Merit Semi-finalists, scored extremely high marks in the PSAT’s and earned national recognition and scholarship opportunities. The Class of 1993 continued Cherry Hill East’s high academic standard, as this is the fifth straight year that East has had the highest number of semi-finalists among all the high schools in the state of New Jersey. These much deserved honors have earned East further recognition as the Home of the Champions.

The National Merit Semifinalists of the Class of 1993 took the Preliminary Scholarship Aptitude Test (PSAT)/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMSQT) in October of their junior year. This year, the selection index was 202. Students with this index or higher scored in the top one half of one percent and were designated to be semifinalists.

Mr. James Sabin, head of East’s Guidance Department, said, “The entire administration and faculty of Cherry Hill East are extremely pleased and proud to see that so many of our students have become National Merit Semi-finalists.”

In order to become finalists, students had to fill out applications and write an essay in September of their senior year. The National Merit Scholarship Corporation also needed the endorsement of the students’ high school, and the records of the students’ grades and courses they have taken to see if their academic performances are the same standard as their PSAT scores. These students are required to take another SAT later in their junior year in order to verify that the subsequent SAT scores are consistent with their PSAT scores. Usually about 99% of the semifinalists become finalists and students are notified in the spring if they have qualified.

LETTERS OF COMMENDATION

Continuing with the high academic standings of East, 56 students received Letters of Commendations from the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. These students scored between 178 and 201 in their PSAT, placing them in the top one percent of those who took the test. "Being named Commended Students will broaden their horizons and encourage them to develop their potential to the fullest," said the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLARSHIP

"With the National Merit Scholarship for Negro Students, I will be able to attend Florida A and M in the fall. While I am very pleased to have earned this award, I am saddened by the fact that there were no other students who have won this award this year and for the past 18 years. I hope that more students have an opportunity to receive the award in the future." - Leeanne Atkins Learning is a quest, a quest in which we probe through the world we have taken for granted to discover those things we couldn’t take for granted because we didn’t know they existed. As T.S. Eliot once wrote, “We shall not cease from exploration/And the end of all our exploring/Will be to arrive where we started/And know the place for the first time.” Our quest may not always be a quest for mathematical formulas, or writing techniques, or chemical models of the atom. Sometimes the thing we will want to discover is ourselves. In these four years of high school, especially, we have done as much learning from each other as we have done from our teachers. Whether or not we have fully understood by graduation how to solve a first-order differential equation, we are well on our way to understanding ourselves. This is the true learning we strive for in childhood. Only after we know ourselves can we turn outward to the world, to “live deep and suck out all the marrow of life!” Like Thoreau, I learn “to put to rest all that was not life... And not, when I came to die, discover that I had not lived.”

-Eric Braverman

Academics is a nuclear explosion.
All atoms of knowledge hurtling across a surface of chaos and ignorance...
Pulled inward by a force, a drive: What a man can be, he must be.
Then, as the wave of learning accumulates more, the atoms begin to mesh into molecules -
Academics is no longer a meaningless mass of memorized facts;
Everything begins to make sense.
The expansive wave implodes into the stalk of the nuclear mushroom.
All that has been picked up and gained coalesces after Learning how to think.
The wave surges upward through the vortex, penetrating new Layers of thought.
The wave blooms outward, diverging into a labyrinth of infinite possibilities and speculations.
Knowledge, thought and creativity, melted together,
Now ripples away, reaching into the great expanse of the unknown.
I realize: The more I know, the more I need to know.

-Joe Cho
After 13 years of education, one finally obtains a love of learning. For me, however, I became interested in science in sixth grade. The school had its first science fair where, with a light source and a cup of water, I demonstrated how a rainbow could be formed because of the refraction of light. I became a finalist and gained not only a ribbon, but also a love of science. My love for science continued throughout junior high school and high school itself. In the tenth grade, I used my love for science to help the team win the Chemistry Science League. However, it grew into an interest in medicine. I pursued this interest when I signed up for the Kennedy Scholars Program where I could actually talk to the professionals about their responsibilities. A good education is the key to a good future.

-Rick Hong

I've been trying to think of something different to write, and I came up with some ideas. Too bad none of them were any good. I think I'll just list a couple of things that came to mind while trying to put something together.

Stressing - it's totally not worth it. You can do the same thing by taking everything step by step and not stressing. Things I enjoyed: math, especially Functions; chemistry; group studying ... Things I didn't enjoy as much: history; timed essays; standardized tests; three tests three periods in a row on the same day, stuff like that. Things I'll never forget: Macbeth; Shakespeare plays; Scher experiments, etc.

So many ups and downs. How could I forget - QPS-action/reaction (Newton's law); Rocchino's TSWE; mythology; Berryann - "doing a 9.8," counting tiles during Chem Team; split lab periods; bagels for lunch ... Four years at East. I can't believe it's over. So much time, so many memories. Now it's on to college for four more.

-Melody Lee

Learning is not only essential in life, it is life. With each new day, people learn more about the world and about themselves.

During high school, there is most probably the greatest amount of growth. At the same time as students finish physical growth, emotional and intellectual growth develops at an even more rapid rate.

Nevertheless, some students dread every day of school. And this dislike is healthy at times. Yet, students should realize that school means more than a bunch of letters: boosting your GPA, studying for the PSAT and SAT, preparing for the AP. While all of these items have superficial importance, knowledge is the greatest treasure obtained in life.

Ten or even five years down the line, no one will care about SAT scores, because they are just insignificant, fleeting numbers. Knowledge, however, respects no boundaries of time.

Another sometimes overlooked aspect of high school is extracurricular activities. Some laugh at such sayings as, "Get involved" or "East is like a buffet." Others actually take the advice and are able to learn as much outside of the classroom as inside.

Extracurricular activities provide an even more important form of knowledge: self identity. By attempting varied types of activities, students learn their personal likes and dislikes. This self-exploration is essential to living.

By putting in an extra effort to complete an assignment and by going further than the requirements, students can succeed in high school, college, and beyond ...

SPOTLIGHT ON SENIORS

Seniority (n.) - The condition or fact of being older;
Superiority in age or standing.
SENIORITY (n.) - The condition or state of being in 12th Grade; An attitude of superiority over everyone in the school.

But it's just another year, the last 25% of our high school career. In the grand scheme of our high school, senior year stands out beyond the others. It begins as any other year but after a few weeks of the same old stuff, it hits you - YOU'RE A SENIOR! What makes that fact undeniably clear? Well, it starts out with an application for a parking space. For a fee of $25 you can have a slab of asphalt for the year on which to park your car - the ultimate symbol of SENIORITY. Next, some one asks you, "So, where are you applying?" The casual browsing through college catalogs in Junior year becomes a frantic search for THE college. Guidance counselors, teachers, and parents keep reminding you how the choices you make during senior year will affect the rest of your life. No pressure. For the next few weeks, you wander through the day with a glazed look in your eyes swearing that the next person to say "application", dies.

But soon, the waiting is over. For most people, responses from colleges come quickly. Some acceptances, some rejections. You sort through the acceptances and pick your "home away from home" for the next few years. All of a sudden, a huge weight has been lifted off your shoulders - you're in college and Senioritis sets in. The second semester seems trivial SENIORITY once again returns as you smirk at the underclassmen busily working and studying.

The only goal you set for yourself is convincing your parents that Senior Cut Day is a school- sanctioned event.

So you sit back and relax and enjoy your classes. After all, for the first time in high school, you took classes that you wanted to take.

Sometimes, rank has its privileges.

Project Graduation is described by its present organizational leader, Carol Petrone, as the senior class's "first reunion." Planned to allow kids to have a wonderful time together — without drinking — it is the last opportunity for students to be together as a class. Held at the Fitquest fitness center, the graduation party has activities for everyone. There is always dancing to the music of a DJ, a Karaoke in which both students and teachers participate, sports, use of the pool, an aerobics class, a photographer with "Old Time Photos," and of course, lots of food. There is plenty of time to get last minute yearbook signatures, and there is also a huge banner for everyone to write on which will be released again — at the next, much later, reunion. Finally, there are also door prizes for almost everyone. The prizes are fabulous — they have included dorm fridges, gold jewelry, and a microwave oven.

The project was originated by West in 1990 and adopted by East in 1992. With continuing luck and support from the many dedicated parents, groups such as the Drug Alliance and Highway Safety Department, and the students eager to enjoy an alcohol-free evening, it will now become an annual tradition. The first party hosted about 350 students and lasted until three o'clock in the morning, when the chaperons practically had to chase the guests away. Thanks to this great response, following parties are planned to be spent until 4 AM, and breakfast will be served.

Project Graduation is a wonderful idea, and what is even more wonderful is that we are able to have the support and caring to carry it out.

The Cherry Hill High School East Class of 1992 graduates June 22, with a host of activities planned to extend the celebration into the early hours of the next morning.

East’s Home and School Association is sponsoring the First Annual Post Graduation Party.

East’s class of 1992 will make its mark by being the first class to have a graduation party sponsored by the HSA with the help of the whole community.

This year’s party will be held on graduation night, from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m., June 22, at the Fit Quest health center and gymnasium in the Cherry Hill Industrial Park.

The 1992 graduation party will offer the new graduates such activities as swimming, basketball, volleyball, tennis, racquetball, whirlpool, and sauna. The food, music, charades, and dancing will be flowing all night and all morning long. Many door prizes ranging from a limo ride to a rock concert, jewelry, state of the art appliances, shirts, and gift certificates to dinner will be given out during the entire event.

The party will give the class of 1992 a chance to celebrate, socialize, and a last chance for yearbook signing, at the same time their first reunion. The ticket price is $5 per senior with an option to purchase one additional ticket for a guest. Tickets need to be purchased at school prior to the party.

Not only has the East Home and School Association been very busy preparing for the gala party but many seniors have participated in the planning stages of the event. The official Project Graduation logos which will be displayed on the class T-shirts and the class banner were designed by seniors, Elisa Mintz and Ross Lambersky. Each senior (total 510) will sign the banner which will be on display at the school and will follow the class of ‘92 to its future reunions. Part of the entertainment will include the taping of charade performances with large screen viewing for everyone. The students have also planned a talent show.

East’s 1992 Project Graduation is the start of the long-range and annual commitment of the HSA to meet a need that many communities have identified.

Statistically, graduation night has been documented as one of the worst nights of the year for teenage drug and alcohol related injuries and tragedies. The post graduation party will provide a place for the graduates to have fun safely and show the students they can have a good time without drinking and drugs.

The East teens can celebrate because they are coming to their own private party, with their friends, to a place that they selected.
Saumya Bhatnager and Rick Hong participated in the Kennedy Scholars Program at Kennedy Memorial Hospital. The two Seniors were interviewed in October and selected over several other East students. The program started in November where the two volunteers spend an hour and a half every Tuesday and Thursday learning about the different aspects of the medical field. Demos, field trips, and lectures were all parts of this program. This unique experience has further enriched their future in their medical careers.

Each year the New Jersey Board of Higher Education awards scholarships to students who are planning to attend New Jersey colleges. These awards are based on class rank and S.A.T scores. The two divisions of awards are the Garden State Scholars and the Edward J. Bloustein Distinguished Scholars. This year, 38 Seniors from East received the prestigious Garden State Scholarships for academic excellence. 44 Seniors from East were honored to be called the Edward J. Bloustein Distinguished Scholars. The large number of recipients of both awards represent the quality of East’s education.

For the summer, Joanne Cosiol worked as an aide of Senator Bill Bradley. It was a regular 9 to 5 job which was a learning experience of the State’s political system. During this memorable summer, Joanne got to see first hand how our government worked without getting paid a salary. Michael Lustbader also had the opportunity to work with the Senator for two weeks.

Michael Mansour participated in a scholarship contest sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution. He was elected by popular vote at the high school level. Mike continued on to the county level and later the state level by filling out an application and an essay. Each win at each level gave more and more scholarship information. There was a banquet for all the county winners from the high schools in May at Rutgers University. The Daughters of the American Revolution determined the county winners.

Lisa Shusterman was a member of the New Jersey Association of Student Councils (NJASC). The organization held meetings once a month. Lisa was elected as the role representative for the students of New Jersey. She served as a non-voting state board member. Lisa made presentations and could speak on any topic being discussed.

Three students from East were chosen to appear on KYW-TV 3 show “Rap Around” with host Ukee Washington. Mike Lustbader, Tricia Rellosa, and Lisa Shusterman discussed the 1992 Presidential Election. About 12 to 15 kids from the Delaware Valley talk about subjects relating to youths of today on each episode.

Jimmy Yang was a member of the Philadelphia Youth Orchestra for the third year. Since sophomore year, Jimmy has had the opportunity to travel with this prestigious group and play throughout the world. From his travels, he has met many famous musicians and learned a great deal about the European culture.

Winner of East’s Young Woman of the Year, Tricia Rellosa, went on to the county level and was selected as the first runner-up in the Camden County Young Woman of the Year Competition.
YOUNG WOMAN OF THE YEAR

Young Woman of the Year, formerly called American Junior Miss, is a nationwide program to recognize, reward and encourage the excellence in our young people. Since 1958, the competition has been selecting the one outstanding high school girl from among the 25,000 who take part in one of 400 community competitions in all 50 states. Young Woman of the Year is a leading scholarship program; girls compete at the local, state, and national level. Scoring is based on academics, talent, fitness, presence, composure, and values and abilities expressed in an interview. Seventeen talented young girls originally applied for the title; however, the academics and the interview narrowed the girls down to only six. These included Courtney Ames, Jen Bikel, Lisa Shusterman, Kathi Bickel, Debbie Kruse, and Tricia Rellosa. “The understanding faculty helped to make me feel more comfortable,” said Lisa Shusterman, the first runner-up. “It is a wonderful opportunity for a well-rounded student to be recognized in all aspects, personal, academic and physical,” commented Tricia Rellosa, who was chosen Young Woman of the Year. Tricia will now travel to the state finals.

What exactly is fashion at Cherry Hill East? It isn’t what designers show on Paris runways, but rather what you want it to be. Fashion is your own personal style, your own personal statement.

Then there are jeans, the eternal, omnipresent classic. Whether they be cut-offs baggy, ripped, rolled at the cuff, straight legged, or colored with the rainbow, jeans are still a favorite.

Whatever your style may be, here’s advice for everyone. Don’t throw away anything. You never know when that fashion wheel will come around again.

Prom Night

arrives after weeks and weeks of preparation.

One quick trip up an elevator makes it all happen. The doors slowly open. Beyond, waits another world.

The smell of food fills the room. Music blares from within. Girls and guys move their bodies to the beat. When the slow song, the theme of the entire evening begins, all sway in unison. One song brought the class of 1993 together. It is incredible.

Eventually, the streamers and balloons begin to slowly drop from the ceiling. The music slowly comes to a halt. The Prom is reaching its conclusion. Leaving the floor, the couples head back to the elevator where the night began. Another awesome high school event has passed, leaving a memory that will last for years to come.

Privilege and responsibility go together.

To do a common thing uncommonly well, brings success.

Education must challenge the creativity of the mind.

Education has only one basic factor - one must want it.

We do not miss our way through what we do not know, but through what we falsely think we know.

Tomorrow can be the first day of the rest of your life.
What's Hot

The Body Shop, pea coats, Ren & Stimpy, Aladdin, Snapple, Spin Doctors, community service, natural fibers, flannel, AIDS awareness, Socks (the cat), Techno, workfare, Seinfeld, and dutch-dating.

Question:

Where, on East’s campus, can one: chat with friends, enjoy lunch, commune with nature, hone athletic abilities, catch some rays, or sleep, all without breaking any rules?

What's Not

The Limited, leather jackets, The Simpsons, Beauty and the Beast, Nirvana, greed, polyester, spandex, AIDS ignorance, Millie (the dog), heavy metal, welfare, Cheers, double dating.

Answer:

The courtyards. Designed to allow students an area to relax outside the confines of the building, the courtyards are an ideal place to simply “veg.” During lunch periods and after school, if the weather permits, students gather in these areas to play hackey-sack, eat, sit on the benches to talk, or watch the resident bunnies. Also, once a year, the courtyard hosts some exhibits, such as the tie-dying booth, in the PAVAS festival.

No matter what the use, the courtyards are a welcome diversion from the traditional school day.

For Whom The Bell Tolls

On October 17, a number of student firefighters were involved in controlling the tragic blaze at Shorthill's Farm. East is proud to have these unsung heroes to help the school in the case of a fire. While the average student views the twice-monthly scheduled fire drills as a casual break from class, the firefighter's job has just begun when the alarm bell sounds. These young men and women are responsible for making sure all of the students have evacuated the building and everything is done according to procedure.

On Monday, October 19, 1992, 95 students from the Social Studies Department, led by chairperson Dennis Smyth, travelled to the New Woodbine Inn in Pennsauken to hear Vice-President Dan Quayle speak during the Bush-Quayle reelection campaign swing through New Jersey. Amidst chants of “Four More Years!” from the crowd of about 500 students, Quayle outlined his plan for health insurance reform.
"No, really?", says Rachel Zmuda, hanging onto the phone, "He didn't!"

When East was built, the public pay phones were most likely installed first. Only then could the building be formed around them.

The pay phones are an integral part of East. From pre-homeroom to an hour after the last bus departs, someone can always be found by the familiar wall in front of Cafeteria I, chattering away cheerfully for the price of two dimes. The phones are used to call home for a ride, to give the great news about an exam grade just received, to check up on a sick friend. Privacy is non-existent as the phones are set in pairs almost adjacent to each other, but if there's a real problem, you can always trek to C-Wing intersection, where there is one solitary phone. Bring ear-plugs to block out the noise of the traffic, hope no one is breathing in your ear waiting for you to hang up, and you're all set.

Waiting in line for a phone isn't all that bad. One popular, standard conversation is so quick that you won't have to wait but a moment: "Ma? Me. Pick me up. Bye." Of course, then there is always the person who talks straight through one period and well into the next. These people are easy to identify because they are seated comfortably in chairs by the telephone, feet up against the wall; so just avoid them.

"No, really?" Rachel says, never letting go of the receiver she seems almost to be nursing. "He didn't!"

Do you have a quarter I can borrow? I'm going to C-Wing.
It's a congregation place for many. Here, friendships are formed, lives are discussed, vital decisions are made. Behind the heavy door lies another world that can only be understood by those who are allowed to enter. It's a sacred place with unwritten laws of its own. Between classes, it's a sanctuary, and for some, the only safe haven they can find. It does not judge people, it does not condemn. Keep it clean and it will always be there for you.

Whatever the problem, it has the answer. People enter and exit all day long, sometimes emerging looking like a whole new person. Qualifications for belonging are few but important.

Welcome to the girls' bathroom.

Boys' bathroom? Right this way.

It contains a row of toilets, some sinks, and a piece of reflective glass that's affectionately called a mirror. People enter, go about their business, and leave. Sometimes they wash their hands first.

At East, the lavatories have different meanings to both genders, but to each, they are equally important. (And maybe the men would feel as warmly toward the bathrooms as do the women if they, too, had full-length mirrors.) The rules for each are also similar: 1) Don't have a deep conversation until you have locked both under and over the stalls for your best friend or English teacher, and 2) Check for toilet paper before you go.

And that, my fellow bathroom-goers, is the beauty of it all; it's so simple. In the lavatories, no one asks you math problems or how to say "toilet tissue" in French. They're just places in which you can hide during dances, or of course, when nature calls.

O Bathrooms, an ode to thee.

Russell Wolff and Shana O'Hara help organize Stacy Stocknoff's locker.

Michele Melograna and Jen Waters search the locker for last night's math homework.

Alyssa Heimerling and Stephanie Kramer "conference call" a friend.

Ingredients: 5 books, 2 jackets, 1 broken umbrella, 9 ripped book covers, 366 photographs/magazine cutouts, 3 socks (mismatched), 1 sneaker, 29¢, 82 balled-up pieces of paper

Lockers can provide us with a source of great mystery. As students walk the familiar hallways, questions abound. Who gets the large lockers at the end of each row? Why are all the lockers different colors? If we leave food in them, will we really get nice? These questions remain unanswered.

Lockers can also be a form of pure amusement. When you are bored, you can occupy yourself by trying the handle of every locker to see if one was left unlocked. Or, see if you can figure out the combo of another. You never know when you'll get lucky.

Lockers are especially fun on birthdays, when they can be broken into, filled with confetti, and then gift-wrapped. Notes can also be shoved into the ventilation cracks from time to time, but you must be careful - word has it that the wrong locker has been chosen many times before.

Of course, there's always the horror of lockers, too, and that's when you find out that yours for the year is located on the third floor. When this happens, there's only one thing to do: Find a friend, smile big and do as they do in kindergarten - share.
There are over 47 well-known colleges that begin with the letter "C" alone. Combine these with the SAT, pre-calculus, an impending prom and eight relatives demanding to know what Jimmy wants to be when he grows up, and the result is some pretty confused juniors and seniors. These are very difficult years for students, full of many choices and options, of which one of the hardest is which college to attend. To help relieve this burden, every year East's guidance department sets up a program called Higher Education Night. With luck, this makes the decision that most juniors and seniors must face slightly less overwhelming.

Organized by Mr. Sabin, on Thursday, September 24, representatives from every type of college and university arrived at East. These people set all over the first floor, filling both cafeterias, the main gym, hallways, the lecture halls, and various classrooms. Some colleges just set up tables with information, while others had entire rooms to themselves for periodic speeches. Every type of school was represented from Ivy League to culinary academies.

At 7:30 PM, students and their parents began to arrive, not only from East but from high schools all over the area. The guests wandered around, gathering interested and speaking to the representatives there. However, the most popular activity of the evening was filling out the address cards for further information to be sent to each prospective applicant's home.

Higher Ed Night might not have caused any miracles, but most likely, everyone did become at least a little less confused. All of the representatives had something useful to say and were as helpful as possible. Students have a huge decision to be made, but ultimately it must be made. This event made it somewhat easier.
"Fourth period is now over," a voice breaks in over the loudspeaker. "Everyone now to fifth period." Within seconds, the doors open and confused-looking parents reassemble in the hallways, looking over each other's shoulders at maps and wondering how they'll ever find F-wing. At the same moment, most of their kids are at home, comfortably watching TV and eating leftover pizza. It's the one night of the year when the parents are the ones who must brave school at East, and although their "day" is shortened to a mere three hours, they're bound to return looking a lot more haggard than we students ever did. And so goes Back to School Night.

An annual tradition at every school as long as blackboards have hung in classrooms, Back to School Night came to East this year on Thursday, October 8th. At 7:30 PM, parents of most every student from every grade arrived, ready to meet the teachers that they had heard so much about for a month and to see what the classes were really like. Upon arrival, the multitude of parents were herded into the auditorium, where they were given a quick orientation and entertained by various East singing groups. Then they were at last released to search for their kids' homerooms not an easy feat.

In the homerooms, each parent was given a sheet that their children had previously filled out to tell of their day's schedule. The parents then had only to go through the difficult ordeal of finding each classroom, where they would stay for fifteen minute sessions of discussion with that teacher. While this went on, students in the main hall sold school magazines, East clothing, and class fundraisers. There were so many hundreds of people there that everything was successful.

Back to School Night may be a good way to prove to the parents just how stressful a day at East really is, but it has other benefits, too. Parents at last get to see what they've only heard about until then, which really helps to get them involved in their children's lives. If there is a problem, this is also a good opportunity for teachers and parents to talk. Tiring or otherwise, Back to School Night is a wonderful experience, and we should be glad that East does it so well.
On Monday and Tuesday, October 26 and 27, the hallways at East took on a rather somber air. The usual socialities did not take place; there was no laughter, no smiles, no playful fights or screaming across the courtyards. People nodded at each other as they passed and continued on their way, heads bent down. "Big Al" had just come to East, and our actions showed how he affected us all.

"Big Al" Szolack was once a happy, healthy basketball player for the Harlem Globetrotters until his mother died. Then, unable to deal with this tragedy, he turned to drugs. His life deteriorated for the next seven years until he finally realized that he needed help. Turning to a neighbor, he was greeted with acceptance — and a hug. This changed him entirely, and as soon as he cleaned himself up and began to reform his life, he started to help others. One of his most potent means of getting through to the youth is his "Hugs — Not Drugs" seminar, and this is what he brought to East.

"Did you think that this would just be another dumb drug program?" Al asked at one point of his program, and the audience had to agree that they had been wrong. Coming onto the stage in the auditorium first thing Monday and Tuesday morning, Al had just seemed a calm, ordinary man. However, within minutes, he had been transformed. Clinging onto the microphone, he made his points clearly, yelling when necessary and absorbing us in his words. Don’t do drugs, he demanded, but also be accepting of others, don’t be too trusting, love your family, do what you can to help others to get along. East’s Natural Helpers, who helped to organize this program, sat scattered in the audience to aid people who found the speech to be too emotional to handle themselves. When he was finished with his talk, faculty members were asked to leave the room and members of the audience were invited to come speak about anything they needed to discuss. A surprising number of students came forward, and quite a large number of tears fell.

The assembly lasted through half of third period and then recommenced for eighth. However, during the other four and a half periods, teachers were expected to discuss the assembly with their classes, and Al opened the library to anyone who wanted to speak with him or a guidance counselor. All day long, “Proud to be Drug Free” Ribbons were also given out in honor of National Red Ribbon Week. It was a powerful day for everyone, including those who realized how they were harming themselves and those who instead just now realized how lucky they really are. Did Al truly make a difference? Judging by the reaction of everyone at East — perhaps he did.

“Big Al” talks about the deaths of three people who used drugs.

Al’s message really hits home with various stories of truly gruesome incidents.

Al lightens the mood throughout the day by telling several anecdotes.

Jennifer Lipsius and Rebecca Fried play Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Webb, who are gossiping about their husbands while stringing beans.

Ryan Wolfson, George Gibbs, is being comforted by Mrs. Gibbs, his mother, on his wedding day.
R.J. Portella narrates this story of the typical life in the small town of Grover's Corners, New Hampshire.

Ryan Wolfson and Sharon Markowitz, George Gibbs and Rebecca Gibbs, are teens who are pondering the meaning of life.

Ryan Wolfson and Shelby Adams as Emily Webb first discover that they are in love.
Students learn how to help their peers so that other students would always know that they have people their own age to trust.

It is human nature to need someone to turn to in our times of distress. Here at East high school, we have many guidance counselors who are happy to help students with their problems and are well-trained to do so. We also have kind-hearted, interested teachers who are always willing to offer advice or lend a sympathetic ear when students come to them. Hopefully, most of us are also fortunate enough to have loving, concerned parents and family members who are there for us at any given time. However, even with all these people to help, to whom are most young people most likely to turn? To our peers. To our fellow students and classmates who we spent the bulk of our day with.

For this reason, a large-scale program called NATURAL HELPERS was instituted. Thirty-five students and eight faculty members were chosen to participate in a weekend-long training session in Elmer, New Jersey in the Fall of 1992. The students involved were trained to help their peers so that other East students would always know that they could have people their own age to trust.

Finally, on Saturday morning, October 3rd, with the selections completed, the volunteers left together for Appel Farms, which incidentally is an art and music camp during the summer. Over the weekend, the volunteers had a busy schedule crammed with new types of learning. Their training covered trust-building, problem-solving, communication skills, listening skills, warning signs, referrals and the ability to help oneself.

With each topic, the students had activities that related directly to a specific topic. "It was amazing how close we became in such a short time," says Jodi Cohen (1994), one of the selected peer helpers. "We trusted each other and talked about things we wouldn't normally talk about."

After the program culminated on Monday, the volunteers returned with tons of information and new friendships that bond. Throughout the year, they built confidence in helping others and themselves. This ability will last all through high school and beyond, for at any age, we need to know someone is there for us.

Back in the spring of 1992, 100 volunteers from all four grade levels filled out forms indicating that they wished to participate in this unusual program. Mr. Gallagher, Mr. Belchikoff and Mrs. Denker reviewed the lists of applicants making sure of choosing students with a wide variety of interests.
More Modern Media

In preparing for her English term paper, Sara Braslow browses through East’s vast collection of resources.

More indispensable than one might realize is East’s library. The overwhelming number of materials and services offered by our library allows us only a brief overview. First is the computer system introduced just this year. Called Dynex, it not only enables the library to enforce the dues system it always struggled to have, but it also provides the student with many well-received programs. Among the many are a retrieval system into other libraries and an automated card catalogue. We also have ProQuest, a database program; PC Globe, which allows students to create maps; the Prodigy system; and on the list goes.

In the main room, materials overflow. There are books on science and technology, biographies, fiction works, and encyclopedias. Also, here one can find our Teacher Reference collection, the manual card catalogue the Information desk, the Circulation Desk, the library office, and the new PACS (Public Access Catalogue Terminals) for the Dynex computers.

In the Annex, we have books on social studies, literature, sports and recreation, arts, general works, philosophy, religion, social sciences, and language. There are also magazines, pamphlets, newspapers, microfilm/microfiche materials, computer indexes, and the infamous Xerox machine, along with the fifth PAC.

In the Non-Print room, right next to the Cable Studio, are the nonprint materials, equipment to utilize them, videotape viewing carrels, typewriters, and word processing systems.

We can’t neglect the people who run this all—Miss Beck, Miss Labowicz, Mr. Miamidian, Mrs. Hales, Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Fleisher, Mrs. Rothman, Mrs. Rader, and the student and adult volunteers.
Imagine that you are a visitor to Cherry Hill East. Looking at its immense size, you are undaunted by its maze of passageways and infamous intersections. C-Wing, E-Wing, Cafeteria I, Cafeteria II - it is all a blur as you run through the hallways desperately seeking that one meeting you cannot miss.

Spying a friendly face in front of Communications, you run toward the green desk. There, the smiling senior asks the question you sigh in relief to hear:

"Can I help you?" asks the Student Host/Hostess.

Senior year offered many students the unique opportunity to act as Student Host/Hostess for one day. Signing up for this position at the end of Junior year, students were assigned a specific day where they missed the day’s classes in order to fill this position behind the desk. There, they greeted and guided the various visitors to East as they walked through the doors.

However, once in a while, there was the truly exceptional Host, characterized by a disarming smile, a courteous manner, and a dazzling display of knowledge about the school and its events. This student came prepared to answer such questions as "Is there a back way to the teacher’s cafeteria?"

PASSAGES: a metamorphosis
PASSAGES

When the sun is rising over Kresson Road, and the thin metal ribbon of city-bound traffic is slowly forming, the school, too, awakens to greet the business of the new day. Cars slowly fill the parking lot, lights are turned on, classrooms are unlocked.

And members of the custodial staff make their final rounds through the halls, silently and faithfully preparing these passageways for the tide of teachers and teenagers about to populate them.

But, while C-Wing intersection is the one spot of East that has the kind of reputation usually reserved for legend, one must look to the long hall called A-Wing to understand fully what being a Cougar means.

Glass cases hold the fruit of our teams’ victories. Bulletin boards announce cast lists. Cinderblock walls gleam with artwork. Ceiling-to-floor windows (how were they always kept so clean?) reveal the grass of a courtyard. A bank of doors under a marquee offers entry into a grand auditorium, the doors themselves framed by displays of every stripe: thespian, cultural, academic, political, aesthetic.

Passing the box-office, the Cougar Pride Award, the map of the school and the Senior Hall of Fame, one comes to the great delta of East, the spacious foyer of the main entrance, housing Communications, the desk of the Student Host/ess, and the red-and-white insignia of Cherry Hill High School East, under which swing the doors to Administration, Guidance, and The Nurse.

Here, we have taped big, red blood drops to the wall, we have painted signs for FOP, we have bought pizza after school and refreshments during intermissions.

Here, we have enjoyed PAVAS, we have gathered after assembly programs, we have waited to use the telephone.

Here, we have paced nervously before a performance or test, we have bought class rings and have sat for portraits, we have watched our neighbors vote.

Here, along this, the most travelled passage of our school, we have grown and changed. On our own. With our friends.

If you hear a stomach rumbling at East, get suspicious. This is not a place for being hungry.

We're not even going to discuss lunch here, although that in itself offers enough to keep even the most demanding digestive system happy. It's all the other food that we find lurking in every corners that we will speak of now.

Arrive at school, 7:35 AM. Go into the cafeteria for breakfast. Waiting for you under the cheerful supervision of our cafeteria workers are bagels, danish, juice, cereal, milk, and fruit.

Second period study hall. Grab a juice from the machines in the cafeteria. Hi-C today? or should you try that Apple-
Cherry-Berry stuff?

Fourth period, right before History. Homeroom representatives are selling lolly-pops again. You dig out a quarter.

Seventh period. Grab an ice-cream sandwich from the cafeteria vending machines. You might it through the next two periods.

And then, at last, 2:25 ... the true buffet begins. There's the yearbook candy store, of course, with chips, candy, chocolate, cookies, popcorn, crackers, and lollipops.

Clubs sell soft pretzels in the hall. French Club has its croissant sales every few weeks, pizza is sold on Mondays, Demogorgan offers doughnuts. Sports teams have occasional bake sales. The soda machines get turned on. And don't forget those ubiquitous ice-cream sandwiches!

It's a wonder that we're not all rolling through the halls.

But at least it keeps us happy!

When we were little, birthdays were exciting. They meant parties and wrapped-up toys and ice-cream. Birthdays meant polka-dotted hats with elastic straps around the chin and Pin-the-tail-on-the-Donkey and birthday cakes and Musical chairs. And birthdays were wonderful.

Then we grew older and birthdays began to lose something of their glamour. Yes, they were still exciting, but the polka-dotted hats were gone. And for a few years, this decrease in birthday-ness continued on its decline.

Until one very particular birthday - the seventeenth. Suddenly, all the excitement of our younger days has returned, augmented after so many years of latency. It isn't a resurrection of helium balloons or wrapped Barbies that does this to us. Instead, it is all-powerful force - the driver's license.

The receiving of the driver's license is a momentous occasion. First it brings the new driver the strongest feeling of relief and success after so much practice and worry. Then comes the feeling of independency, all of a sudden, it isn't necessary to find a ride to the mall. You ARE your ride to the mall. It is an invitation into real life - self-reliability, freedom and gas bills.

For those East students who are fortunate enough to have their own car comes another bonus: the ability to drive oneself to and from school. For this, a parking spot must first be obtained. Previous to this year, spots were available on a lottery system, but a smaller student body now allows every senior to get their own designated space. Even most juniors who ask for a spot can receive one. A parking permit costs $25.

Receiving a driver's license is one of the most meaningful experiences a teenager goes or grows through. You can take yourself to school. You can run yourself over to the frozen yogurt place for dessert. You can even get into the R-rated movies with argument.

Celebrate with a wild game of Musical Chairs.

The Centers For Social And Economic Opportunities
It's a rainy day in Cherry Hill, and you and a few friends are trying to come up with something to do. Finally, after some intense deliberation, the old tried-and-true standby, the mall, becomes the logical solution. Too typical?

Okay, another scenario. It's a nice spring day in Cherry Hill, and you and a few friends are trying to come up with something to do. Finally, after some intense deliberation, the bunch of you end up... at the mall. Again.

What is it about the malls that irresistibly draws us to them again and again, no matter how often or how recently we've been there? What's the attraction?

It is most likely the versatility that draws us. The immediate Cherry Hill area offers a wide range of malls to frequent. But, more than that however, is how much there really is to do in each location. It is the solemn responsibility of the mall to offer any service or attraction a shopper could possibly need. There are stores of every sort. There are restaurants (food courts) in which to eat. There are movie theaters. And they are overflowing with attractions for when we just wander aimlessly to "people-watch" which is a great majority of the time. Echelon boasts the new Exhilerama and they all offer Glamour Studios, Old-Time Photos, picture booths, fashion shows, collectible booths, Santa's lap, arcades, and the waterbed stores which almost everyone has ventured into at least once. Moorestown even has an indoor miniature gold course. And, most of all, there are people. It is our tendency as personable people to want to be where other personable people are and you certainly find them at the mall!

But how about when we actually have a real purpose for our mall-going? Our best shopping is done at the malls: back-to-school shopping, gift-buying, another poster, that adorable key chain. Of course there are the typical department stores, boutiques, sporting goods stores, music, electronics, pet shops, drug stores, book stores and countless shoe stores. There are also the specialty shops of all sorts: accessories, eye wear, Everything-for-$1- stores, Gap, Gap Kids, Gap Babies; even a shop that only sells white clothing! There are earring piercing pagodas, toys for the intelligent child and pushcarts that offer everything from T-shirts to caricatures to names sewn on caps. If you stop to think about it, it's absolutely amazing. So, how much money do we actually spend when we take one of these mall-journeys? It all depends, of course. Money goes for clothes, a movie, clothes, a poster, clothes, a CD, another needed item of clothing. Sometimes a book, maybe some additional baseball cards, a cute stuffed animal, a gadget to dangle from the windshield mirror of our car.

We also like sales. They often lure us in. Sometimes we play the price game, sometimes we even make a science out of it. The predictability of most stores' advertising usually lets us win at this. However, whether buying is secondary on these trips or if we come home loaded with bags, whether we have fun or if we've spent time complaining that there simply must be something better to do... time and time again we still return to our favorite haunts... the incredible, versatile, exciting malls.

East's election process prepares its students for real life elections. Those students who run for positions in the Student Government Association (SGA) or a class office prepare in a way that is similar to the way real candidates run for various positions in the United States Government.

Tricia Rellosoa, President of the SGA, said, "We try to run our elections as much like real ones as possible. The process is totally democratic. We take time out from classes for assemblies, have candidates make campaign speeches, and use massive publicity. We take the process very seriously. It's just like a real election."

First, the students who are running for office have to take out a petition for students' signatures of 15 percent of their class. Students running for SGA offices must have the signatures of 20 percent of the school, and SGA class representatives need the signatures of 15 percent of their class. The candidates and their parents also have to sign a commitment pledge. Then, they are given a copy of the constitutional amendment for being removed from office.

Just as in real life elections, primaries are also held at East. If any office has more than four candidates, there will be a primary and the top three candidates will go on as election candidates. There are possibilities of having primaries in class offices, but not in SGA offices. After the primaries, the campaign assembly where the candidates give speeches is held. Mrs. Kathy Carpenter holds a special session on how to give a campaign speech before the assembly. Then the election is run. Students vote in the same machines that are used for real elections.

This year's SGA officers were Tricia Rellosoa, President; Neil Rellosoa, Vice-President of Activities; Ashley Baker, Vice-President of Affairs; Vini Malhotra, Secretary-Treasurer; and Brian Friedman, Publicity.
Last year, Expansion Magazine ranked the Cherry Hill School District as 8th best nationally for turning out graduates who have "the right stuff for employers." This year, the district has been upgraded to fifth nationally. The faculty of East has certainly played an important part in this achievement.

Known as "M", the popular substitute teacher and cheerleading coach at East, Mr. Charlie Musumeci has made a name for himself outside of East, as well. This year, Mr. Musumeci landed a role in a Warner Bros. feature titled That Night starring Juliette Lewis and C. Thomas Howell. Also, Mr. M. and his comedy partner opened a show in October at the TropWorld Casino and Resort in Atlantic City. Has success changed Mr. Musumeci? We don't think so.

Mrs. Louise McDonnell received an Outstanding Teacher Award from the College of the University of Chicago, having been nominated by a former Cherry Hill student now attending the University of Chicago. The award was to an outstanding teacher who "opened up challenging new vistas and realms of discovery."

Last year, Mr. Matthew Carr was selected to attend the first segment of a two-summer program on the comparative study of Shakespearian drama and Japanese Kabuki theatre. Last summer the program took place at the University of Maryland. This summer the program was in Japan.

At the end of 1992, Mr. Gallagher announced the recommendation of Mr. Don Witzig for the position of PE/Health Department Chairperson and Athletic Director. He assumed his duties on December 17, upon the retirement of Mr. Richard Oliver.

During the 1991-1992 school year, a new type of award was begun. The Cougar Pride Award is given to members of the staff who students feel consistently go above and beyond to make the school special. The first recipient of the 1993 award was Mr. Bill Martinez.

This edition of EIDOLON marks the retirement of Mrs. Bobbi Hopp as adviser to High School East's yearbook. As head adviser since 1986, Mrs. Hopp has captured 7 first place awards for this publication. She started "yearbooking" in 1976 at West as art adviser and worked hard and long at her cherished "labor of love."

Four of East's faculty members - Mr. Matthew Carr, Mrs. Joan Saltzer, Mr. Fred Belchikoff, and Dr. John Vivone - were chosen as additions to the yearly publication Who's Who in American High School Teachers.

To the Class of 1993:

When I talk about the future of this country, I am talking about you. Your generation has good reason to be cynical about what government can do, but I want to change that.

For years I have heeded the advice of one of my college professors, Carroll Quigley, who taught his students that America is the greatest nation in the world because our people have always believed that 1) the future can be better than the present and 2) each of us has a personal moral responsibility to make it so.

My program - and the Democratic Platform of 1992 - calls for a revolution in government which will take power away from entrenched bureaucracies and put it back in the hands of ordinary people. Our plan expands opportunity, calls for greater individual responsibility, and restores a sense of brotherhood and community in our nation.

What I most want you to feel is that we are all in this great experiment together. Each of you has a personal responsibility to make life better for your neighbors and to work for changes you want in your country. I urge you to vote if you are old enough. I encourage you to volunteer in your community. I ask you to make your voice heard. You can make a difference.

Sincerely,

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

No one at East is perfect. Occasionally, we seek out our teachers for extra help. However, there are some people who need a little more help than the average teacher can give. These people turn to the people in East's special programs, which include the Child Study Teams, the Special Education Instructors, and Resource Programs. Foreign students are also helped to overcome the language barrier through the "English as a Second Language" program. Whoever the person or whatever the problem is, these special educators are always ready to help.
SPECIAL SERVICES

Can you imagine what would happen if there were no maintenance and communications personnel, nurses, and campus police? East would be a filthy, ailing, and chaotic school. For hours after the rest of the school leaves, the maintenance men clean up the mess that we made. All day long, every day, nurses take the temperatures of students who acquired a "sickness" right before a test. Campus police not only help to find stolen objects, but they also seem to open the door every time you are locked in the courtyard. These people, along with others in the athletics and reparations department help keep East in order. Without them, we would be lost.

Reminiscing her own high school years, Office Lazar shows Ruth Fleisher her yearbook.

Come thou hither! We be going on a journey. A journey that many never experience. We be traveling back in time, back 404 years to Revels Faire Day in 1588. We, the Thespians, Madrigals, Living Theatre Classes, and most of English IV classes, be going to the Pennsylvania Renaissance Faire.

I marvel much at. Today, October 19, 1992, is the perfect English day. It is drizzling and cold. Today, we will even experience our first snow of the year. Yes, today is the perfect English weather for a trip back in time.

Alas and alack. There be so much to do. What shall we do first? Shall we go to the Globe Theatre and catch a Shakespeare play or to Bosworth Field and watch an exhilarating joust or to the Chess Arena for a lively game of human chess.

If thee be parched and in need of victuals, there be a variety of vendors to choose from. There be stir frye, Italian pies and barbaric turkey legs.

Have thee any more money to spend? Craftsmen and shoppes be a plenty here. There be blacksmiths, candlemakers, and goldsmiths. However, many revelers choose to buy incense sticks for a mere shilling.

Well, here's a tip to make thy day better. Whenever thee seest the queen, shout “God Save The Queen.” If thee does not, thy head shall be cut off. Besides this fact, have a nice day.

Fare thee well.

Russell Wolff, Liz Phillips, Dana Pachman, and Eric Salzman enjoy a comfortable (?) ride by camel-back at the Renaissance Fair.

“No, young sir,” speaketh Cedric the Pretzel-yetman to a young swain. “Dost thee have the price for one of these royal bread twists to take the edge off this chill northern morn?”

THE PLAY’S THING . . .

It was the only time we had ever been asked to commit to such an undertaking. It wasn’t only a project; it was a production. It wasn’t just group work; it was the start of a true bonding process. As the weeks went by, we cursed our fate — and our Senior AP English teacher, Mr. Carr. But in the hours and days after it ended, we looked at each other with wistful longing, seven families now cut asunder by the passing of the once dreaded November 23rd deadline.

From the gender reversals of As You Like It to the suave hi-jinks of Much Ado About Nothing; from the wacky slapstick of The Comedy of Errors to a politically satiric The Tempest; from the western prairies of Twelfth Night to the eastern sands of The Taming of the Shrew to the visionary planet “Loveshack” in A Midsummer Night’s Dream . . . we went where no student . . . where no actor . . . had gone before.

And, not content to rest on our laurels, we took to the stage again, less than a month later. This time, as fugitive thespians from Mr. Canz’s 4A classes, we sported togas in a United States Senate for an updated Julius Caesar, romped in a broadly physical Shrew, and envisioned a split-stage Hamlet which kept the audience simultaneously in 15th century Denmark and on a 20th century analyst’s couch.

With our creative playbills and our uncanny impersonations of our own beloved, bearded, black-clad bards, we proved that studying Shakespeare can be what it was meant to be: entertaining.

And when it was all over, we knew more about Shakespeare, about theater, and about ourselves than we had ever known.
Joe Cho and Vinay Chawla show off their strength as actors as they take a shot at A Comedy of Errors.

Rick Hong and Vinay Chawla continue the slapstick action of Errors.

Lou Haym and Sean Cho turn their attention to the action center stage.

Rebecca Fried and Debbie Kruse battle in a climactic scene from The Taming of the Shrew.

Surely, they jest: Acam Tarshis and Lisa Shusterman fight it out in As You Like It.

Steve Levy and Eric Braverman put an Arabic twist on The Taming of the Shrew.
Mrs. Regan explains the answer of a problem-solving exercise to Tiffany Baker.

Despite his informal pose, students pay rapt attention as Mr. Chamberlain explains the differences between classical and operant conditioning.
For two days, the students at East seem to be getting smaller and younger. No, these little people are not students or Smurfs or Munchkins or Lilliputians, they are psychology projects.

Children between the ages of three and eight invaded the halls to participate in East’s novice Freud’s, Skinner’s and Wundt’s experiments. The psychology R, A and AP students, who are under the tutelage of Mrs. Nancy Linton and Mrs. Margaret Regan, brought in their younger siblings, cousins, or neighbors to perform tests which show cognitive development, characteristics of age differences, and differences between the sexes. In these classes, the students just ask the children questions or present them with hypothetical situations. Then, the responses are analyzed to prove their hypothesis that an older child’s cognitive abilities and language are more developed than a younger child’s. During the day, the young children are not the only ones who undergo difficult tests. Students also have an equally strenuous time trying to entertain and to keep track of these children for the entire day. However, almost every student involved finds the experience to be a rewarding one.

Mr. Hillman shows Mira Silbert, Greg Weintraub, and Tracy Denton an extremely funny picture in their American Law textbook.

Howard Boulden could wear a scarf better than anyone. And there was a certain flair, a genuine je ne sais quoi, about the way he took his mid-morning constitutional around the perimeter of the school, especially in early spring, when the March sun would illuminate his craggily handsome features.

At his best, he was a raconteur without equal, regaling colleagues and students with witty stories about his relatives and poignant revelations about human nature.

He had a feel for what we generally call “the finer things of life” — and he could be just as enthusiastic about spending his summer on an archaeological dig in Williamstown as about the elegant, pre-homeroom, candlelight breakfasts he hosted for a time one year in C-222.

There were days when he seemed to have stepped from the pages of a Fitzgerald story, full of heroic promise and a kind of sorrow-edged joy.

With his Gone - with - the - Wind chivalry and his Huck Finn-boyishness, Howard Boulden was a daily reminder to all that, indeed, “living well is the best revenge.”

“Finally, the day is over.” Herr Moehlman and Dr. Rollin joke around after school.

ICH BIN EIN BERLINER

It’s true that the majority of East students take either Spanish or Latin for their foreign language requirement. However, our curriculum offers other options, too. German is one course offered at East that deserves not to be overlooked.

Offered in both A and Honors ability levels, all four years of German are taught by Herr Moehlmann. This year, only six students enrolled in German IV Honors, so the board made an interesting decision. Instead of keeping one class that would be so very tiny, they combined it with third year German in a much larger group. Usually, level IV worked together on German literature while Herr Moehlmann taught level III. Then German III completed assignments while the teacher worked with level IV. “It is slightly confusing,” said Ellen Nees, “but it works.”

One of the most exciting parts of the curriculum of the German classes at East is its exchange program. Every other year, students are given the opportunity to spend three August weeks in Germany. German students, in turn, come stay with East student hosts during the school year. This is certainly a wonderful experience, along with being one of the best ways to learn about another language and culture.

German students, like all other language students at East, are given one additional opportunity. For six weeks, most Cherry Hill elementary schools provide an after-school language enrichment program for which upper-level students are asked to volunteer. This activity is well received by both the student teachers and the children who choose to participate.

If French is your amour or espagnol se encanta, then that’s your choice, but if they’re not . . . don’t forget about German. Danke schön!!
Suzanne Fox asks Mr. Finkbiner that important mathematical question: "Why?"
MATH LEAGUE

Math League?! Not too many students are aware that just as there are Chemistry Leagues, Biology Leagues, and Physics Leagues, there is also a Math League at East.

The tests, which are usually made up of six questions, are conducted once a month and last only thirty minutes each. After the test, the New Jersey Mathematics League, which creates the tests, organizes the scores. At the end of the season, those students who have continually done well on each test compete with each other on a final state level test.

Math teachers who run the program at East are proud of the students who make the effort to take the test. Also, they are very happy with East's continual success each year from students who score high in both the school and state level tests.

THE BEST OF THE BEST

Conant Kuo explains the simple laws of thermodynamics to Mr. Berryann.

The Trials
Each participant survived an intense selection process supervised by the advisors: Mr. Paul Siler, Mr. Glenn Berryann, Mr. Philip Gordon, and Mr. Anthony Robino. This process was designed to select "the best of the best," for these students would shoulder the responsibility of continuing Cherry Hill East's winning record. In the end, the "trials" yielded six teams (Chemistry I and II, Biology I and II, and Physics I and II) comprised of four students each. These students then underwent rigorous preparation after school, as well as individual studying at home, to prepare for the final event.

"Let the Games Begin!"
At the competition site, each student received a timed, multiple choice test. As the students whipped out their calculators and razor-sharp #2 pencils, they felt the pressure, for they not only competed for the team, but individually as well. Only the top two scores would be submitted for the team competition, but all the individual scores counted in the individual competition.

The Agony of Defeat
"There were questions on the back??!!!"

"I couldn't take the pressure. I filled in "A" for all eighty questions!"

After the mentally drained students were given donuts and punch to restore their energies, they returned home to their families. It had been a tiring day, but they could rest until the next set of tests. The tests would finally end in April, eventually showing that once again, East students and their advisors ranked at the top.

After a grueling lab, Achilles Alon and Jon Pecarsky decide to relax with a quick arm wrestling match. Elie Honig waits to take on the winner.

In a rare moment of free time, Mr. Berryann informally chats with members of his physics class.
SELLING SPIRIT

One of the most overlooked activities is Cherry Hill East's School Store. Yet, it is a major contributor to the school spirit by selling quality East merchandise. The Student Store sells not only East clothing, but also college shirts, pennants, stationary, and candy. Run by the marketing education students and supervised by Mr. Charles Martine, this store is open lunch periods and before school. For the last few years, the School Store had been fighting a lack of business due to low students interest. However, many improvements were made. Now, the School Store is a thriving enterprise that fully serves the East community.

ALL SOUTH JERSEY

Along with our other accomplishments, East is exceptionally noted for our strong musical talents. We participate in many programs for the musically inclined, of which one of the most prestigious is the All South Jersey. Made up of two hands: the wind ensemble and the symphonic band, an orchestra, and a chorus, this consortium is made up of some of the finest musicians in the area.

Auditions for All South Jersey began in early December. The judges took three skills into account: solo, scales, and sight-reading. The musicians with the highest scores were therefore placed in the highest chair, which is something to be very proud of. After the places were decided, the members began their three rehearsals. These would take place over three weekends for up to eight hours a day before the concert. Chris Villar, a member of the chorus, said, “South Jersey was an experience that will be with me forever. Though it was long and hard work, I'll never forget it and all the new people I met there.”

PICTURE it in a FRAME

Photography class, whether it be introductory, intermediate or advanced, is not just a class dealing solely with the technical processes of picture-taking and developing black and white photos. It is also "a class on life where the students learn to make choices and solve problems to reach an ultimate goal," said Mrs. Barbara Hopp, the introductory and intermediate photography teacher. Mr. Edward Frascella also teaches these two levels of courses in addition to advanced photography. In these one-to-one teacher-student environments, students concentrate on the fundamentals of photography as they create the printed art form. They are also given the freedom to listen to WMMR, eat and talk to friends as they discover that they are learning, accomplishing and tasting success. Both instructors thoroughly prepare students for either further study, for improved vacation photographs, and, of course, for real life.

DRAWING YOUR OWN CONCLUSIONS

Sitting in a boring class, you pick up your pen. Before you even realize it and after your teacher does, a few caricatures, stars, and squiggly lines decorate your notebook. However, there is a class where the teacher will be pleased if you were to doodle. Instead, Mr. George Jackson would encourage you to draw. This class is commercial art. Not only do you get to show your great artistic abilities, but you also learn the different techniques to illustrate a message, such as palindromes, postage stamps, action word and letter form progression and self-promotion. Finally, art is not longer stuffy paintings in a museum. Now, there are practical outlets in this world for art. Maybe, you will even train to draw for Disney, a long way from simple classroom doodles.
A WHOLE NEW WORLD

Many students who returned to school after this summer were pleasantly surprised by the new and improved Cherry Hill East Library.

"It is a major step forward for East. We have struggled to get the system for years. It opens a whole new world for us," said Miss Peggy Beck, the Media department Chairperson.

Beck is referring to the automated card catalog, which allows students faster access to the library's collection of books, magazines, and other items and also enables students and teachers to complete different types of searches than they were able to before, with just an ordinary card catalog.

With the help from such programs as PROQUEST, WILSON DISC, INFOTRAC, and SOJOURN, East students and faculty can locate and borrow materials they need directly from outside libraries in the United States.

All books have also been barcoded to check in and out with a scanner, making the process quicker and more convenient. Mrs. Rothman, the library secretary who helped institute many of these changes, spoke for many when she said, "It is a plus for our school system and a big plus for our students also. This is the future and we are fortunate to have it."

Technological Advancements: Anita Ricci uses the new computerized card catalog to research for much needed information.
OUT OF THE WOODS

A recent addition to the grounds of East has been wooden trash bins. These simple, yet much-needed bins were made by the students in woodshop. In this class, which is taught by Robert Foster, students study project design, tools and machinery usage, construction, techniques and finishing. Combining their craftsmanship with science and mathematics, these students complete complex projects such as the trash bins. In Advanced Woods, wood construction is taken a step further. There, students produce small pieces of furniture with drawers and doors. After this apprenticeship, these students will have learned a life-long craft.

BEAUTY AND THE BEST

Cosmetology is a unique and exacting course that deals with all aspects of beauty culture. Under Mr. Ralph Ipri's 23 years of experience, up and coming beauticians take this four period, twenty credit course, culminating in a state administered test. Those who successfully pass this test are then licensed to practice in the state of New Jersey.

Cosmetology students also have the unique opportunity to practice their abilities by working directly with the public. Senior citizens, East staff, and students are encouraged to come to the East Salon and take advantage of this service.

By learning to mix art with talent and knowledge, the Cosmetology student experiences a total learning and working experience, something most other classes cannot offer.

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT

The Guidance Department directs all students through their four years at East. From Freshman year until Graduation Day, Guidance Counselors provide academic, vocational, and personal advice while also designing personal schedules for each school year. Assisting with course selections, these counselors tailor each course load to fit the capabilities and interests of each individual student. Over the four years, counselors learn each of their student's thresholds for challenge and opportunities for academic growth. The department also aids upperclassmen in planning and applying for college. The counselors sponsor Higher Education Nights and visits from admissions representatives and recruiting officers. The Cherry Hill High School East Guidance Department plays an important role in our high educational goals and helping get established in jobs for those of us that do not go on to college.

A CLASS THAT CARES

Traditions are a vital part of the great heritage of Cherry Hill High School East. One such example is the "Holiday Party" given by Dr. John Vivone's senior English classes for underprivileged preschoolers from the Camden area. Preparations actually begin in September as students form various committees to handle the decorations, gifts, food, and the entertainment. This year, the celebration took place on December 16 where 25 two through four-year-old tots were entertained with music, games, plenty of food and, naturally, a visit by Santa and Mrs. Claus. It took 12 seniors to carry all the toys for the children. These senior classes provided the generous gifts; they also presented each child with a bag of delicious goodies. The Teachers' Cafeteria, transformed into "Santa's Workshop," was filled with laughter, fun, and genuine love. Although the youngsters left the party, loaded with gifts and treats, it was the seniors who received the greatest gift of all that afternoon.

After receiving her present from Santa Claus, the small guest shyly smiles in the arms of Jessica Lightman.

“Look at my bbhiigg muscles,” says one of the preschoolers as he tries to impress Aalok Mehta.

Bragging Rights!

Many of our talented music students achieved great success in activities outside of school. For example, violinist James Yang was named an alternate to the All National Orchestra. James and Joanna Chang, James Huang, and Monica Kim also performed with the Philadelphia Youth Orchestra. The Glassboro Youth Orchestra included East student Stephen Kuo, while the Tanglewood Institute was honored to have East’s principal cellist, Joanna Chang, as a student. However, East students excelled not only in regional orchestras but in regional choirs as well. Laurie Knobler became All State Chorus Section Leader and a Finalist for the Governor’s Award for Excellence in Vocal Music. Courtney Ames, Alto Section Leader of East Singers, joined Wendy Huang, East’s principal flutist, and Sara Braslow, East’s tap star, at the NJ Governor’s School in the Arts in the summer of 1992. East’s musicians certainly hit the top in 1992-1993!

Music Dept. Rock Band?!

When many people think of the music department, they often picture only serious, classically trained musicians who wouldn’t dream of tuning into 94.1 FM. So many were surprised when, for the ’93 revival of Godspell, the official Music Department Rock Band was born. Jamming on stage for the January rock musical were Suzy Rice, a professional, on piano; and East students Evan Weiner and Michael Sweeney on synthesizer; John Mendoza on guitar; and Craig Bizokas on drums. The five worked together for two weeks before the show to coordinate cues from two 8-foot-high platforms set on opposite sides of the stage. By performance time, though, their timing was flawless. By all accounts, the Music Department Rock Band sounded so professional it could have made it on Broadway!

A-Z Perfs

The Mads and Belles have performed at several prestigious events. Both performed at the NJ Governor’s Awards in Trenton. Also, in 1990 the Mads performed with the Philadelphia Orchestra at the Academy of Music; in 1991 the Belles performed at the nationally-televised parade for Jeffrey Zun.

Carnegie Hall

In 1992 four East students participated in the performance of a lifetime. On April 19, senior Eric Braverman and graduates Lee Goldstein, Lee Rosen, and Heath Weisberg sang in Carnegie Hall in New York City in a special invitational choir directed by modern composer John Rutter.

Dynasty

East is very proud to have hosted all three members of the talented Huang family in 1992-1993. First, graduating senior Wendy Huang has been accompanist to East Singers for three years and East’s principal flutist for over three years. Next, brother James is presently concertmaster of Orchestra, as well as concertmaster of both all South Jersey and All State Orchestras. Finally, 10-year-old Helen performed in a special solo piano concert at East on December 18. Helen has played with such renowned groups as the Philadelphia Orchestra, the NY Philharmonic Orchestra, and the Israeli Chamber Orchestra.

The Cool World

Jazz Ensemble
The musicians calmly walk on to the stage in their concert black, ready to give the best performance possible. They have practiced this music for months, perfecting not just the melody and the rhythm, but the intonation and the emotion as well. But the effort began long before the past few months. They have played these instruments for years, beginning with "Mary Had a Little Lamb" and "Ode to Joy" like everyone else. Practicing their instruments and surviving years of auditions, they earned their spots in Wind Ensemble and in this performance. Now they play such contrasting masterpieces as the dissonant "Pagan Dances" by James Barnes and the Overture to "The Barber of Seville" by Gioacchino Rossini. Waiting for Mr. Yurko's entrance, the students take their seats with grace. This performance is the goal and the expression of their musical achievement.

It was a magical night to remember!
FEBRUARY 2, 1993

Senior Soloists
It's trip time! The Music Department's annual adjudication trip is the crowning event of the music season. Each year, the Music Department's elite groups, like the Wind Ensemble, Orchestra, East Singers, Belles, and Madrigals, travel somewhere out of state to compete against other high schools to show off the fruit of a year's work. During our four years at East, the Music Department has traveled to Boston, Charleston, Richmond, and Toronto. However, these modest destinations were not our original venues. For example, in 1990-1991, the Music Department was invited to participate in the Spoleto Festival in Rome, Italy. The next year, our music groups were specially selected to perform at the American Pavilion in the 1992 World's Fair in Seville, Spain. Finally, in 1992-1993 the Music Department was asked to perform in Disneyland in Orlando, Florida. Yet, whatever the destination, our groups always have a wonderful time. The itineraries are painstakingly prepared by our teachers; the adjudications are successfully presented by our students. In 1991-1992, every single East group won a superior rating and at least one award. Four of those groups then swept the overall division awards: the Wind Ensemble (Best Overall Band), the Orchestra (Best Overall Orchestra), the Madrigal Singers (Best Overall Choir), and the Marching Band (Esprit de Corps). The months of endless Music Booster fundraising were worth it. We came, we saw, we conquered - and we had a great time with our friends, too.
Early in September, eight guys from Colgate University performed on East's stage for the students. These guys had great moves and greater music. CDs were available after their concert, but if you missed out you'll have to head for northern New York.

T.G.I.F. nights occurred periodically throughout the school year. Students took part in ping-pong, volleyball, and indoor soccer. In addition, there was live music during the activities.

All year long students were able to purchase balloons from the SGA. Balloons could be purchased in groups of three, five, eight, & twelve. Everyone enjoyed surprising their friends on their birthdays.

The Pep Rally dance before Homecoming served two purposes: it stirred up school spirit and it raised money for Hurricane Andrew victims. Those who attended danced the evening away.

On November 25, 1992, the class of 1993 hosted a senior "Then & Now" get together for the classes of 1991 and 1992. Food was served and the evening was enjoyable for all who attended.

18 yr. old voter registration occurred on February 25, 1993, from 9:00am - 1:00pm. All students 18 yrs. took part in the national event.

On Halloween Day, the Thespian Society presented a Haunted House in the East Auditorium. The actors and actresses entertained Cherry Hill's children with a maze, costumed monsters, a phantom, and various special effects. Later that evening, the Thespian Society threw a Halloween bash. The party got underway at 7:30 and continued into the night. Everyone came wearing costumes.

Valentine's Day hearts went on sale on February 8 and were sold throughout the week. Students could express their feelings to friends or loved ones for only twenty-five cents. The paper hearts covered the entire area around communications in a layer of red.
ACTIVITIES
On October 18, 1992, the ground shook once again at the annual Powder Puff game. Exciting plays and an emotional touchdown made the day heart-stopping for all who attended. From the very first play, the action was nonstop...

Heather Grubb (94) leaps above the multitudes to make a phenomenal interception.

Amanda Lithgo (94) takes the pitch back from Kris Snell (94) and proceeds to cut down the right side of the field.

Alexis Florio (94) strides down the field as Jen Sturtz (94) follows laterally to block.

Becky Makris (93) bulldozes through the defensive line as Jen Radano (93) crashes over Jessica Wallner (94).

Chrissy Regan (94) cruises to a halt with the seniors chasing close behind.
Heather Blackman (94) tries desperately to avoid the tag from defensive lineman Virginia Tucker. (93)

Sara Braslow (93) punts down the field as cornerback Elena Sacca (94) looks on.

“Mass Confusion” ensues as Chrisanne Dagit (93) checks the play action.

Robyn Rosenbloom (93) tries to slip by as Carolyn Maher (94) charges in for the tag.

Holly Weiner (94) and Elena Sacca (94) lead the march off the field after an exhilarating first half.

The Senior Team poses for a victory shot after their startling 6-0 win!!

Craig Brody (93) hoists Susan Beany (93) on his shoulders ending an exciting game.

POWDER PUFF FOOTBALL
The Spirit Week competition began with the annual dance that brought the seniors an early lead in the showdown of the classes. With contests ranging from a Hula-Hoop chain to milk-drinking to fast-paced musical chairs, the combatants brought glory to their respective classes. In addition, there were evening events for Tug-of-War and an action-packed volleyball match. By the time of the Pep Rally, the Juniors had inched ahead of the seniors, barely holding onto the slim edge. The seniors had taken top honors with their class booth, but it was the Sophomores and Juniors who tied for

- Pam Clarke ('95) awaits a new customer at the Sophomore Spirit Week Booth. Their idea, which was a good old-fashioned football toss, won their class 800 points in the competition.

- Elaine Cruz ('93) gets into the spirit of things by displaying a cougar paw print on her cheek.

- Moving to the music, Suzanne Bechard tries to gain a victory for her class in the Musical Chairs contest.

- Brian Paul ('93) opens a new shipment of candy in anticipation of other students trying their luck on the “Summer of '93 Wheel of Fortune.” Apparently, luck was with the Seniors, since they won the event and were awarded 1000 points.

- Ticket sales from the class booths went to benefit the respective classes. Here, Ed DiMarzio antes his money to try one of the games during his lunch period.

first place with the rope jumping contest. Eventually, the juniors pulled ahead strongly with their entry float at Homecoming. In the final tally, the clash of the classes ended with the juniors in first place, the seniors following in second, the Sophomores placing third and the freshman class placing last.
Liz Braverman ('95), Farrah Chu ('95) and A.J. Heffernan ('96), strut their stuff during the Cougarette dance routine. The fast-paced music and dynamite moves made the Cougarettes a highlight of the pep rally.

Ms. Schooley gets caught in the middle of some very excited players after the field hockey team's appearance. All of the teams that were featured at the pep rally showed East spirit and pride.

The rifles and flags of the color guard made for a fabulous show.

The football team roughs up the Cougar, A.K.A. Bill Sample, filling everyone with a sense of spirit and fun.

Mike Mansour ('93) hopes for some support in his attempt to begin a wave. Mike was one of the many seniors that attended to lend strength to the class participation.

The Color Guard marches onto the floor for their performance.

East's football team ends their presentation with the traditional "pile-up."

Joanne Kobylniski ('93), Lori Silverman ('93) and Sue Wright ('93) help to spread their enthusiasm to the entire school.
The Junior class leaps for the win in the jump rope competition. Eventually, they got 11 people jumping at once, but their feat was equaled by the Sophomores.

Helen Jen ('96), Rebecca Johnson ('96), and Greg Maisel ('93) help set the beat at the pep rally.

A.J. Salvatore ('93) reads the football team's season highlights as the rest of the players look on. Unfortunately, the Cougars went on to suffer a tough loss to West.

Karen Oetting ('96) and Liz Braverman ('96) move to the rhythm with their fellow Cougarettes.

More musical entertainment was provided by the Battle of the Bands' champions, The Organ Grinders. Their hard-core instrumentals made the afternoon interesting, to say the least.

The Seniors go wild during their class' jump rope event. The letters "E" and "N" are visible, but they are only part of the larger "SENIOR".

Eric Finch ('94) stares into the camera as Mike Sweeney ('94) plays mellow tunes on his saxophone.

Gayle Horvitz ('93) and Nicole Weinberg ('93) take a much needed rest after the weeklong events.
Rain ... Mud ... Defeat ...
It was not one of Cherry Hill's most beautiful days, nor was it one of the football team's most triumphant days. In any case, it was a day to remember. Fans and football players alike spent Thanksgiving Day at the rainy, muddy 1992 Homecoming Game against Cherry Hill West.
Before the game even started, those involved with the class floats had to deal with smeared paint. Students of the senior class, whose theme was summer, watched as their imported sand turned to mud. Nevertheless, they drew more humor from the situation than they did disappointment. The weather was so rotten that the homecoming floats had to go around the field before the game instead of during halftime. Seniors listened with some degree of shame as Mr. Belchikoff announced that the Juniors had won Spirit Week. When the game finally started, fans gathered in the stands with umbrellas. They slowly watched the unexpected unfold before them. East was losing to West. And yet it just didn't matter. The college kids still came to pay their regards. The weather did not stop people from having fun. All in all, the day was more enjoyable than anyone had expected.

The Senior Class float shows an interesting beach scene, complete with a Senior Arcade, Deluca's Pizza, and a lifeguard stand that's a bit too large for the float.

"Young Woman of the Year," Tricia Relloso ('93), was all smiles as she cruised past the fans with her escort, Pierre Kattar ('93).

Bo Wood, East's football coach, gazes out to the field as the team's season comes to a close.

Hanging out in a stand near the playing field, the marching band takes a break after their great performance.
James Francesconi ('93) tucks the ball, puts his head down, and crashes through West's defense.

Leaping over a West player, James Francesconi ('93) charges ahead on the field.

With their dynamite moves and great spirit, the cheerleaders got the crowd cheering.

Gayle Beaney ('94) and Jessica Feinhals ('94) pretend to be skiing in the Sophomore class skit.

Watching stoically from the sidelines, Jon Schirmer ('94) follows the action.

Ben Steinberg ('94) sends the ball spiralling up the field to an awaiting teammate.

Surrounded by fallen West players, AJ Salvatore ('93) helps the referee make the call.

Eyeball so running down his face, Aaron Gola ('94) stares at the game's progress.
Have you ever had a Friday night with nothing to do? If October 23rd was one of those nights, you should have come to East's Battle of the Bands. This is the night when student bands have a chance to display their talents. This year there were six bands performing with a special added attraction, an appearance by Mr. Mark Steele, a history teacher and yearbook business advisor. The bands played a variety of music, ranging from U2 to Metallica, including songs from Guns 'N Roses and the Red Hot Chili Peppers. Each band had four to seven members but the sound belied that fact. They generally performed with a lead vocalist who knew how to please the crowd.

The band Organ Grinders won first place, Immigration won second and Standing Tall came in a very close third. Other performing bands included T.F. Cheeks, Grissle and Kings & Queens. The three judges were from Rat's Nest Rehearsal Studio.

Stage presence, appearance and originality, combined with vocal and instrumental ability were the criteria for winning.
Craig Bizokas ('93) rocks the songs while buried behind his drums.

- Phil Hough ('94), Rich McMullen, and Ron Hyatt ('94) keep the night movin' with their band, Standing Tall.

"Piano girl" Marlena Carlis ('93) lets her music do the talking for her.

Participating in this SGA sponsored event consists of more than just signing up. The bands audition for the SGA representatives who determine their eligibility based on the type of music they play and the professionalism of their stage presence.

After countless hours of rehearsal their night arrives. A dream is finally realized, playing before a packed house. It's important that the band and the audience both have a great time and when a band generates enough enthusiasm to bring the audience to its feet and literally dances in the aisles, one could claim success. The Battle of the Bands is a popular school event, looked forward to from year to year, and no wonder - it is the musicians of tomorrow performing today!

- Elden Santos ('94) plays a hard-hitting set of drums.

- Special guest-star, Mr. Steele, lets the crowd know that he still has what it takes.

- Steve Rosenman ('94) bears a look of intense concentration as he pounds the drums along with T.F. Cheeks.

- Chris Mohan ('93) strums his guitar as Craig Brody ('93) accompanies on the tambourine.

- Bill Cogal and John Mendoza ('95) thrash together with hard-rocking band, Grissle.
- Melissa Paul ('93) shares a laugh with Beth Morowitz ('93) as Beth relaxes on the cot.

- Meredith Belafsky ('94) assists Dom Canuso ('93) in completing his medical history.

- The nurse prepares to take Lilah Fenster's ('92) blood pressure before she donates.

- Rachel Sumerson ('93) smiles bravely as she prepares to give.

- Eric Salzman ('93) helps Jen Bikel ('93) fill out her questionnaire.

- Joe Steelman ('93) talks with the Red Cross nurse after giving blood.

- Samra Lee ('93) answers the medical questions carefully.

- A.D. Berger-Ettenson ('93) seems lost in thought.

- Jen Bikel ('93) and Pat Thomas ('93) rest up after giving blood.

- Congratulations to the chairpeople and Mr. Belchikoff on a job well done!
Nothing is more at the heart of East than the Blood Drive. A three day operation held twice each year, the Blood Drive gives students who are seventeen or older a chance to help other people. Every pint of blood donated helps save five lives.

The entire process of donating blood is actually a quick and easy thing to do. After signing the forms, the student enters the Dance Gym, where the Drive takes place. There the student fills out a medical questionnaire. The donor then discusses questions with a Red Cross nurse. If everything is in order, the student is then ready to give. After donating, the student can relax at the canteen with some juice and donuts. After resting for about ten minutes, the student can return to class feeling better about themselves and what they’ve done.

Three Ways To Change Your View

Clear-cutting was one way of clearing timber that the environmentalists wanted to eliminate in 1992 and 1993. Environmental groups want to protect the prime sanctuary for many threatened species.

The Environmental Protection Agency issued rules aimed at curbing industrial air pollution. The new rules outlined when businesses must obtain state pollution control permits under the Clean Air Act. Environmental groups, such as the Sierra Club, lead the charge against polluters. The Clean Air Act requires businesses to meet new clean air requirements by reducing toxic emissions and releases that contribute to smog. Under the rule states issue pollution control permits and the EPA monitors state programs to make certain they comply with federal rules.

America needs to recycle. And America also needs to use recycled products. Recycling has produced vast supplies of paper, glass and other reusable trash, but not enough demand. A business alliance for the National Recycling Coalition is campaigning to encourage small and large business to commit themselves to buy recycle products.

During Recycle and Conservation Awareness Week, the Friends of the Environment painted many posters and signs to get other students interested in recycling and protecting the environment.
Most kids today think that there isn’t really much they can do for their environment, so they just forget about it and go on with their lives.

But, here at East, many enlightened students are doing all they can to promote environmental awareness in our community.

Four years ago, East proudly became one of the few high schools in New Jersey to recycle paper, soda cans, and polystyrene trays. Since then, students have intensified their efforts in environmental protection and conservation.

Recycling and Conservation Week, which was held the week of January 25 to January 29, is one of the most important events for our environmentally conscious students. During this week, they organized committees to spread awareness of environmental problems and inform students about what exactly they could do to help solve these problems.

Another important environmental project that a number of East students undertook this year was the fifth grade Project Earth Program. In March, about forty students went to various Cherry Hill elementary schools and increased awareness in their young minds through brief, informative skits and games.

On an individual scale, many students write letters to state and federal legislators for the creation and enforcement of stricter laws, which would help our ailing planet. In their homes, they also refrain from buying products, such as styrofoam, which are not bio-degradable.

In these ways, East students are trying to do their share in contributing to the vital and worthwhile cause of saving our environment. If everyone works together, as these students have, the Earth will soon become a much safer and cleaner place to live, in years to come.

Courtney Ames ('93) attempts to seduce Eric Braverman ('93) during “Turn Back, O Man”.

Eric Braverman ('93) looks on as Ryan Nation ('93) looks for an alternative to betrayal.

The entire cast assembles for Laurie Knobler's ('94) rendition of “All Good Gifts”.

Rebecca Fried ('93) poses at the end of her song, “Learn Your Lessons Well”, as Eric Braverman ('93) gazes up at her.

The entire cast of “Godspell” poses for a picture after performing “We Beseech Thee”.

The cast forms a pyramid storehouse upon completing the “Rich Man” skit.
The male half of the cast sings their part of the song “Bless the Lord”, which delighted audiences at every show.

Eric Braverman ('93), Ryan Nation ('93), and the entire cast pose at the end of the entertaining song, “All For The Best”.

Joanna Grey ('94) and Eric Braverman ('93) smile triumphantly at the success of her song, “Bless the Lord”.

The cast gathers in exultation during the climax of “We Beseech Thee”.

The cast looks on as Joanna Grey ('94) begs Jennifer Lipsius ('93) to free her from eternal torment.

Godspell is a jubilant celebration! From the first moment of my initial encounter with this high energy rock musical, I was thoroughly captivated and left the theatre back in the early '70's with a most joyous sense of life. It was a release of one's spirit into the larger heart of mankind. The message was simple: find love and joy in the hearts of people rather than hate and sadness.

The vehicle is a series of Biblical stories combined with every theatrical device, including pantomime, children’s games, charades, puppetry, vaudeville antics, the question-answer technique of minstrel shows, and a large variety of dance steps. The songs and lyrics blend every style, from folk to ballad, and from pop/rock to musical comedy. But the secret ingredient to its continued success has been the energy and enthusiasm of each and every performer who has had the privilege to participate in it.

There is a bonding which occurs within each company of Godspell which is magical and which I have yet to see in any other show. The piece brings out the very best effort of all involved and an intensity of emotion which is unparalleled.

Rick Grossman ('93) of the group, G’N’R impersonates Axl Rose while the group plays “You Could Be Mine”.

Heather Grubb ('94) and her father, Mr. David Grubb, recreate scenes from the 1950s movie, Grease.

The Senior Guys gather on stage for a medley of various rap songs.

The Mackmamas finish up their rendition of En Vogue’s “Free Your Mind”.

Kerri Barber ('93) and Kerry Bunting ('93) lead the dancing for their group, Single-By Choice.

The ever popular Lip Sync show was an amazing success again for the Student Government this year. Veteran Chairperson of the Lip Sync, Ari Cohen, helped the SGA Executive Committee for the second year in a row to organize and plan the event that East students look forward to each year. There was a great variety of acts in the show this year. There were some hard rock groups such as “Antedote” and “G’N’R”; some rap and dance groups such as the “Mack Momma’s,” “Single-By-Choice,” and “PNP”; and some groups that synced to pop tunes like the “Six Tops,” “Hawaii 5-0,” and “The Paula Abdul Finale.” But the one group that electrified the capacity crowd the most was the winner of the Lip Sync competition, “Aphrodiasic.” This act featured Aalok Mehta, Craig Brody, Paul Rizzi, Dan Altamirano, Chris Millan, Adam Horowitz, Achilles Alon, Craig Lipkowitz, and Jay Bardwaj. Each of these seniors was sporting an afro wig and bell bottoms, impersonating a member of the “Jackson 5.” Finishing in second place behind them was the “Grease Medley,” which featured Lauren Wolkoff, Jen Slater, Amanda Lithgo, Joanna Braut, Heather Grubb, and Mr. David Grubb. There is no doubt that this year’s Lip Sync will be remembered as one of the best nights of entertainment at East during 1993.

Adam Lefkowitz ('93) and Anne-Marie Paparella ('93) perform together with Antedote.
With their slick moves and high afros, the guys in Aphrodisiac move to the tunes of the Jackson Five.

Led by John Albright ('94), the Junior Guys flex for the crowd.

Performing in full tropical get-up, the group Hawaii Five-O seem to be having a great time.

Danielle Nottingham ('93) and Donyelle Pulliams lip sync to TLC's "What About Your Friends".

Becki Schnoll ('93) as Paula Abdul dances to a medley of songs with Chris Keleher ('93) and Lou Regan ('93) in the background.

Gil Light ('93) and Warren Lesack ('93) dance together with their act, The Six Tops.
A TOUCH OF EVERYTHING

- Michael Jen ('93) and James Huang ('94) entertain the crowd with their unique yo-yo tricks.
- While introducing the next act, Vini Malhotra ('93), Gayle Horvitz ('93), and Lindsey Lichtman ('94) model their tuxedos.
- Craig Lipkowitz ('93) and Alok Mehta ('93) act out their rendition of "Men on Sports."
- The talented group, Hungry Jack Blue, consisting of seniors, Nancy Lee, Eileen Cabalo, and Nikki Tavakolian, perform "Closer to Fine."

- Mike Sweeney ('94) seems incredibly intense as he moves the audience with his sweet-sounding jazz.
- The lovely voices of Jen Ellis ('95), Heather Brown ('94), and Nicole Nader combined to sing Wilson Phillip's "Hold On."
- Phil Hough ('94) executes a superb "funky chicken" on his bike.
- Will Abrams ('94) is shown here halflashing on his freestyle bike.
- Mital Sheth ('93) and Ami Shah ('95) mystify the crowd with their dance, "Tirchi Topi Walay."
- Henry Oh ('93) and Anthony D'Alessandro ('93) sing together on "I'll Be There."
- Danielle Zucker ('93) sings and dances together with her group, Just Us.
- Mike Furman ('93), Scott Rosenberg ('93), and Ryan Brown ('93) act out a popular skit from Saturday Night Live.
- Seniors Kathy Comperatore, Rebecca Makris, Jen Radano, and Alicia Ahrens sing "Love Will Come To You" with backup guitarists Chris Millan and Pierre Kattar.
Once upon a time, in the far-off land of the East, a band of merry thespians began a strange journey. Calling themselves “Cinderella,” “Little Red Riding Hood,” “Jack” (of Beanstalk fame), “Witch,” and a Baker and his wife, they ventured INTO THE WOODS for six magical nights in March. Each one had a different wish to fulfill and although along the way they encountered wolves, spells, charming-but-not-sincere-princes and terrible giants, they all returned home safe and satisfied. Or so they thought.

For who should appear to menace their new found happiness but a fierce lady giant ready to avenge the death of her giant husband. Faced with the dread of the situation, our merry band set off on a different type of adventure. This journey was not into the fantasy land that they had visited before, where everything could be separated into black and white and where good always triumphed over evil. Some paid for their greed, some broke their sacred marriage vows, some lost the dream. Some were even killed along the way. Only in learning that they needed to work together to confront the evil in their midst, did they manage to return home to live happily ever after.

INTO THE WOODS was a magical experience for all. Less than a year after its Broadway closing, the East thespians and support people had the unique challenge to reproduce a rollicking theatre success story. But it was more than that for the seniors. It was their last journey together.
Behind the Curtain

The witch, played by Courtney Ames, explains her evil plans to Rapunzel, played by Debbie Kruse, in "Stay With Me."

Sarah Berg, playing the stepmother, condescends to Kathy Comperatore, who is playing Cinderella.

The wolf, Ryan Wolfson, pleads with Little Red Riding Hood, Laurie Knobler.

Mr. Nation and Tama Dichter, the stage manager, review one of the scenes together.

Risa Sang-Urai and Jennifer Magee act out the woodland creature dance.
Dana Maslekoff and Heather Morrison complete the construction of one of the trees.

Courtney Ames and Eric Braverman study harmonies for the song, "Your Fault."

Laurie Knobler, Pierre Kattar, Ryan Wolfson, and Kuntal Naik practice "First Midnight."

Amy Pierce takes Jason Lynch's measurements for a costume.

Shelby Adams supervises the construction of one of the houses.

Sid Greenfeig and Matt Sheby build a flat for the set.

Andrew Rosenfeld shows his skill with the band saw.

The cast and crew clear the stage to begin rehearsal.

On March 1, 1993, the Westmont Theatre invited the East thespian troupe to perform GODSPELL on their stage. On April 16, the East actors appeared on a professional stage for the first time.
Students Against Drunk Driving, a nationwide organization dedicated to preventing students from drinking and driving, has hosted two speakers this year. Dickie Noles, a recovering alcoholic from Cherry Hill, spoke about his own horrors with drinking and driving and Kathy Leopold, a registered nurse, related her experiences of working in a local hospital’s trauma center.

Amnesty International is an organization dedicated to the preservation of HUMAN RIGHTS the world over. Torture, killings and imprisonments are just some of the ways governments abuse their own people. This club works to increase our awareness of all these injustices. Amnesty International takes no sides in any dispute but tries to report the facts so the wrongs can be corrected. This year members of Amnesty International attended the National Convention in Boston.

Fundraising plays a very important role in all of the clubs. Without a treasury, these clubs would cease to function; therefore, all of these clubs at East make an effort to raise money. Some choose to sell pretzels after school, while others sell pizza. The bake sale has also gained popularity this past year, with Spanish Club and Interact Club selling homemade chocolate chip cookies and brownies.

Other organizations find their own unique ways to raise money. Yearbook sponsored a circus and a miniature show, in addition to their indispensable candy store. Amnesty International held their benefit concert in which Mr. Steele and Mr. Cole played some of their favorite songs.

Student Government Association held their annual events, Lip Sync, Battle of the Bands, Mr. East, and Variety Show, to raise the money that allows East students to run many of their activities.

The rivalry between East and West is slowly disappearing. East’s SGA and West’s Student Government Organization worked together for the first time ever this year, with West judging East’s Lip Sync show. Also, the two organizations worked together planning a senior citizens prom for fall of 1993.

It is the year 4691 and the year of the Rooster. To help ring in the Chinese New Year, the Asian Cultural Society and Korean Culture Club treated the faculty and staff of East to a delicious banquet of Asian foods that the students cooked themselves.

The awards that East has won reflect its excellent reputation: EIDOLON 1992 (the yearbook) carried a first place from American Scholastic Press for the fifth straight year, making this one of the top fifteen publications nationally.

Eastside, the school newspaper, boasts awards from the Garden State Press Association, Temple University Press Tournament, American Scholastic Press Association, International Quill and Scroll Society, and this year, Eastside was awarded the much coveted George H. Gallup Award.

East’s Foreign Language Literary Society was awarded the “International Second Place Award for Substantial Achievement” by the Quill and Scroll Society for High School Journalists. They also received a letter form Former President Bush who congratulated the group for their efforts, encouraging its members “to keep up the good work.”

CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS
In the September 1992 issue of "Philadelphia Magazine," H. Michael Rovner kindly reconfirmed in Ben Yagoda's article on local schools what we at East already know. Cherry Hill East is one of the most superior public high schools in the country. The author of this article enrolled in East in 1987, where he was immediately overwhelmed by all we have to offer. Not a great student or one to become easily involved, Rovner claims to have had problems at first finding a place for himself. However, even he found his niche in SADD, an issue which he cared "passionately" about. Although not every East student would agree with all of his views, he still made the point that we excel in our academics, our extracurricular activities, and our overall standards. Thanks, Mr. Rovner. We try.

Ohio State, South Jersey-Style

In 1987, I moved to Cherry Hill and enrolled in East. Unlike most of my 2,400 schoolmates—all of whom seemed to drive BMWs—I had yet to come into my own at age 15. I certainly wasn’t interested in my studies. The other option was to get involved, like everybody else. But which of the 90 student-run organizations should I choose?

The trouble was, my counterparts were not a bunch of high school kids. They were Aryan supermen. You didn’t just join the tennis team; you became nationally ranked. Students from East were handpicked to perform at the Academy of Music and Avery Fisher Hall. I was working at not missing my bus in the morning.

I found the less competitive organizations wanting, too. The student newspaper had too many members (about 150, the same as the football team). I rejected inexplicable crowd-pleasers like Adopt-A-Grandparent (my natural ones were still alive) and such cerebral offerings as the Foreign Language Literary Society (I had enough trouble with English).

In truth, of course, I was intimidated. But the great thing about East was that it even found a place for the likes of me. The year I arrived at the school, a chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) was revitalized. When I was ten, I had lost a cousin to a drunk driver. This wasn’t just an after-school club for me, but an issue I passionately cared about. A SADD chairmanship came up, and I took it. Wonder of wonders. I was involved.

It was four years ago when the class of '93 entered Cherry Hill High School East. Since then, we, as a class, have witnessed many changes occur here at East. But one thing has definitely not changed and it seems that it never will. That is the greatness of the Cherry Hill East Chess Team.

Actually, the East Chess Team has been winning championships long before we arrived here at East as freshmen. It has been eight years since the chess team’s first South Jersey Championship win. And only a year later did the team begin their seven year reign of State Championships that still continue today.

Besides South Jersey and State titles, the team also has a variety of other awards. With the help of Lewis Eisen, now an East graduate, the team became the first place team in the National High School Game 5 Chess Tournament and went even further to capture the third place ranking in the National High School Chess Championships last year. Also the Cherry Hill East Chess Team became ranked number one in the Speed Chess division of the Nationals.

This year’s East Varsity Chess Team consists of Jeff Datto, Steve Turer, Erik De Prince, Rick Hong, and James Yang holding first to fifth chairs respectively in the line-up. Also this year’s captain is Erik De Prince and the President is Steve Turer.

On the prospects of this year’s team, Captain Erik De Prince plainly said, “I can see the East Chess Team easily taking the State Championships for the eighth year in a row.”

During the critical point of the match Steve Turer studies the chess board carefully.

In deep thought Jeff Datto ponders over the game pieces for his next move.
Imagine East without the Student Government Association. The SGA not only runs the daily affairs at East but they are also responsible for organizing many of the school's major activities. Imagine fall at East without a Homecoming Game or Spirit Week, both of which the SGA organizes. No longer would East graduates and students alike be able to cheer the mighty Cougars on Thanksgiving Day. And no longer would East students be able to show their class pride in Spirit Week. Along with these two events, the Student Government officers must also plan and organize all of the other SGA sponsored activities and services that are provided throughout the school year.

Imagine a cold winter at East without the heart-stomping music and performances at the Battle of the Bands, Lip Sync Contest, and Variety Show. Then, try to imagine a spring at East without the Mr. East Contest-East's very own beauty contest for guys. Along with these activities, SGA offers the student body many services.

The SGA also organizes many of the community fundraisers held at East. It organizes charities for food, clothing, personal care products, and other items. Also, the SGA sets up parties at area nursing homes during the holidays to bring smiles to the faces of residents.

It's hard to ever imagine East without any of these activities and services which have become a long-time tradition and even harder to ever imagine East without the Student Government Association.

First East helps provide students with a wonderful education with which to enter the world - and then it works to keep the world ready for us to enter.

The only school district in New Jersey with any type of recycling program, Cherry Hill strives to keep the environment as safe as possible. One of East’s clubs, Friends of the Environment, works especially hard to preserve our earth. Besides all of their many other projects during the year, this January, “Friends” threw a great deal of energy into one particular event beginning on the 25th: Recycling/Conservation Awareness Week.

To begin, the Friends of the Environment set up five separate committees. The first group’s job was to meet with our administrators, maintenance workers, and students to give everyone a chance to voice their concerns. Lack of communication has always been a major problem, and this meeting helped to alleviate it. The second group wrote a newsletter on their concerns to be distributed in homerooms by the third committee. This third group also had discussions with everyone in homeroom about their feelings on the subject. The fourth committee began a Green Ribbon Campaign as a reminder to our school of how important taking care of the environment is. Finally, a last group set up a showcase representing recycling and conservation.

One other project that Friends of the Environment began around this time was a trip to the National Polystyrene Recycling company, where East’s used cafeteria trays are taken. On January 20, interested students went to the factory to witness the process by which the trays are recycled. This is the kind of education that is really needed to bring about a more aware and careful generation. With ideas like these, the future seems many times brighter.

Resolved: That the United States Government Should Reduce Worldwide Pollution Through its Trade and/or Aid Policies.

In the 1992-1993 debate season, Cherry Hill East’s Debate Team deliberated on this resolution. For the last two years, the Debate Team won the South Jersey Debate League Championship and this year, it continued East's great tradition of excellence.

The team, which consists of eight Varsity and eight Junior Varsity debaters, compiled one of the best records that any high school debate team had ever had and came very close to an undefeated regular season. The Debate Team was hungry for victory but it faced an uphill battle. Out of the eight varsity debaters, only three had competed on the varsity level in the previous year. However, the Debate Team made up for the lack of experience through the team members' hard work and natural oratorical talent and the excellent instruction by adviser Robert D. Nation.

During the regular season, the Affirmative Team, led by Captain Michael Lustbader, had a 6-1 record. This year's Negative Team and its Captain, Adam Goldworm, were undefeated and had a 7-0 record. With its 13-1 combined record, the team earned the Southern Division title, and went on to debate the winners of the Northern Division in the South Jersey Debate League Championship. Since there was a two-way tie in the Northern Division, East faced the debate teams of both Moorestown and Lenape in the finals. The Debate Team was very optimistic and confident of victory as it had defeated the same two teams in the same situation in last year’s finals.

During the tryouts, which were held in November, the debaters for the team were selected in an extremely competitive process. First, all aspiring debaters had to read and summarize a book or pamphlets based on the resolution. Then, they wrote and delivered a three-minute presentation, in which they argued for either the affirmative or negative positions. After this large group was narrowed down, a number of debaters were finally determined and started preparing in the beginning of December. The successful debate season culminated with the South Jersey Debate League Championship final and ended in mid-February.

Among the many excellent competitive teams here at East, there is probably one which could beat the rest in any battle. Their field of battle is, however, not the basketball courts but rather the courtroom, and their only tool is their wits. They are the Mock Trial Team, part of a national program in which students prepare a case and present it in one of the many county, state, or national level competitions. The national program, which was actually started only eleven years ago, has evolved since then into a popular one, involving thirty-five states. The topic of each years’ competition is selected by the State Bar, which also sets up the characters of the case. Past topics, such as child custody, freedom of the press, AIDS discrimination, sexual harassment, and murder, have all caused great discussion and competition for the team since the program’s arrival at East in 1983. This year’s topic concerns a criminal case involving aggravated assault with a hate motive between a security guard and a Jewish man.

The East Mock Trial is made up of two teams, the defense and the prosecution, with a total of ten students. There are also juror spots for alternates and other members who are still training to be on the team. To get on the team, a student must first make a mock opening statement, which is used by the advisers to evaluate the students’ competitive level.

The team meets several times a week, working hard in order to prepare for its county competitions starting in early February. Its hard work has resulted in its continued success over the past few years of competition. The team must first compete at county level mock trials between area schools before going to regional, state, and finally to national level competition.

R.O.T.C.
While East offers many business-oriented courses, it could be said that there is never any substitution to actual hands-on experience. With the help of DECA, Distributive Education Clubs of America, students are able to test and hone their business skills with the added fun of a little competition. The national organization sets up an annual contest that includes a week of tests and interviews. The written test on the first day is like most other examinations except for its subject, which may be on topics such as management, fashion and design, and marketing and sales. The next day, students must enact two real-life situations which may occur in the test area of their choice. Situations can be anything from an executive’s discussion with his client to a model’s walk down a runway and her subsequent discussion of her ensemble - creating the well-known DECA Fashion show. Then it’s time to await the decision of the judges, who will evaluate the students’ performances and finally select the top five winners. These five must then study and practice their speaking skills for the state competition. The two top winners there become contestants for the final national competition held in California.

By offering students the chance to apply actual business techniques and skills in an “on-the-job” setting, DECA provides an experience of value to an important segment of the Cherry Hill community.
CABLE 18

Flipping through the channels on TV, you will inevitably come across the familiar green screen that has come to be known as Cable 18. Displaying announcements from elementary school fairs to the famous "DEcLATG OPENING" message, Cable 18 breaks its screen monotony with its weekly school news show produced by Cherry Hill students.

The East segment of the news series airs every Wednesday evening at 7PM. Headed by Mr. Haines and officers Elaine Cruz and Eric Salzman, the Cable 18 Club allows its members a chance to appear on TV. New members begin by conducting an interview or giving a review; then, after a few more of these on-camera experiences, they are allowed a chance at co-anchoring (most shows have two news anchors and a sports anchor). In preparation, an anchor must gather news information and write stories to be read before the camera the Monday before showtime.

The show, which runs about 15 minutes, is taped in the cable room of the East library by Mr. Gordon Hamson. The programs cover all school-related stories and sports events. Starting this year, Cable 18 even has a new SAT word-of-the-week. However, it is the charm of the familiar faces on-screen that draws in Cherry Hill East viewers every week.

To some, photography is just the action of taking some vacation shots, but to others, it is an art — an expression without words. That is just what the Photography Club is for. It is made up of students who meet after school weekly in order to further their experience and knowledge of the art of photography. Though it is basically used as a time after school for students who need the dark room for projects, there is also another good idea behind the club. Students at the intermediate or beginner level, not necessarily taking a photography class, can come and get help from the more advanced photography students who comprise most of the club. At the end, though, the object of the club overall is to have fun taking photographs and printing them.

Peeking out from behind a battery of smiles and SLRs, a derbied Mr. Frascella offers encouragement to club members.

Caught with a fetching smile and a mackerel, Meryl Salth poses proudly in front of a processing plant.

Sitting European-style in a nearby coffee shop, Stacie Schmerling discusses the finer points of f/stops and fish as Meryl Salth looks on.

Once a month for eight months, every home-room buzzes with the latest news. Eight times a year, classrooms are disrupted by students reading the latest issue of Eastside. Once a month, Eastside editors congratulate each other for a month's worth of hard work.

The hectic pace starts at the assignment meeting. Mr. Tony Sipp, the adviser begins the meeting with his inspirational speech about the word "yes." Then, the race to attract writers is on. "Come on, I know that you've always wanted to write an opinion . . . Take a story from me. My stories are interesting . . . Remember the magic word, 'yes'." Around 3:15, a few editors try to hawk their last stories to the one writer left in the room. The first lap is over and the editors take a little rest.

However, the business staff has no time for rest. Constantly on the phone, they gather advertisements to help pay for the next issue of Eastside and the new review magazine, Levendis.

For two weeks, the writers stalk the hallways looking for information on their story. Finally, the writers track down their elusive interview contacts. Questions are asked and quotes are gathered. Then they combine these questions and quotes into one coherent story with no paragraph longer than forty words or three lines.

DEADLINE.

Now, the rest period is over and the race against time begins, again. Section editors first proofread their stories Then, they critique their stories. Is there a East tie-in? Did this story meet the cut-off test? After the editing, the copies are sent to the printers to put them into galleys, long columns of text.

In a few days the galleys, art and photos come in. F-087 turns into a madhouse. The first few months are the worst. No one, except Mr. Sipp, knows how to wheel photos and write headlines and cutlines. But everyone learns in no time, especially that 3/16" must come between everything.

The editors cover pencil dummies with X-ed rectangles, liftout quotes, dingbats, and wavy lines. Soon, page dummies are laid out and the galleys are rolled onto them. All of the hard work is starting to pay off. It is starting to look like a real newspaper.

With the goal in sight, the editors hurry to finish the rest of their page dummies, not only because of the impending deadline, but also to see their "baby," the newspaper. Finally, after a week of frenzy, the page prototypes are sent to the printers. Relaxation, again, but this time the editors count down the days until the day when the paper arrives.

The day arrives. Mr. Sipp always gets the first copy. Papers are distributed to each homerooms. Students catch up with the latest news. Classes are disrupted. The cycle continues.

BEST FRIENDS
It's only the most radical achievement since the wheel, that's all: a group of 27 diverse people who learned to work together to reach one common goal. Impossible, you say. Well, it did take constant prodding by Erica and several nudges from Andrea as they finessed loose ends into a whole. For instance, as Ari and Stacy "passed in the night," they managed to turn dollar bills into thousands. The typewriters clicked and clacked under the copy schedules.

Of Flo and Alan as Aubrey verified again the copy fit for the captions. Adrienne collected a folder full of stuff and transformed it into usable material as Kate chased and tracked coaches around the building to get the coveted sports lists. Conant, Olivia and Wendy numbered and labelled and cross-checked and indexed and worried a lot. Hubert spent hours at the drafting table making circles and squares and shuffling pictures.
of people he didn’t know. Eric honed and tuned the musical elite while Danny ran around with picture schedules hollering, “... by Wednesday,” whatever that meant. Jeanette, Miriam, Abby and Elaine drew lines, rectangles and measured picas; while Ali, Jay, Adam, Mira, Lisa, Urvashee and Jen unpacked candy, filled bins, sold blow pops and rolled coins. Meryl was there with camera and film to capture the moment because Mr. Yellen, who clicked away for hundreds of hours and took umpteen rolls of film, couldn’t be everywhere every day. And then there was Mr. Carr, as literary adviser, was charged with the task of overseeing the production of copy. He deftly defined new formulas for old stories, reread countless revisions, crossed the “t’s” and dotted the “i’s”. Mr. Steele, the business adviser, hummed and strummed and nodded approval as things all fell into place. And last, but not least (as the old cliche’ goes), is Ms. Hopp who says “no” more than “yes,” has learned to believe in magic for survival, who wants the best because she knows there is that one moment in time when the radical achievement becomes a yearbook that truly is eidolon.
On the football field, A. J. Salvatore (End) and James Francesconi (Back) made all-group 4. Scott Peeler (End) and Ben Steinberg (Back) made second team offense. Jon Schermer (Line) made second team defense. Honorable mention was given to Lou Regan and Jeff Kellmar. James Francesconi (right Back) made second offense in All South Jersey along with A. J. Salvatore (End) who made third offense, and Nick Mike-Myer received honorable mention.

In Boys' Soccer, Jason Kenig and Andrew Jensen made second team in all-group 4. John Brand, Martin Jensen, Dan Neeves, Adam Shane, and Earl Walker received honorable mention. In All South Jersey, Jason Kenig and Andrew Jensen made third team, while John Brand received honorable mention.

Cherry Hill East made another mark on the hockey field. Lisa Der Pilbosian made a stunning mark for East by being on the All-Group 4 team. Heather Hohmann represented East on the second team and Yvonne Chang received honorable mention. The girls worked very hard and the touch practice paid off.

Samra was the fifth best in the 3,200 and six best in the 1,600 meter in South Jersey. Teneacia Smith also left a mark as the best long jumper in the state and the second best in the nation by jumping 20' 1/2". Clair Leonard was sixth best in the 1,600 meter in South Jersey and Jill Roche was the sixth best high jumper in South Jersey. Fall Cross Country also made impressive marks in South Jersey.

In the bowling lanes, Meryl Saltz was making a mark of her own. She broke the school record of a 609 in a three game series by bowling a 619 in a three game series. The bowling team has been doing very well with such leadership.

On the tennis court with their new pavilion, the Girls' Tennis Team made outstanding status in the field. The team was fifth in South Jersey with a 10-2 season. From all this effort, Alex Jacobs and Stephanie Cherkas made All-Group 4 in singles. Tracie Goldberg and Jessica Kozlov made the doubles team.

Cona leads East girls to victory

Jamie Cona qualified for the state individual championships in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events by winning both races and helping Cherry Hill East to its eighth straight win, a 94-92 decision at Lawrenceville yesterday in girls swimming.

Cona won the 50 freestyle in 26.58 seconds and the 100 in 56.19. East also got solid performances from Sarah Perluff in the 200 individual medley (2 minutes, 21.1 seconds), and Rohys Hassler in the 100 backstroke (1:06.3). Cona, Perluff, Hassler and Anita Ceci also teamed to win the 200 freestyle relay.

East also won the boys' meet, 99-86. over Lawrenceville as John Maslow took the 100 yard (49.0) and 200 freestyle (1:53.6) race, and Andrew Griswold won the 100 backstroke (1:02.3) and 200 individual medley (2:11.5).

DIFFERENT
Hey, hey. I’m just me!
I’m different from anyone else you’ll see.
Taller than Larry - shorter than Shawn.
Hair that is darker than Rhys’ too.
Eyes not blue, nor really green but really dark, not in between.

I’ve got more humor than Kevin or Scott
And I’m not as loud as Damon or Charles.
Rebecca reads better, but I can add
And I run fast (which makes me glad).

Sonya’s arms are chocolate brown
And she’s got the nicest smile in town
Dennis arms are almost white
And I’m brown and it’s alright,
Cause Michael is him and I am me
And Adrienne is Adrienne plain to see,
And we are all as different as we can be!

I hope the day will be a lighter highway, for friends are on every road.
Can you ever think of any better way for the lost and weary travelers to go?
Making friends for the world to see,
Let the people know you got what you need.
With a friend at hand, you will see the light,
If your friends are there, then everything’s all right!

To our sweetheart, Lisa Bronstein -
Monday Lisa boarded a yellow school bus and went off to the J.C.C. Nursery School.
Tuesday we sent Lisa to Bret Harte school with a bright, shiny "Big Bird" lunch box.
Wednesday we bought her new sneakers for Mt. Misery.
Thursday we survived our first Back-to-School Night in the East parking lot.
Friday we bought a brand new wallet for a brand new driver's license.
At the end of the summer, Lisa will be off to college.
Please, college which Lisa will be attending - try to see she doesn't oversleep her morning class.
Please world - give her a pat on the back,
along with the paycheck.
She's the one coming down the street with her car and the new sneakers and the shiny bright "Big Bird" lunch box.

Thank you.
Thank you.
Thank you.

Please make it a good world for Lisa,
please make her dreams come true.
She will always be ours.
Good Luck Lisa!

MIKE "LUSTY"

Some thoughts for the graduate:

Just about the time you learn all the answers, they change all the questions.

The men who build the future are those who know that greater things are yet to come, and that they themselves will help bring them about.

There are two sides to every question, your own and the wrong side.

Success is that old ABC -- ability, breaks and courage.

It is almost impossible to remember how tragic a place the world is when one is playing golf. -- (Even on a Monday!!)

What the future has in store for you depends largely on what you place in store for the future.

Half the things that people do not succeed in are through fear of making the attempt.

Some men see things and they say, "Why?"
But I dream of things that never were and I say, "Why not?"

Experience is not what happens to a man. It is what a man does with what happens to him.

The further one pursues knowledge, the less one knows.

One man is no more than another if he does no more than another.

The secret of success is this: there is no secret of success.

If you play golf as if it is merely a game, you're too well-adjusted to be normal.

I have the simplest tastes; I am always satisfied with the best.

Like Mike, I want to be like Mike.

You know it's true, everything we do, we do it for you.

We are all very proud of you.

Best of luck during your college years and forever!!

Michelle,

There are only so many ways to show you how much I care. We've been through good times and bad, but I want you to remember that you will always have a place in my heart. I could never forget the many times that you have been there for me when I needed a friend. Whatever the future holds for us, I will always remember the great times we've had and how big a part you have played in my life. To quote Michael Bolton, "Love is a wonderful thing" and I am glad that I had someone very special to share it with me.

I love you Michelle,
Warren

Video or 104.5. Don't worry, I can't imagine it either. Whether we were just at home watching movies in your basement or out at a fancy French restaurant, it was the best of times. Even our disastrous prom was amazing. At least I went with the right person and the Senior Prom was even better.

I hope I have given you as much as you've given me. Since the Valentine's Day night when you asked me out, we have gone together so much and have become so close. I wouldn't change a thing. It's funny how not so very long ago I was wondering if I would ever find someone compatible with me. And today I can look behind me and see how far I've come with you. Looks like I'm in love, doesn't it.

Although the rough times were yucky, I know that they made us grow closer. Thank you for being brave. You'll never know how much it means to me. Whether we get mar-rried, or find someone else, part of me is forever yours. Keep the memories.

If you ever need a laugh, picture us out in the street in front of Gil's house one summer night, then give me a call, it'll probably make my day. We can stay up talking about life just like we did way back in high school.
We can have petty arguments and laugh at each other. We can remain best friends. I really do love you, buddy. When are Wally and Mima getting married? I'll tell you tomorrow, tuh-tuah-tuah. "Maybe nothing lasts forever, not the mountains or the sea, but the times we had together will always be with me."

You've always made us very proud of you.
Remember . . .
Dreams do come true!

Love,
Dad, Mom and David

Joanne,
I'm very proud of you in every way and I'm writing to say, may all your hopes and dreams come true, always remember that I love you.
I can't believe your senior year is coming to an end and soon I'll have to say good-bye to you, my best friend.
Editor-in-Chief of Eastside, Chairman of FOP and Project Harmony are some of the accomplishments that kept you busy as can be.
Your hugs and kisses I'll miss from you each day, when you're off to college, living far away.
I don't have to catch a rainbow or find a pot of gold because when your smiling face appears before me, I have all that life beholds.
Love,
Mommy

Congratulations Rick Bulicki

ALTHOUGH YOU MAY NOT BE AWARE OF IT RICK, I WANT YOU TO ALWAYS KNOW WE ARE PROUD OF YOU. DON'T LET THE BRAINS GOD GAVE YOU JUST SIT IN YOUR HEAD AND DO NOTHING. WE KNOW JUST HOW SMART YOU ARE AND HOW FAR IN THIS CRAZY WORLD YOU CAN GO.

DON'T FORGET THE GOOD TIMES YOU HAD AT EAST. I KNOW THERE MUST HAVE BEEN AT LEAST A FEW !! TODAY IS THE DAY AFTER THE DEATH OF YOUR FIRST CAR, I KNOW YOU WILL ALWAYS REMEMBER THE " BIRD ". AT THE WORST, IT TAUGHT YOU A LOT ABOUT FIXING CARS.

AS TOUGH AS YOU WANT EVERYONE TO THINK YOU ARE, I KNOW YOU ARE A VERY CARING AND COMPASSIONATE PERSON, AND SOMEDAY YOU'LL LET THE WORLD KNOW THE RICK YOUR FAMILY KNOWS. BE VERY PROUD YOU ARE WHO YOU ARE, BECAUSE YOU ARE VERY SPECIAL.

WE LOVE YOU RICK,

Mom and dad

RICK,

YOU'RE FINALLY OUT OF EAST! IT'S BEEN FUN GOING THROUGH SCHOOL WITH YOU. GOOD LUCK IN WHATEVER YOU DECIDE TO DO, AND THANKS FOR ALL THE ADVICE YOU HAVE GIVEN ME. REMEMBER THE AKA.

LOVE, YOUR BROTHER

Brian

RICK,

PLAY TIME IS OVER. NO MORE MORNINGS AT MICKEY D'S. NOW YOU REALLY HAVE TO GET A JOB. SUCKS TO BE YOU!!! YOU SHOULD BE HAPPY THE " BIRD " BURNT DOWN. GET A VET. LATER....

LOVE,

Di

RICK,

CONGRATS BRO !!! GOOD LUCK IN WHATEVER YOU CHOOSE TO DO. I KNOW THAT YOU'LL SUCCEED IF YOU PUT YOUR BRAINS TO WORK. ALEX TOLD ME TO TELL YOU TO KEEP ANSWERING THOSE JEOPARDY QUESTIONS AND MAYBE HE'LL SEE YOU ON THE SHOW SOMEDAY. I KNOW THAT I GAVE YOU SOME BAD LEADS AT EAST, BUT I'M GLAD YOU MADE IT THROUGH FOLLOWING ME AND CHRIS.

LOVE,

Fseen

Stacy

To my dear Stacy,
Thank you for all the wonderful times we’ve had and the ones we will have in the future. I love you as a girlfriend, but also as a best friend. I know that we will be together forever. I love you always and forever.

To my only love,
You are the best boyfriend that any girl can ever dream of. Not only that, but you are my best friend. Thank you for all the memories that we have. I look forward to all the ones that we will have in the future. We will be together forever. I love you always and forever.
FRIENDS MAY COME AND GO, BUT A FRIEND LIKE YOU - LASTS A LIFETIME.

Wommie & Spanky, Jan. 18, 1991, “you’ll be in my dreams” Luv ya, late. Dana & Howdy (Chuckles), Steph – he did it again! The Primmer-mobiles. “That guy”, Oh Reeeally!! i.e. .... syllables? It’s H2OHHHH ... Proportional, Supermin, Batmin. “When cow’s laugh ...” and thank you! Wildwood Summers! Computer pictures, Hot guys at A & LP Breakfast at Vegas, 26th Street! see-through hair, What a “THEM” Ramblin’ Root Beer. S.C. Scamp, “I used to get my hair cut there” “I know them from camp, Special Memories of Three Pond.

“Wow, that was close, I mean we can laugh about it now, we’re O.K. New Year’s ’91, free cookies from Eric. The slick cheater - (Casey gave me the hickey, I swear), Vitaly and Flaming Cucumbers (I’d give her a kiss), “special!”, I just sprayed, Steph blow. Hour long bangs. “That’s hysterecial!”, “Getme ...”, D.J.’s Look Pal . 07 Heaven! Sam Goody. Hello. “Get that for me”, Hear, clear smear ... chawlace cake, sawit bawl, “Hi Marm-what’s up Daner”, nosy moms, July 4th ’92. “Dana-what happened to the ground effects?” “they’re in the trunk, Jamie and the “Black-Mail” picture, “Start to Foreplay” - bowling ally. Michelle - Sometime we had hard times, but we proved that blood is thicker than water. We learned a lot from each other and you could always make me laugh when times were tough. As we progressed in life, it appears that our friendship became stronger and better. You're my sister and I know that I can always count on you when I need a friend. Next year will be difficult to separate because finding a best friend only happens once in a lifetime and that's you. Thanks for all the memories, Sis and all the times to come.

Sue - You always told me that someday I'd laugh at what once made us cry, but you never told me I'd cry at all the memories that made us laugh. I could never thank you enough for what you've given me. I love you. You mean the world to me. You will always be my sister and my best friend!

“Friends forever, that’s what people say
You know you can’t forget them or just turn away.
You can leave them behind or even lose touch,
But try as you might, you’ll find you can’t escape
Because you’ll always remember the secrets you’ve shared
And the good times that you’ve spent.”

From the time of your first “picture call” we knew you were destined for success. But we could not have anticipated the joy and pride that being your parents would mean. By the time you entered East you had already been seen on the main stage as a munchkin in WIZARD OF OZ. Your love of music and drama provided the “magic carpet” as your dreams carried you far over these past four years. There are many wonderful memories of your successes but the best moments of all were sharing the drama office for a daily laugh or two. It will soon be a much quieter place and East’s stage will never be quite the same. But you take with you tremendous accomplishments and great promise for a future in the “spotlight.” The Nation awaits your debut! May happiness and good health always be yours and never compromise your kind heart.

Our love and congratulations!
Dad, Mom and Brad
