dedication

In each revolution there stands a person or two who lead all others. They guide, advise, encourage and decide. 'Tis upon their sturdy shoulders the most difficult burden lies. Though they laugh with their comrades, they cry with them too. They must see beyond the present turbulent waters, to the stranger and deeper beyond. The most difficult task of all is the opposing of the majority for the ultimate betterment of all.

It is to these leaders of our revolution that we dedicate this book.
To you, Ms. Wilson, though you lead us for but a year.
To you, Mr. Jordan, the head of our house.
To you, Mr. Josephs, in our hearts you are dear.
and here’s to revolution—the dream the dedication the change from me to us to man TOGETHER
sing a song of metamorphosis—caterpillar to butterfly “sea to shining sea”
A knowledge of American history is an invitation to experience the accomplishment, drama, tragedy and hope of an infant nation struggling to grow up. Sturdy, determined pioneers hacked away at the edges of a raw continent and, with blunders and achievements alike, modeled a country with a spirited nature and a united commitment to individual liberty for every one of its citizens. Americans, great and not so great, have given us a heritage to carry on and improve upon. Farmers and soldiers, industrialists and merchants, dreamers and leaders, are all there in two centuries of progress.

But the maturing isn’t finished. You’ll find the boundaries of growth as endless today as when our forefathers first envisioned them. You can seek out your own destiny with the wisdom and judgement which comes with re-creation of the past. Your knowledge, dreams and industry will carry on through many more centuries of living history.

there is a quiet smiling grey-haired man who sits in a big airy office or roams through the long halls supervising the running of the school

he is ultimately responsible for everything but even with his mountain of duties the time is found to talk with students and speak at club functions easily accessible and genuinely interested he elicits our friendship yet retains respect we are thankful he is that way because now "principal" is more than just a title

if one is to communicate a revolution, then one must learn to write and speak coherently, non-confusingly, without repetition, avoid run-on sentences, and sentence fragments. one must always be careful to check grammar, punctuation, and spelling. one of the most important things is capitalization. there is definitely no better place to learn proper diction and writing than your english class. so, let's try it!
SEPTEMBER
I sit in my history class and dream... the guy walking past the window becomes an Indian and I a pilgrim unsure of his disposition I stand motionless we meet I extend my hand and the bell rings to the end of class
FEBRUARY
I sit in my history class and dream... the scuffling in the hallway becomes the marching feet of soldiers and the banging of a locker door becomes the sounding of a gun I watch as grey and blue suited men fall about me suddenly a crash of fire in the grey ranks and the bell rings to the end of a war

JUNE
I sit in my history class and dream... the screaming in the hallways becomes the voices of angry college students all are around me I see bricks fly and people fall smokebombs explode and shield reality police appear to calm the crowd terror presides a shot rings out and the bell rings to the beginning of my life
There's gonna' be a revolution, be it here or there or anywhere.
Their gonna' cry for a revolution,
be it French or Dutch or German.
Their gonna' fight a revolution,
be it by force or words or love.
if one wishes a revolution then one must have a dream + a willingness to work the power strength to forcefully cause change a philosophy + a willingness to begin again with different methods than previously used. now, if you have the courage to solve this semi-mathematical verbal enigma you should come up with a true answer but then you can never trust an answer book!!
PURPOSE: To investigate the goings on in those deep dark labs of the physical sciences.

MATERIALS: Two eyes, two ears, one nose

METHOD: To dare to enter a lab room

DATA: No cobwebs in corners, no regular explosions, no dangerous looking bubbling beakers, no hideous laughter, no funny little men with fuzzy hair and white lab coats wearing devilish grins, only teachers and sinks and test tubes, how boring!

CONCLUSIONS: A revolution in the lab has occurred since those dusty old alchemists reigned. The modern physical science lab is neither scary nor mysterious anymore. (rats)

Gymnasts all are we.

It takes great push to propel ourselves into the air, nothing solid beneath our feet—a somersault, a revolution above the ground.

It takes great strength to move ourselves upon the horse, our bodies forcing us in a revolution supported by the strength of arms.

It takes great skill to swing ourselves around the bar, fighting air and Newton's law, to make a perfect revolution and not to overshoot our goal.

Gymnasts all are we.

It takes a lot to play football: muscle, strength, guts, confidence, skill, practice. But also it takes spirit—the great feeling that the team is behind you and the fans won't let you down. The roar of the cheers and the shouts of the team as you break from a huddle all these make up spirit vital to any winning team. Sometimes, football is not on top in games but no one can beat us in spirit.
There is this group
That weathers the elements
To cheer on
The teams at play

Hands cupped
Shakers fluttering Feet stomping Spirits high

They all turn out
In perfect form
With new routines
To spark enthusiasm

Legs chapped
Voices hoarse
Eyes bright
Hair tousled

If not for them
No cheering fans
No winning team
No victory march

Thank you
Rousing heralds
Cheerleaders
Rout on!

They race against time
And in the cold and autumn heat
Legs pumping
Every breath the last

Running endlessly, running
They strain toward the ribbon
Feet beating hard earth
Stumbling over rocks and roots

But though eternally running
They still find the time
To make fast friends
Among the team

It’s not glorious
No bands or crowds or fanfare
Support the fleetfoots
Cheer on the runner

Yet on they run
And still they strain
To press toward their perfection Perpetuate their reputation beginning the piece in short staccato each instrument playing its own tune the time speeds up and all at once they unify and a sound bursts forth a simple powerful melody that fills the soul and controls the mind and unknowingly your heart begins to beat in time and then the notes sound quieter and harmonize in a sweet serene melody and you relax to a peaceful state and leave feeling like you've fought a revolution a revolution of sound.

Smoking Plan Faces Obstacles

by Dave Austin

The smoking program scheduled to go into effect at West this year has run into several obstacles which may keep "legitimate" smoking out of the school at least until the 1976-77 term.

The plan, established by members of the Student Senate faculty, and parents, was approved by the superintendent of the Cherry Hill school system, Dr. William Stone. Shime referred the plan to the smoking committee of the Board of Education, who in turn referred it back to the school administration. The committee suggested that the school determine how much support it would need from students and faculty.

In December, a survey was taken among the students, resulting in a 50% majority in favor of the proposed plan. However, in a similar survey taken among the faculty, the proposal was voted down by a large majority.

According to West principal Daniel Rowan, this lack of support by the staff was the first major obstacle encountered by the plan. Rowan said he felt that it would be impossible to implement any plan.

Rowan also expressed concern in the area of student support. "With the survey vote being so close, it was difficult to determine if the students were really in favor of smoking. A larger majority would be necessary to effectively judge this." Again any lack of support would make any plan useless.

Basic Skills Decline

by Robert Seide

According to the December 8, 76 issue of Newsweek Magazine, students attending college are unable to write ordinarily, express English with any real degree of structure and lucidity."

"Can this possibly be true?" asks Principal Daniel Rowan. "We need to build into the system a requirement for the graduation of high school.

Do any solutions exist? "We need to build into the system a requirement for the graduation of high school.

Rowan states. "That requirement is that every student should be able to read, write, speak, listen, and compute at a prescribed level of competence."

A New System For The Future?

Rowan contends that the system should be changed. Students should be given comprehensive tests on all the basic skills before being graduated from high school. When will this all take place? Rowan explains, "It's in the future because I think the public can't read or write!" Rowan claims this may be a major flaw in education. It began all the way back in elementary school.

A scene from the film "Chinatown" is described, noting the famous line "Here's looking at you, kid." The film is praised for its compelling story and strong performances. The editor also mentions the film's impact on the genre.

The text then shifts to discuss another film, "The Bicycle Thief," and its significance in the history of cinema. The editor highlights the film's exploration of the theme of poverty and its depiction of a father's struggle to find work to support his family.

The conclusion of the review places "Chinatown" among the best films of the 1970s, while "The Bicycle Thief" is noted for its timeless relevance and its influence on later films. The editor concludes that both films are essential viewing for any cinephile.

I remember going to school with my kneesocks and lunchbox and watching the high school kids walking to school and thinking that I could never get to be that big or at least it would take a long long time for my legs to grow that long.

I remember going to school with my nylon stockings and my new braces and watching the high school students walking to school and thinking that I had so long before I would be so mature and wondering how many battles I had yet to fight before I reached high school.

And now I am a senior leaving that same high school I had wondered if I would make it to and I think back to kneesocks and braces and wonder at the distance I have come the many revolutions I have undergone and now I see my neighbors leaving for their jobs and I think how much farther I have to go and of the revolutions of the future.

time passed, the question, "would we survive?" was answered definitely in the year ahead. we floated in and out of football games, and forged our way through classes, hopped with hillbilies, and merrily tramped through capital Washington.
time passed, and when everything was fine, we were beset by a depressing Boom or Bust. Money was a vital necessity, so we toiled. Concessions to football, boxes of Hershey's, our determination paid off in big dividends. And so as it passed, we celebrated with a prom.
time passes and we emerge now in triumph, leaving many different marks upon the school, we realize that the challenge has just begun and that many new trials eagerly await us. In the past we have faced up to the demands, the future will show us continuing to do so.

Imagine buying that acre of land you have spotted for $125! Or, even at the higher price of $10. Those are the prices offered to our founding fathers to encourage settlement of the wilderness areas of this nation.

A stage wasn't the most comfortable way to go, but you could get from city to city for as little as $3 at the amazing pace of six miles per hour.

Compare today's wages with a 12-hour day in the early 1800s. A man earned 50¢ a day. Of course his dollar brought a little more than today. Butter in 1826 was about 5¢ lb. in the Midwest; eggs, 34¢ doz.; corn 6¢ bu.; wheat, 25¢ bu., and a cow could be bought for $5.

With travel becoming the American tradition, you could choose train, wagon, horseback or the water. A canal ride, with bed and board included, averaged 3 or 4¢ per mile. And if you wereached your destination, you could sit down to a 5, or even 10 course meal for 25¢. (Ladies 20¢, in consideration of appetite.)

Farmers in the early 1800s could own the famous McCormick Reaper for a mere $100. But the Civil War increased prices as the machine became the first item farmers could buy on time payments for the sum of $1,200.

A good suit of clothes might then cost $1.95 and ladies' suits (blouses) were marketed at 49¢ to $3.50 with a whole dress pattern priced at 15¢.

Cookestones, "quality-satisfaction guaranteed," could cost you $29.25 at $4 per month and a dandy heating stove could set you back as much as $573 and up. The first electric refrigerator cost $900—which might be enough to make you faint on your 1907 fainting couch that had cost a mere $7.85.

Your new baby traveled in the height of fashion in a wicker sleeping coach (stroller) for the sum of $12.04. If you had $1,500 in 1903 you could show off in one of the first automobiles.

Ah, those were the days. Some of the current prices are reminiscent of those days, but at frontier prices, which were a whole different story. Hardy pioneers had to pay $2 a pound for sugar, too. And the same for a pound of coffee or pepper. Those items were only 15¢ per pound in civilized St. Louis. Flour was marked up 100 times for sale to the frontiersmen and during the famous Gold Rush, that precious commodity went for $400 a barrel.

It is open to the public, and the Saturday afternoons, from one to four o'clock, is entirely devoted to the entertainment of ladies and gentlemen of all ages, and the general public.

The collections of the Museum are the result of the attentive care and research of Dr. J. D. D. A. Peale, the first curator, and have been greatly added to by the late physician and artist, Dr. W. P. Peale, and by the late Dr. W. H. Peale, who have left a valuable body of works in the Museum, and have added many valuable objects to its collection.

The Peale's Museum, under the direction of Capt. W. W. Peale, is open from three to five o'clock on Saturday afternoons. The entrance fee is 25 cents, and the exhibition is open to the public at all times.
